SOVIET RUSSIA

said it is necessary to act at once to end an "intolerable situation." He rejected the proposal of Germany and Italy that the problem could be handled by the non-interv-ent committee of 27 nations.

Regretting the absence of Germany and Italy, he said "it requires us to double our efforts, not to abandon them."
Eden, speaking after Litvinov, also regretted the absence of the two powers and suggested that the conference keep them informed of its work.

"We are here for an urgent, definite purpose," Eden said. "We regret that some of those whose co-operation we would have desired are absent. I am sure the conference will wish to keep them informed of our work."
"I therefore propose that the conference resolve itself into a steering committee."

The delegates immediately adopted his proposal and reporters were asked to leave while the committee went into private session.

CITES FIGURES ON EMPLOYMENT

September Normally One Of Best Employment Months Of Year

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 10.—(UP) —September normally is one of the best employment months of the year in Indiana, according to Martin F. Carpenter, director of the Indiana state employment service.

Ten of the state's industries,— Canning, cleaning and dyeing, utilities, metal work, tin, planing mills, saw mills, food, flour, and general contracting—reach their employment peaks in September, according to the employment SHRSRL charts based on seasonal fluctuations in employment experienced by industry during past years.

The fact that no industry touches the bottom of its seasonal employment curve during the month strengthens the favorable antipa-tion.

"Forty-one industries normally expand their employment at least two per cent during September," Carpenter said. "Only 14 lines show employment contraction amounting to two per cent or more when compared with the previous month."

"Ordinarily the Indiana canning factories show their greatest activity during September when they increase their employment about 70 per cent. This is a notable gain when it is remembered that it follows a normal expansion of approximately 175 per cent in August over July."

Shortages of labor are expected in several hoosier communities during September due to the tomato pick, he said. Indiana is one of the leading states in the production of peas, tomatoes and tomato juice. It also ranks high in the canning and preserving of fruits, berries, and other vegetables.

"The effect of cooling temperatures on the pastimes and tastes of the public is reflected in the employment curves of several industries, notably theaters, confectioneries and similar lines," Carpenter said. "Ice cream, ice and beverage plants continue the downward curve they began in August."

harbor, including the antiquated Idzumo and an armed transport, opened fire with big guns and machine guns on Chinese positions at Pootung.

Hundreds of shells screamed through the air. Chinese shells were falling within 100 feet of the Idzumo and the Japanese transport. Others fell in Hongkew, Japense section of the international settlement.

Shells fell all around the Japanese transport, crowded with soldiers, and it was forced to go down stream without landing troops.
The Chinese barrage let up some after the transport got out of range.

As the transport came down the Whangpoo the Chinese opened up with a heavy fire. Two direct hits were scored. Then the heavy duel started.

At the same time a heavy burst of shrapnel fell in the financial district and on Szechwen road near Hankow. Almost simultaneously another burst fell inside the municipal police headquarters compound on Foochow road, next door to the American club.

The shrapnel struck the roof of the second story veranda of the club and broke a window.

Three Chinese were injured. A policeman miraculously escaped injury when a piece of shrapnel pierced his belt.

The British sloop Grimsby was endangered and was nearly caught, but managed to escape undamaged.
The Japanese withheld their fire until it had passed out of range.

The Chinese gained confidence with their successes.

A Chinese spokesman jubilantly announced that the Japanese had been forced to withdraw from an area near the Jukong wharf and had reboarded their warships.

The long-heralded Japanese offensive, scheduled for today, he said, had failed to materialize and all positions at present were unchanged.

Sporadic fighting took place throughout the day with Chinese batteries more active than the Japanese.

Some of the shells fell around the N. Y. K. wharf, near the Japanese consulate, where the Japanese hospital ship America Maru, was moored. The hospital ship was moved downstream.

The Japanese spokesman who admitted that the Chinese had halted the Japanese drive on Shanghai from the north, said that a heavy Japanese bombardment of Pootung, near the Socony vacuum plant, had been made necessary because Chinese artillery units were operating in that area. One bomb exploded near an oil tank and started a fire.

While the Japanese offensive against Shanghai appeared to have been halted, the Japanese indicated a major offensive would be started to the north, along the Peiping-Hankow railroad.
