an in China is inconsistent with the principles which should govern relationships between nations and is contrary to the provisions of the nine power treaty of February 6, 1922, regarding principles and policies to be followed in matters concerning China and to those of the Kellogg-Briand pact of August 27, 1928.

The statement said that this government found its conclusions concerning the far eastern conflict in general accord with those of the assembly of the League of Nations.

Thus, for the first time under modern peace machinery, the United States formally named the aggressor in an international conflict, and at the same time aligned itself solidly with the League of Nations in common efforts to halt that aggression.

May Denounce Treaty

Tokyo, Oct. 7.—(UPI)—Japan may denounce the nine-power treaty which is the basis of an international conference called by the League of Nations, well informed quarters said today.

It was suggested that Japan might elect to follow the course of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany in smashing the Locarno pact and the Versailles treaty to obtain liberty of action.

The informants said that Japan now must play a lone hand against the world if necessary, disregarding the theories underlying the entire post-war treaty structure and following her own destiny.

Japan left the league, it was recalled, in 1933 because of efforts to prevent her seizure of Manchuria.

A wave of anger swept the country today at the action of the league and the pronouncement of the American state department approving the league's condemnation of Japan.

Officials of the government and particularly of the foreign office awaited anxiously an official report from Ambassador Hiroshi Saito, at Washington, on the state department announcement. Foreign office officials said that reports that an "emergency conference" had been summoned was untrue, and that they doubted whether they would be able to make formal comment today.

But it was believed that when the government did comment, the result would be a direct snub to the United States, angrily rejecting any interference with Japan's course in China.

Predictions that the nine-power treaty might be denounced roused immediate interest here. The treaty was signed at the Washington naval limitations conference. Signatories pledged themselves to respect the sovereignty, indepen-ence and territorial and administrative integrity of China. Nine powers signed the treaty and since then eight others have adhered to it.

Prince Fumimaro Konoye, the premier, left his home today after remaining indoors for several days, indisposed. It was believed that the sudden grave turn in the international situation brought him out.

Though the foreign office declined to accept connection with it, a statement issued by the Domei news agency today was believed to reflect the government view of the situation.

This statement said that the government was studying measures to meet any emergency which might arise from convocation of a far eastern conference and that Japan certainly would boycott the conference. Japan's fundamental policy, it was said, would be continued rigorously, inasmuch as she was trying solely to restore order in the far east. Even if economic penalties were applied, it was said, Japan was confident she could meet them through national unity.

Renovated Kitchen Provides Light-Conditioning

By Jean Prentice

I TALKED, not long ago, with a little elderly lady who had just visited . . . for the first time . . . one of the modern new kitchens. She was all a-sparkle.

"This kitchen," she exclaimed, "had a refrigerator big enough to hold a steer, cupboards everywhere . . . and the most marvelous lighting!"

She had visited a light-conditioned kitchen. Light-conditioning is one of the newest conveniences to be added to the room that is so important a part of the homemaker's life.

Non-technically, the term means having the right amount and the right kind of lighting available . . . regardless of whether or not the sky outside is black with night or grey with threatening clouds.

Often a kitchen has the most daylight of any room in the house.

In addition to the ceiling fixture, this renovated kitchen provides ample light at each work-center to ease labor and prevent eyestrain.

Even so, the natural light in the center of many kitchens is only 1/100th of the light at the window sill. This is not enough for quick seeing and nimble fingers at work, and the addition of scientific lighting is the answer.

When a kitchen is light-conditioned, you do not stand at the sink or stove with your shadow falling on your work. There are side-wall fixtures or lamps with 60-watt bulbs over each work area, and a 100 or 150-watt bulb in the center ceiling fixture to give general lighting.

In the light-conditioned kitchen shown here, note the smartly-styled center ceiling fixture, the new "soft-fit" lighting above the sink, and a matching fixture at the cupboard.
