POLICE SCHOOL OPENS JUNE 15

Indiana State Police Training School To Open Wednesday

Indianapolis, June 13 — Ninety young men, selected in a rigorous series of physical and mental tests from more than 1200 applicants, will report Wednesday, June 15, at Indiana University at Bloomington for the five and one-half weeks' training school of the Indiana state police, Don F. Stiver, superintendent of state police, said today.

Forty of the highest ranking men in the recruit school will be assigned to duty with the police department, Mr. Stiver said.

Nearly 3000 men requested applications in the sixty day period preceding May 1, but less than half met the initial qualifications of height, weight, age and education. About 250 were called to Indiana University for mental examination in a three-hour army alpha test and the O'Rourke police aptitude test. Of this number, 160 passed with grades better than 80 per cent, and about 80 passed with grades over 90 per cent.

One man passed both tests with a perfect score, while a number received 99 per cent on both. All men with 80 per cent grades were again called in for an exhaustive physical examination, including the Wasserman test and fingerprinting, and for an interview with the state police board. The 90 survivors numbered among them Don Lash, famous U. S. track and distance runner.

Among those accepted for the school, 45 per cent have had college work in 24 different universities, including West Point, Notre Dame, Purdue, Indiana University, South Dakota State, Washington State, Butler, Central Normal, Indiana State Teachers' College, Ball State Teachers' College, DePauw, Washington and Jefferson, and many others.

Average age of the men was 24 years and 4 months, average height was five feet eleven and
