RESEARCH CLUB

MRS. C. D. LEWTON

The research club met at the home of Mrs. C. D. Lewton on North Second street Monday afternoon with eighteen members present. Mrs. L. A. Cowens discussed better speech.

Mrs. C. M. Prugh, program leader, presented the second paper on "Our Future Peace", reviewing in a most interesting manner the histories of Germany and Russia under the dictators Hitler and Stalin.

"The last of the Romanoffs, Tsar Nicholas, weak mentally and physically imitated his father in cruelty and oppression of the poor classes. He was disliked and his wife hated. When the world war came he was persuaded to abdicate. As he and his family were leaving the palace they were shot and their bodies burned."

"Immediately the leaders of the revolution over the government and communism was adopted. Each person from the dictator to the lowest is comrade. Russia swung to the extreme from the Romanoff policy. Communism persecuted the wealthy, ruling class. Their lands were confiscated, all power taken from them, many killed or in exile."

"The great dictators, Lenin, who since his death has been sainted and Stalin, while developing both national and international policies, have brought Russia into the path of progress, yet maintained the brutal policies of the Romanoffs. Russia's attitude is just as dominating as ever toward her neighboring countries."

In the second part of her paper Mrs. Prugh said, "The German monarchy fell during the world war and its Kaiser fled to Holland. He was a tactless ruler, talking too much and loving the light of publicity. He was stubborn and could not see his own mistakes. When he fled certain groups took charge of the government. Adolf Hitler, Austrian, was made leader. Not wanting communism they adopted nazism and the idea of both 'isms' is the same."

"Hitler started the youth movement, giving the youth of the country privileges never allowed before. He is very popular, loving the light of publicity and to dictate and dominate. His policy first and last is to expand, to grasp all lands he can and to regain colonies. He is fatalist without religion and is quietly drawing the youth away from the church. He, like Stalin, has 'purges' of anyone opposing him. He too can be brutal and cruel."

"If Russia and Germany should go to war what would the result be? Can Hitler be trusted? Can Stalin? If Russia and Germany should unite which would really rule? Were the Romanoffs any more brutal than the Stalins? Were the Holenzolens any more brutal than Hitler?"

Quite a rivalry going on between Mickey Rooney and Leo Gorcey of the "Dead End" kids. Rooney bought a prize-fighter, so now Gorcey has one, too, a 132-pound Indian boy named Roy Tarin. How about a match between the two proteges?

"The Shining Hour" gives Joan Crawford her most strenuous role in ages. She not only carries Margaret Sullivan out of a burning building—she really does it, too—but has to land a punch on Frankie Albertson's chin. In rehearsals, she missed his chin, hit his windpipe and he couldn't speak for 15 minutes.

When Maxie Rosenbloom decided to fly east to visit his parents during the Jewish holidays, his nightclub partner, Sammy Lewis, insured him for $100,000. . . Wasn't that Carol Parker with Walter Pidgeon at the Club Bali?

Thought she was going steady with Dennis O'Keefe. . . Beverly Hills is to have a new night club run by Wally Vernon, who is one of the town's better masters of ceremony when he isn't working before the camera. Understand some of the money for the club is being furnished by a razor blade manufacturer. . . Margaret Lindsay is getting two calls a day from Bob Abbot in New York. . . Marsha Hunt and Jerry Hopper had them at Travaglinis. Rumors twining it at Travaglinis. Rumors twining it at Travaglinis. Rumors twining it at Travaglinis.

When Ann Sheridan separated from Edward Norris, he kept the house, but the phone still was in her name. She recently had the number switched to her new place and has been getting Norris' calls, some of them from girls. Haw!

You can expect the marriage of Sigrid Gurie to Dr. Lawrence Spangard as soon as her divorce is final. They don't make any attempt to conceal the romance now.

Adriana Jasciotti, who was the voice of Snow White in the Disney movie, seems destined to remain invisible in the films. She has been engaged for "The Wizard of Oz", this time as a woodland voice which joins that of Tin Woodman Buddy Ebsen as he sings to Judy Garland: "If I Only Had a Heart".

Speaking of Disney, he has leased the Harmon-Ising cartoon studio on Seward street to house part of his units until his new studio is completed. The animators working on "Bambi" will be among those to move.

It will be 10 months before the first building is ready at the $2,000,000 Disney plant in Burbank. There will be 25 buildings in all. The studio site is about a mile from Warner Brothers.

If James Cagney's nerves were in a jitter after the New England

Ford company. During the past year, the union has brought charges against the company before the national labor relations board, alleging discrimination against its members in various assembly plants. The board found for the union and its decision is now being appealed. Only on Monday the company won a point when the supreme court granted its petition for a review of the sixth circuit court of appeals decision permitting the board to reopen one of the cases.

Martin left Bennett to confer with officials of General Motors and Chrysler. These conferences ended amicably and it was indicated that they would be renewed.

MANY MISSING IN FIRE AREA

Workers Gaining Control Over Northwest Forest Fires

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 12.—(U.P.)—Five thousand volunteers and CCC workers, aided by observers in airplanes, were gaining control today of brush and forest fires which have raged for two days over 700 square miles along the international border.

Seventeen persons already were dead and provincial police said many more were missing. It was not known whether those missing had fled to safety, were trapped or had perished in the flames and there seemed little chance of determining their fate until searchers can make their way to the center of the stricken area.

The fire region extended from a point north of Fort Frances southward across the border to Rosseau, Lake of the Woods and Koochiching counties in northern Minnesota.

Fort Frances and International Falls, the only large communities in the area, were threatened for a time but the danger abated when a 30-mile an hour wind, which had driven the fire out of control, died down.

The situation had eased today, fire fighters reported. They said several small fires had burned out and they believed they would be able to prevent other fires from spreading if winds do not rise again.

The hardest hit section was in Dance township, province of Ontario, 50 miles northwest of Fort Frances, where 13 of the victims were found. Twelve were members of the families of William, Frank and Noah La Belle, brothers.

The brothers were working on the fire line when their wives set out in a horse drawn wagon to remove themselves and their children from the danger area. But flames and fallen trees blocked the roads. They abandoned the wagon and continued on foot.

Hours later the bodies of Mrs. William La Belle and her five children and of Mrs. Noah La Belle and her four children were found a few feet apart on the remains of what had been a woodland path.

"They must have been overcome by smoke before they got far," Constable David Hamilton said. "The mothers' bodies were found over those of their smallest babies. Apparently they had attempted to use their own bodies to shield the children."

Maxine La Belle, 11, daughter of Frank La Belle, was found alive but died at a Fort Frances hospital from severe burns.

The other known dead were Orville Williams, Little Falls, Minn.; Fred Service, International Falls; Joe Dardin, International Falls; Benny Fultz, Dance township, and an unidentified settler near Fort Frances.

Ed Blackbird and Pete Accobee, Indian guides, penetrated a flaming woodland near Warroad, Minn., last night and rescued Mr. and Mrs. Grant Abshire, an aged couple whose home was surrounded by fires. The couple had been given up for dead.

alysis of economic, legislative and politics," and said crisply that it is a "bit confusing." He complained that the report sought to place the federation on record in opposition to the Borah-O'Mahoney general licensing act which the A. F. of L. previously had endorsed.

Woll jumped to his feet protesting that Lynch was in error and that the report represented the views of the entire committee. Frey vigorously denied that it

K. P. Initiatory Work Is Postponed

Due to the necessary absence of several members of the initiatory team, the initiation and dance planned at the Knights of Pythias home for Thursday night has been postponed. The regular meeting at 7:30 o'clock, however, will be held.

Green put the question. There was a chorus of "aye" to the motion to recommend, and a few "nays." Green wasn't satisfied and called for a louder vote. A moment later the room echoed with the demand that the report be sidetracked.

Frey, who drafted much of the report, stared angrily. Woll arose, his face flushed, and read the names of the signatories to the report. Green banged his gavel and guided the rebellious delegates into less explosive issues.

The ill-fated report in addition to failing to criticize the president, twice emphasized that the committee did not question the "sincerity of motive" involved.

With delegates milling about the hall and with the convention in turmoil, William McSorley, Cleveland, Ohio, of the wood, wire and lathers, offered an amendment to the report which would shunt the report back to the executive council from which it will not emerge until next year, if then.

Again Woll took the floor, not to oppose the amendment, he said, but to warn that "there is a new philosophy in government today."

"This report is not and was not intended to be an attack on the administration," he said. "It is not criticism of what has gone before. It is a warning of what may come. It was intended to make people think about the government philosophies of the day."

"Vote!" came the cry from all sides.

Green recognized John A. Franklin, delegate of the boiler-makers, who proposed that action be deferred until the report was printed. He was promptly ruled

Value of New Air Safety Device

This diagram shows the value of the terrain clearance indicator to aviation. The device was tested on a series of flights over New York and pronounced a success. The apparatus is a device to prevent disastrous air crashes such as have occurred recently in mountainous regions. In flight, the old altimeter (height indicator) told the airman his height above sea level only. The new indicator tells him how high he is above the terrain over which he is flying.
