

START YOUR NEW YEAR RIGHT

Many a husband and wife vow they will get up a family budget, plan their expenditure to fit the income and save systematically. But they too often put it off to "next year," when things "straighten out a bit." The value of a budget plan for family income and expenses is greatest just when things are not "straightened out." And budgeting, contrary to popular belief, doesn't involve a lot of book-keeping. It can be made simple and a lot of fun, besides its great practical value in conserving funds and putting the money where it does the most good.

Our Service Bureau at Washington has a carefully compiled booklet on FAMILY BUDGETING, that tells exactly how to go about constructing the budget and the simple recording that is necessary to keep the family income working for you to its maximum benefit.

Well-Designed Small Home

This comfortable well-planned home in New Jersey was appraised by the Federal Housing Administration at $5,250 and was financed with a mortgage insured by FHA for $4,200, with amortization over a 15-year period. The floor arrangement provides a good degree of privacy, with access to the bath from all rooms without the necessity of traversing another room.

kings was boosted upstairs from the WPA administratorship before a barrage of congressional protests against political relief activities in the 1938 campaign began.

The "lame duck" complaint also embraced former Sen. James P. Pope, D., Idaho, who made a one-term new deal record for himself but was retired to private life in last November's Democratic primary. Mr. Roosevelt named Pope to the board of the Tennessee valley authority, from which Arthur E. Morgan was ousted on charges of "contumacy."

The president indicated he had not made up his mind whether to risk embarrassing defeat by submitting the name of Donald Wakefield Smith to the senate for another term as member of the national labor relations board. Opposition senators insist they have the votes to reject that nomination.

Other confirmation fireworks are being reserved for relatively unimportant nominations in Virginia and Nevada. Sens. Carter Glass, D., Va., Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., and Pat McCarran, D., Nev., anti-new dealers all, construe those particular appointments as rewards to their political enemies extended by the administration in punishment for votes against Roosevelt bills. Congressional dispute also is developing generally in connection with spending, national defense and modification of the new deal, including the national labor relations act. Mr. Roosevelt has subordinated the administration economic bloc. Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, reconstruction finance corporation chairman Jesse Jones and like-minded budget balancers are on the outside looking in. The president is committed to the pump-priming program urged by new deal moderates and left wingers and, notably, by chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board.

His $9,000,000,000 1940 fiscal year budget is a pump-priming instrument about which congress will wrangle but actually fail to alter materially.

Mr. Roosevelt is convinced that his spending plan has trapped the budget balancers. He is convinced that congress has neither the will nor the temerity to cut government costs materially. But congress will battle for control of the spending steam and in that contest may win, without much comforting the taxpayers.

Hear President's Message

John W. Hanes, Sumner Welles and Harry Woodring

Among prominent members of the official government family in Washington to hear the president's message before a joint session of congress were three, left to right, John W. Hanes, assistant secretary of the treasury; Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, and Harry Woodring, secretary of war.

Noted Stage Star Dies Of Injuries

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—(U.P.)—Walter C. Kelly, known on the stage as "The Virginia Judge" died at Women's college hospital today from injuries suffered in a Hollywood automobile accident. Kelly was brought here by plane Dec. 23 after he failed to show improvement from his injuries. While dodging a truck in the motion picture capital, Kelly tripped and fell, striking his head against a curbstone.
