

Weather A Week Ahead

As Forecast By PROF. SELBY MAXWELL, Noted Meteorologist

TEMPERATURE AND RAINFALL FOR INDIANA.

FEBRUARY 27 to MARCH 5.

Most of Indiana will be warm, with a small cool area over the extreme West central portion. Part of the Southwest area will be normal. The Northwest portions of Indiana will be dry. The Northeast parts of the central and West central area will be wet, but moderately wet over most of the Southwest sections. The remaining areas will be normal.

STONE AGE MEN KNEW COLD WEATHER

Many of the clothes you wear and the things you use are the results of inventions inspired by what? That's right, the weather. Good needles were in use in the Stone Age, and people made warm clothing out of dressed skins twenty thousand years ago, and a bodkin purchased in a department store and used for the illustration of this story today differs in no essential respect from a Stone Age needle. The thread of those days was probably reindeer sinew, but it is not impossible that twisted vegetable fibers were used. The Stone Age in Europe was a time of bitter cold weather. Scandinavia was under ice, like Greenland is today, and the mountains of Switzerland, France and Spain were white with snow the year round. Wild reindeer and wild horses were the source of food and clothing. There were other animals too. The hairy elephant was known and perhaps the woolly rhinoceros was not yet completely extinct. Great herds of wild bison, like our American bison of the Great Plains, roamed the plains and forests. Cave men hunted all these animals for food, but they had to share their hunting with such ugly beasts as the cave bear, the Siberian wolf, the

Couple Escape Brick Avalanche

A few seconds after Mr. and Mrs. Alec Zberajeski of Pittsburgh, Pa., quit this bed to close windows because of the sudden rise of a gale, it was struck by a barrage of bricks from a collapsing wall. They escaped with head injuries.

Boys Sabotage Tree
Portland, Me. (UPI) — Arthur S. Jordan was justifiably proud of a 25-foot evergreen on his lawn. But that was before two enterprising 11-year old boys sawed off its top.
