HOLLINGSWORTH HOSTESS TO CLUB

Historical club met at the home of Mrs. Harl Hollingsworth yesterday afternoon, with fifteen members answering the roll call. The president, Mrs. J. B. Butler, presided. After the current events were in the hands of the leader, Mrs. Gilles V. Porter gave an interesting paper on "Out of Waste." "Every day," she said, "we are carrying on an end-war search for ways to make life better and the rest of the world more pleasant and comfortable. We are providing new and better ways to lower prices, to end waste, to demoralize crop surplus, to build new markets and new ways for the benefit of agriculture, capital and labor. The following are some results.

From the skimmed cream made from cottonseed oil, we have saved millions of dollars for research, which was a wonderful aid to our many expert chemists developing new products and new ways in using our surplus products, especially cotton.

The United States is short on sugar and just last June an agreement was made with Great Britain to exchange $30,000,000 worth of cotton for rubber valued at $30,000,000. From the goldenrod, which the newly elected officers are working to find some method of making rubber.

"One of America's greatest wastes is that of cornstarch and straw. At the present time, wall board for interior decorating of buildings is being manufactured. Paper is also made from the stalks of farm crops. It is more expensive than from wood pulp but of a much higher quality.

"From the soy bean fifty different products are made such as paints, breakfast foods, soaps, margarine, spray, ink, flour, candles, lubricating oil, rubber, and food for babies.

"So through study, work and a long and painful process of trial, Uncle Sam's scientists are on the job, seeking to increase the happiness and prosperity of the nation."

After the program and business meeting, Betty Jean Hollingsworth played the piano solos, "Little Red Wagon" and "The Big Bass Horn." Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

The club will meet next week with Mrs. Wilson Beery, with Mrs. Sam Hite as leader.

GEODE CLUB HAS MEETING

The members of the Geode club held their monthly meeting in the General Electric club rooms Monday evening. The theme of the party was Columbus Day.

A delicious dinner was served by candlelight at tables cleverly decorated with bittersweet, miniature ships and flags. During the dinner Miss Helen DeWitt of Van Wert entertained at the piano.

After dinner an impressive candlelight ceremony was held during which the newly elected officers took the oath of office. They are

The group decided to give a play with the following committee in charge: Paul Holle, Evelyn Schroeder, Katherine Weiland and Robert Biberich. Paul Holle was appointed news reporter for the Booster, which is the Zion paper.

MRS. SAMANTHA NICHOLS HAS 81ST ANNIVERSARY

A delightful surprise was given last evening at the Methodist church honoring Mrs. Samantha Nichols on the occasion of her eighty-first birthday anniversary. The surprise was planned by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alva Nichols, assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Arthur Myers and Mrs. Alfred Beavers. The guests included members of the Mary and Martha class of the Methodist Sunday school and a few intimate friends.

Mrs. Nichols, who is an active member of the class and in the very best of health, was immensely surprised when she was invited to the entertaining rooms. The table was most attractively decorated with black and yellow candles and other decorations carrying out the Halloween motif. A beautiful bouquet of fall flowers marked the place of the guest of honor, who also received many pretty gifts as well as a gift from the class. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Nichols, assisted by her daughters and Mrs. L. E. Annen. Two birthday cakes were baked for the occasion by Mrs. Samantha Nichols' granddaughters, Mrs. Beavers and Mrs. Meyers.

Preceding the luncheon, Rev. R. W. Graham made appropriate remarks and a short talk was also given by Mrs. W. O. Little, president of the class.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD — For the first time since Europe went to war, Bona Massey has received a letter from her mother, who lives in Hungary. The communication originally was two pages long, but censors had blotted out all but three lines.

"We are well," they read. "Father and all your uncles send love. Don't worry about us. . . . Mother."

Pretty grim when you realize that Hungary is supposed to be a neutral country.

Cary Grant steadfastly denies the latest reports that he and Phyllis Brooks are married. "We may be soon," he told me at Columbia, "but there are still several problems to be worked out. For instance, suppose I had to go to war. It wouldn't be fair to Phyllis to marry her and then to leave her for maybe two or three years."

The case of Linda Darnell is getting to be more of a Cinderella story every day. Originally the billing of "Daytime Wife" was supposed to read: "Tyronne Power in 'Daytime Wife,' with Linda Darnell, Binnie Barnes, etc." But Darryl Zanuck has so much confidence in his new discovery that he now has decided to co-star her with Tyronne.

Amazing progress even for Hollywood, where fame comes over night.

Her approaching marriage to rich and socially prominent Bob Howard hasn't changed Andrea Leeds a bit. She has chosen Marie Toomey, her stand-in "Swanee River," to be a bridesmaid at her wedding.

Under the new California law, half of the earnings of a child star must go into a trust fund. Roy Henville, father of Universal's Baby Sandy, will do better than this. He says that every dollar earned by the youngster will be laid aside. This means not only her film salary, but also the large sum that will be coming in from commercial tieups. (This item alone is estimated close to $50,000 for the year.)

"Nothing will be deducted even for the baby's support. I have a good job and I can take care of that myself," says Henville, who recently has been promoted from a one of the class. Several musical numbers were given by the Stearns trio. Billy Graham sang a song, written by his mother, honoring Mrs. Nichols. He was accompanied at the piano by his brother. Forty-five members and guests attended the affair.

ZION LUTHERAN MISSIONARY MEETING

The Zion Lutheran missionary society met in the social rooms of the church Wednesday afternoon with twenty-two members and one guest present.

Mrs. Raymond Lutz, vice-president, opened the meeting by reading the 67th Psalm. During the business meeting the ladies were reminded of the church supper October 28. The price of 35c was decided upon. The November meeting will be a guest day and all members were asked to plan to attend.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Hugh Engle, who had as her topic "Marionette, the Wife of a Wicked Monarch." At the close of the interesting paper refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ed Bauer and Mrs. Ted Bonifas.

MRS. WILLIAM BELL HOSTESS TO HER CLUB

Seventeen members of the Ladies' Shakespeare club met at the home of Mrs. William Bell Wednesday and enjoyed an interesting talk by the leader for the afternoon, Mrs. Lois Black.

Mrs. Black, who had had the pleasure of visiting Greenfield Village at Dearborn, Michigan, and Spring Mills Park in southern Indiana was able to give a fresh and vivid description of the two places.

"Edison Institute is an educational project founded by Henry Ford and named for his friend, the late world famous inventor Thomas Edison. It occupies more than 200 acres and is comprised of three parts, the museum, Greenfield Village and the school system."

Of the second part of her subject Mrs. Black said, "dreams of Indiana conservation of 1916 have crystallized into an enormous state industry to serve the nature loving public. The addition of Spring Mills park hotel marked the sixth state system. The park has not only natural scenery, caves and virgin forests but a village of crude structures which makes it resemble a museum rather than a real town."

Roll call and current events preceded the afternoon's program. The meeting next week will be held at millman to a sales official in a local dairy.

Priscilla Lane and Wayne Morris, who once were engaged, will make screen love to each other in "Brother Rat and a Baby," and will marry at the end of the story. Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, still real life sweethearts, also will wed in this film.

After all the talk of Europe, South America, Honolulu, etc., Carole Lombard and Clark Gable will settle on a trip to New York. They'll probably get away as soon as Carole finishes "Virgil in the Night" at R-K-O.

Looks as if Helen Parrish is definitely concentrating on Forrest Tucker, who has come out here from Virginia with movie ambitions. They are dating each other every night.

Although it's no romance, Stokowski is said to be very much interested in the career of M-G-M's Miliza Korjus. They met in San Francisco, when she went to sing at the fair, and Stokowski was so impressed that he has offered to help arrange an appearance for the star on a national radio broadcast.

Incidentally, Miliza's first Hollywood picture, "The Great Waltz," is being released in Europe, where there is now a great demand for musicals.

Shirley Temple gets two weeks' vacation from her French lessons because her teacher, Paula Walling, has married and has gone to Mexico on a honeymoon. . . . There's an elevator operator named Robert Taylor in the Equitable building in Hollywood. He has to keep his license on display and the ribbers make his life miserable. . . . Thieves broke into Grant Mitchell's place near Mojave and stole all the furnishings. As soon as he finishes "The Secret of Dr. Kildare," Mitchell is going to move the house to a lot in Van Nuys before that is stolen, too. . . . Patricia Ellis and Henry Wilson were back together again at the Victor Hugo. . . . Virginia Grey's sister, Pauline, is mother of a six-pound baby girl. . . . In "The Fighting 69th," James Cagney and Sammy Cohen jabber in Yiddish. Cagney speaks it better than Cohen. . . . You can make a bet that Martha Raye will be a sensation on her personal appearance tour. She's a great entertainer, even if her films haven't set the world afire. . . . The other day, only one picture was working at Paramount and the commissary at Parnam was practically empty. Bob Hope came in, took a look around, and said: "I feel like a scab being here today."

The meeting of the Eta Tau Sigma sorority, which was to have been held at the home of Mrs. Sigurd Anderson next Tuesday, will be held with Mrs. George Helm.
