lightship, two armed destroyers off Great Yarmouth, the 910-ton steamer Jersey Queen, the 8,402-ton tanker British Triumph and the 4,553-ton Collier Corydon all were attacked off the east coast. Seventeen men of the armed trawler crews were missing.

A seaman from the steamer Gripfast, which went to the aid of the Stanburn, said that a rope was thrown to the shipwrecked crew, huddled on a raft, but that their hands were too frozen to hold it. The rescuers watched helplessly while the Stanburn men were washed into the sea.

Other victims included seven reported killed Monday during an attack on the Lightship Rigoletto.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
King Features Syndicate Writer
HOLLYWOOD. — Despite the number of German submarines sunk, there still is plenty of danger on the high seas. Five companies refused to insure $90,000 worth of antiques that Director Tim Whelan is shipping from England to the United States.

Harrison Carroll

A sixth company consented to issue a policy, but for the record premium of $17,000.

Whelan, long a worker at the British studios but now in Hollywood directing "Destiny" for Paramount, paid the premium and will install the costly furnishings (90 crates of them) in a house he will build in Brentwood.

It's a very funny story they are telling on Victor McLaglen's giant son, Andrew. When the boy became engaged, he was very nervous about telling his mother. So he finally broke the news by making a home recording and getting her to play it on the phonograph while he was away from the house.

Isn't it just like Hollywood? After searching far and wide for an actress to play the girl in "Our Town," Sol Lesser finally hired Martha Scott who created the role on Broadway.

Heard an interesting story about Martha. Out of her first studio pay check, she is sending $100 to Miss Ida B. Lilly, Kansas City school teacher. When Martha decided to go on the stage, her family didn't have the money to back her until she became established. But Martha's teacher volunteered to do it. Over a period of four years, she loaned the actress $1,500. The money Martha sends her now represents the last payment of the debt.

Carole Lombard and Clark Gable leave for Mexico. They drive in the new station wagon that is Clark's birthday present from Carole. Destination of the stars is a spot about 100 miles below Ensenada. Some of the roads are little better than cow paths and many of the natives down there have never seen a motion picture. On the last trip down, Clark says that he and Carole weren't recognized once.

Most poignant fan letter of the year comes to Harold Lloyd from a man in Peoria, Ill. He says that he and his four children have been in tuberculosis hospitals and have been advised by doctors that they should go to Arizona to live.

The father offers to sell one of his eyes to any person facing blindness, who will supply the money for the trip.

Ought to make a great human interest story for the Peoria papers. If they are interested, we can supply the man's name and address.

It's a boy for Shirley Hughes, Myrna Loy's stand-in, and her husband, Ray Ramsey, second cameraman on "Edison the Man." If the stork had delivered a girl, Myrna would have had a namesake.

Cora Witherspoon, the character actress who suffered a leg injury eight months ago, returns to the screen in "I Was an Adventuress," but, in the meanwhile, her hair has turned completely white. . . Lots of excitement at the Grace Hayes Lodge when a drunk heckled Singers Odette Myrtle and Helen Parrish's boy friend, Forrest Tucker.

The men were separated before serious damage was done. . . After trying vainly to keep track of who has been divorced from whom, Arthur Murray concludes that marriage in Hollywood isn't a custom, it's a habit. . . Add to newsy twosomes: Liliana and Lew Brice at the Club 17; Anne Nagel and Elliot Daniel (Rudy Vallee's piano player) at Sardi's; Lona Andre and Billy Seymour at the House of Murphy; Olivia De Havilland and Anatole Litvak at the Trocadero. He was kissing her hand on the dance floor, too. . . Frank Fay's show amused the Troc customers the other night. . . especially his rendition of "The Darktown Strutter's Ball," as John Charles Thomas might sing it. . . The long-awaited premiere of Disney's "Pinocchio" will be a Feb. 9 event at the Hollywood Pantages. . . And here's a laugh. . . Mickey Rooney met Lois Andrews coming back on the train from the east. He's been telephoning her a lot and, when she isn't in, he leaves the message: "Rhett Butler called."

FEDERAL AID 17 MILLIONS

State Programs Aided By Funds From Federal Government

Indianapolis, Jan. 31 — Funds supplied by the federal government to assist state programs in Indiana amounted to $17,569,504 during the fiscal year 1939, Clarence Manion, Indiana director of the office of government reports, disclosed today.

The funds were used to operate such federal-state programs as highway improvement; agricultural experiment stations; aid to the aged, and to dependent, needy or incapacitated children.

Manion's report was made known in conjunction with the annual publication of an itemized accounting of federal contributions to agencies operating on a federal-state or a federal-state-local co-operative expenditure basis.

Manion said that the number of state programs which receive federal contributions has doubled during the past seven years. New programs sharing the federal expenditures are those for the aged, the blind, dependent children, crippled children, mothers with infants, the needy, the unemployed, and the ill-house.

Older programs receiving increased amounts from the federal government were those for the improvement and maintenance of through highways and farm-to-market roads, agricultural experiment stations and agricultural schools; the state home for soldiers and sailors, and the vocational education and rehabilitation of disabled persons.

Following are the Indiana agencies benefiting from these federal aid grants and the amount received during the fiscal year 1939:

State highway commission, $4,788,817; aid to the aged, $5,559,722; aid to the blind, $296,820; aid to dependent children, $1,746,979; maternal and child health services, $78,163; child welfare services, $70,299; services for crippled children, $37,345.

Vocational education and rehabilitation of disabled persons, $508,450; surplus commodities (value), $3,943,695; state employment service, $705,744; state home for soldiers and sailors, $16,470; and local housing authorities (loans closed), $417,000.

Manion stated that the emergency relief agencies which operate projects sponsored locally and to which local contributions are made, are omitted from this group as their primary aim is relief.

2—With the above fact in mind the City Officials request that prospective users accept such service with a clear understanding that no control measures or responsibilities other than those stated above can be assumed by the Water or Health Departments.

LIQUOR HEADS PLAN SURVEY

Plan Survey Of Legislators For Views On Liquor Question

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—A survey of state and national legislators on their opinion on the liquor question was planned today by the Indiana retail alcohol beverage dealers association after a one-day meeting here.

The group also planned to question candidates for state legislative and congressional offices in what was classified as their first move toward political participation.

A warning that "professional" drunks were "boring into small towns and rural communities" in an attempt to obtain local option was sounded by Harold C. Feightner, executive secretary of the Indiana Brewers' association. He said the dealers must avoid an "it-can't-happen here" attitude.

He praised the Indiana liquor law as "one of the best if not the best" in the United States, and from the first attack in a "long time" by a German submarine on a British naval convoy.

"Very differently from the German practice, we saved the majority of the crew," he said.

Regarding the navy, he said: "It is today as always in our history the first line of defense of these islands."

"At the present time," he continued, "at home, in France, in India and in other stations overseas upon our vital lines of imperial communications we have upwards of 1,250,000 men under arms."

Indicating the extent of naval activity since the war started, Chamberlain said that one British battleship already had covered 34,000 miles.

In the first 120 days of war, he said, one cruiser was at sea 102 days and one destroyer for 103 days in succession.

German merchantmen have to pass through a sea area 1,000 miles wide between the North Scotland coast and Greenland in order to reach home and this area is continuously patrolled by the British navy with increasing success," he said.

Chamberlain denounced German aerial attacks on what he described as fighting boats and light-houses as "cowardly."
