Important Meeting Planned At Portland

TVA Expert To Speak At Meeting Thursday

A meeting of importance to farmers, nutritionists, teachers, wildlife enthusiasts, sportsmen, conservationists, and many others, will be held March 15 at the high school auditorium in Portland. It has been announced by county agent L. E. Archbold, who is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

The speaker will be W. M. Landess, department of agricultural relations, Tennessee Valley Authority. Landess, a widely known lecturer and writer on the subject of soil conservation, has the ability to portray, in an interesting and vivid manner, the inter-relationships of man and the soil, the forests, the water, and the lesser living things, which, through wise management, furnish existence for the creatures of the earth. His philosophy on conservation of the land and of other natural resources has gained wide attention among agriculturists.

The meeting will start promptly at 7:30 p. m. with a band concert provided by the Portland high school. At 8 p. m. Mr. Landess will present his lecture, illustrated with pictures. He is appearing at Portland under sponsorship of Purdue University agricultural extension service by Jay, Randolph, Delaware, Blackford, Wells and Adams counties.

Red Cross Supplies To War Prisoners

Geneva, Switzerland. — A prisoner of war supply train supplied by the Swiss government carrying fifty carloads of food, medicines, and bandages to a distribution point at Moosburg, Germany, was due to leave Switzerland last week, according to American Red Cross representatives here.

The first truck convoy from Switzerland into Germany carrying prisoner of war supplies was scheduled to leave March 7, moving through Constance Meensburg. Moosburg, north of Munich, is the city nearest Stalag VII-A, which is a large camp with numerous divisions for various nationalities. Approximately 10,000 Americans are believed to be held there at present. 4,000 of whom were moved recently from Stalag Luft III, previously the largest American airman's camp in Germany.

A total of 30,000 hours of service was donated to the city of Seattle in 1944 by 430 members of the civilian auxiliary police

BROADWAY NIGHTS By AXEL STORM

Distributed by King Features, Inc.

NEW YORK. — Last week's lone venture, something called "Calico Wedding," was unveiled at the National Theatre the other night by Lester Meyer and Richard Myers and proved to be a turkey of the purest ray. It presented, for one thing, Miss Grete Mosheim, a lady from the arty purloins of Vienna, who chewed more scenery per line than even Mr. Oscar Karlweis, and that puts them into the running with the carpet-chewing fuhrer. Mr. Karlweis, as you know, plays a role called Jacobowsky in a play called "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," and if it weren't for the fact that Mr. Louis Calhern plays the military gentleman, the play could easily have been called "Jacobowsky."

But to get back to Miss Mosheim: She's the wife of a budding advertising man who apparently started at the bottom of the ladder with a salary of ten thousand dollars a year, cooking up slogans for a certain body building Abercrombie. He appeared to be doing okay when the war came along and he clipped in. As a captain in the wastes of the frozen north, he wonders what one night do and think about one's wife's loyalty, so to speak, and the subject causes him considerable worry. He confides this to his lieutenant pal and the latter warns him that that way lies madness. So, as the author of "Calico Wedding," Mr. Sheridan Gibney, might have said, confession being good for the soul, the captain confesses and tells his story, which turns out to be a three-act flashback.

It appears that in a beglomed moment the captain met a lady of Dutch descent, fell in love with her and plucked her from the midst of a quartet of ardent admirers. On the occasion of their second wedding anniversary the lady, now rather lorn by the fact that her husband pays more attention to the Abercrombie keef system than to her charming person, decides to toss a party celebrating the calico wedding — or maybe you're one of those people who know that the second anniversary is calico. The gimmick in this bingie is that she had invited none but the quartet of stags, just to punish the husband for his neglect. Apparently the lady thought that in having the

Why most of America's freight travels by Railroad!

Wheels on smooth steel rails . . . the basic reason why your Railroads are America's great mass transportation system. Through the use of rails huge quantities of freight can be hauled long distances at lowest possible cost. By rail a single piece of motive power moves thousands of tons of freight as one unit.

That's why today 75% of America's freight is carried by railroad . . . why this truly great principle of mass transportation which has contributed so much to America's progress, will continue to be essential to the Nation's growth and prosperity.

And, to provide even finer service for the shippers of America's freight, Erie will make fullest possible use of every advantage that modern research and engineering skill can offer.
