ROBERT HANNEGAN, above, is being mentioned in Washington as President Harry S. Truman's choice for one of two positions, observers speculating that the Democratic national chairman may succeed Postmaster General Frank Walker or he may be selected by Truman to play a role similar to that of Harry Hopkins in the administration under Roosevelt. (International)

WITH A "WALKIE TALKIE" as his pipe, Sgt. Robert Cooper, Syracuse, N. Y., plays the role of a modern Fied Piper of Hamelin town, "piping" a herd of Nazi prisoners of war through the streets of the town where the legendary piper of ancient times played the rats to their doom. Guarding the column are Cpl. Leonard Armato, left, Riverside, N. J., and Pfc. Clifton Baker, Harrietsville, O. (International)

U. S. ARMY ENGINEERS have named their treadway bridge, which they built across the Elbe river, the Truman bridge in honor of the new president of the United States. The Yanks are shown putting the finishing touches on the sign they have erected to mark the treadway, over which men and supplies are pouring to finish the battle that has Berlin as its goal. This is a U. S. army signal corps radiophone.
