

Accidental Deaths In State Total Five

Three Traffic, Two Drowning Victims

By United Press
Three persons died in Indiana as a result of injuries received in traffic accidents and two others drowned during the weekend.

At Marion, Harold L. Curtis, 17, drowned Sunday while swimming in Lake Wanna. Deputies from sheriff Lora Tuckett's office recovered the body.

Robert Orwick, 14, Corydon, was drowned when a car he was driving overturned in a pond a short distance from Corydon.

Two persons were struck by cars in Indianapolis and a Gary railroad policeman was killed in a head-on collision at Michigan City.

Clifford C. Smith, 47, was struck by a car in Indianapolis and died enroute to a hospital Sunday morning.

Clyde Miller, 61, Indianapolis, died Sunday from injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at an Indianapolis intersection.

William J. Filan, 54, the policeman, was killed instantly when his car struck one driven by Nathan Rubenstein, Chicago attorney, a mile south of Michigan City Saturday afternoon. Rubenstein's wife and two children were injured slightly.

It is up to us to keep the windows of our soul so clean that the light of hope and joy can shine in.

Striking while the iron is hot is all right, but too many men strike while the head is hot.

WORLD CHARTER

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., said he believed the question could be settled by writing into the bill the terms under which the delegate shall function. He proposed that the delegate be empowered to vote for the use of force only under direction of the president and that the president simultaneously notify congress of his instructions.

The size and character of the force in question will not be decided until later. The charter provides that member nations shall make such forces available through subsequent agreements with the security council after needs have been determined by a combined military staff.

There may be an attempt to write in stipulations that American troops remain under purely American control and limit their use to the western hemisphere.

Finally, there is the question of whether such agreements with the council should be regarded as treaties requiring a two-third vote of the senate for ratification.

BIG THREE ARE

Although Mr. Truman opposes secret deals, it was believed likely that the big three's decisions in military matters would become known only as they take effect in the months to come. Outside this category, however, the president was expected to tell all in his report to the nation.

Rosenman probably will accompany the president back to the United States and in the course of the trip assist him in the preparation of his report. The adviser arrived in Potsdam several days ago and already has informed Mr. Truman on latest trends in the United States.

Details of the progress of the big three conference were more obscure than ever. Official announcements made known only that the conference was continuing and that the foreign secretaries of the three countries met yesterday.

(Radio Luxembourg said a Polish delegation arrived in Potsdam yesterday, leading to speculation that Poland's western boundaries were being discussed.)

FSA Activities In Indiana Reported

The Adams county farm security administration committee, composed of Henry Rumpke, route 2, Berne; Edward L. Arnold, route 2, Decatur, and Alfred Rauch, route 1, Decatur, has received from the Indiana FSA office at Lafayette a summary report of the activities of the farm security administration borrowers, employees, and farmer committeemen in Indiana during the war period of the last three and one-half years.

This report to the 92 farmer advisory committees by E. H. Shideler, state FSA director, indicates the following FA achievements in Indiana since Pearl Harbor:

Rehabilitated 6,412 farm families from borrowers into the paid-up class.

Collected repayments on operating loans totaling $4,140,966.

Made new operating loans during the same period of $4,861,869 to increase war food production.

Made special floor restoration loans to farmers in six different counties where major flood losses were incurred.

Made 219 farm-purchase loans to tenant farmer families so that they could be graduated into the farm-ownership group. Further graduated 53 tenant-purchase families to holders of clear-title deeds by collecting in full the farm purchase price. This last achievement is considered especially noteworthy because these loans were set up on a 40-year repayment schedule at the time they were made, and none of the 53 who have paid in full made their original contract prior to the 1938 year crop.

Made farm operating loans to 36 returned veterans of World War II, and farm ownership loans to two others, in order that these servicemen could return to farming after their discharge.

Followed rigid hold-the-line policies against land price inflation by refusing to make loans for the purchase of farms at prices greater than their long-time agricultural values.

Trained and maintained county committees for certifying agricultural loans under the G. I. bill of rights.

Maintained educational and planning services for FSA borrowers as well as collections in every county throughout the state despite the fact that FSA in the state worked with approximately 45 percent less employees than immediately before Pearl Harbor, and has lost many of its trained agricultural personnel to the armed forces. More than 40 FSA employees in the state have been inducted into military services.

FSA borrowers throughout the state have materially increased their food production despite wartime handicaps such as fewer and older pieces of equipment and frequently without limestone and fertilizers they needed for peak production. Many FSA borrowers in the state have won awards offered by their communities or counties for production increases.

Of even greater satisfaction than any of the above, according to Director Shideler, is the fact that the FSA borrowers, on the average, have greatly increased their security on the land, their incomes, and their net worth. They have improved their living standards, assumed greater responsibility toward the community, and are participating more actively in community activities.

The FSA office for Adams county is at Room 8, K. of C. Building, Decatur. A. Leigh Bowen is the head of the office and is the FSA supervisor for this territory.

want to be "coddled." Mr. Truman called the soldiers "a lot more level-headed than some people who represent them." He reminded American troops of their postwar duty to the nation, saying that the duties of a soldier and a civilian parallel.

He declined to discuss the Big Three conference with reporter Sgt. Ernest Leiser, because he wished to report directly to the American nation upon returning to Washington.

Mr. Truman, returned to the question of rehiring veterans and said that if employers did not cooperate there was government machinery to make them. He added, however, that it was still "up to the individual" as to whether he found work.

Mishawaka Mother Dies Of Injuries

South Bend, Ind., July 30—(UP)—Mrs. Fred Ogden, 29, Mishawaka, died today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident July 23, which killed Robert E. Cunningham, 21, Mishawaka, discharged war veteran. Mrs. Ogden was the mother of three children. Robert J. Burke, 25, Plymouth, was released under $2,000 bond in connection with the accident.

Browder Ousted As Communist Leader

Break With Truman Administration Seen

Washington, July 30—(UP)—American communists are under new management today and preparing to renew their class warfare here at home just as soon as Japan is licked.

Next expected development is an open break with the Truman administration.

A three-day convention of the communist political association ended Saturday night in New York. The communists announced yesterday that they had deposed Earl Browder, their long time leader, and had put William Z. Foster at the head of affairs. Foster is a veteran class war maker. They also announced the death of the CPA and the re-birth of the communist party—a political organization.

The party went out of the political business in May, 1944 under Browder's leadership and turned itself into an "association". At that time it announced a program of cooperation with private enterprise and the capitalistic society which distinguishes the economy of the United States. Foster protested at the time and now after 14 months has reversed the 1944 decision. All of this was accomplished by aid of a bitter denunciation of Browder and his policies written by Jacques Duclos, a French communist leader, who recently returned to Paris from Moscow.

Browder is being sent by the communists to a spiritual Siberia, although his party membership evidently was not cancelled. This change in the direction of communist thinking is the third spectacular reversal of the party line in four years.

From the moment of the outbreak of the war in September, 1939, until June, 1941 American communists conducted an aggressive and bitter campaign of parades, demonstrations and strikes against American aid to Great Britain and, later, production for our own national defense. For days before Hitler's unexpected invasion of the Soviet Union on June 21, 1941, communist-inspired demonstrators had been picketing the White House in protest against the "imperialist war." Their banners contained such slogans as "The Yanks are not coming."

When word came that midnight of the German blow at Russia almost immediately the communist party line here became 100 percent anti-Hitler and 100 percent pro-war. They whooped it up for an all-out national effort to lick fascism.

HOW SMART PEOPLE AND JACK BENNY LATCH ON TO THEIR MONEY

by Fred Allen

1. Smart people hang on to their money by buying War Bonds—and holding them. Jack Benny does, too. But don't let that stop you. Buy some anyway. All high-class people do this. For example, I do. Lowlifes like Benny imitate us upper-crust denizens by buying Bonds just so they can get their picture in the Police Gazette.

3. The boys coming back from Europe and Okinawa probably won't lope up to you breathlessly and dangle a medal around your neck for buying War Bonds, but you can bet your bottom jaw they won't give you the water cure, either. They know the importance of Bonds—they buy enough every month themselves to make Benny's toupees turn green.

4. The laziest way in the world to make extra money is to let those War Bonds accumulate interest. You get back 133% on your original investment in ten years. So let all your spare cash mooze away in War Bonds. If you must tuck something under your mattress, try your mother-in-law.

5. And don't think because your Aunt Cracklethroat's tea leaves spelled "rat" last Sunday that the end of this war is in sight. It's not even within swooning distance. So make like Benny and pinch that penny. Or, as the farsighted zoo keeper said to the careless elephant keeper, "Till V-J day, hoard that hay!" Then, keep hoarding till the Bonds mature.
