

GEN. WAINWRIGHT

Tex., his aide-de-camp, and T. Sgt. Hubert Carroll, Paris, Tex. From the Pentagon, Wainwright drove past playing bands and cheering throngs to the monument grounds to receive the grateful tribute his government and countrymen had waited 3½ years to give him.

Hot and sticky weather did not discourage the crowds which began gathering on the monument grounds and along the route of march hours before Wainwright arrived.

At the monument ceremony, Wainwright had just completed a private, personal report on his imprisonment to secretary of war Henry L. Stimson and was ready to speak his mind about his captors.

He received the keys to the city and spoke of the warmth of his reception and his pride at returning from the "black-out world of our prison days"—which he left about three weeks ago—to find America "strong and great."

Then he turned to the ordeal he and his men on Corregidor were forced to undergo after they surrendered "as honorable soldiers."

"The rights and privileges which civilized nations have agreed to grant prisoners of war were denied by the Japs," he said.

Prisoners Resent Freedom For Japs

Urge Chinese Take Vengeance On Japs

Tokyo, Sept. 10 — (UP) — American liberated prisoners of war resented the freedom given the Japanese and urged today that the Chinese be allowed to take their vengeance on them.

"Let the Chinese, or the Russians, handle these Jap bastards," one American said. "They'll know what to do."

Many of these men—the American eighth army has already rescued over 5,085 out of an estimated 11,435 in its area—have been pushed from camp to camp for over three years. They have been beaten in the kidneys by baseball bats, tossed unconscious into latrines, or clipped on the head with the butt of a rifle.

When they found curious Japanese crowds pushing and crowding along the sidewalks to watch them unloading the trains, they were stunned. Then they saw Japanese soldiers with rifles. "Hell," they asked, "just what is this?"

The sight of 18 lovely army nurses, accompanied by a first cavalry division guard of honor, and the personal greetings of eighth army commander Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger couldn't quite make them suppress their resentment.

The liberated prisoners' parade grows larger and larger by the hour. On Saturday alone 1,254 were processed, with 840 of these flown to Okinawa enroute to Manila. There are 900 others aboard hospital ships in Tokyo bay.

From their experiences, it was easy to see why some feel bitter when they see a Japanese officer in neatly-pressed uniform stepping smartly past.

Maj. Calvin Jackson, of Kenton, O., who was captured on Corregidor, sniffed at the tiny flower he bore in his buttonhole. He had functioned as his camp's doctor.

"Health conditions were terrible," he said. "I was hit by Japanese doctors—not soldiers—for saying that. They ought to kill every damn one of them."

Jackson made four voyages in Japanese prison hell ships. The holds were so crowded that many of the men were unable to lie down and all were without sanitary facilities. In four hours, the place was a stinking mad-house.

"You would have to see it, and smell it, to believe the thing," he said.

Another who was liberated was Lt. Cmdr. David A. Hunt, 42, of Tazewell, Va., skipper of the U.S. submarine Perch which was sunk by Japanese depth charges in the Java sea on March 3, 1942.

Hunt had been held for 19 months at the infamous prison camp at Ofuna—where he was constantly interrogated, and where he was beaten once.

Judging by the usual Japanese standards Hunt said Lt. Sato, the camp commander, was a "pretty good guy." Sato only suspended prisoners by their thumbs for several days on end. That was considered mild punishment.

Margarine Preparation

Most margarines today are prepared from bland, deodorized vegetable oils. The characteristic flavor is furnished chiefly by pasteurized, cultured skim milk.

head and central planning agency.

It was exactly as though the United States army forces in the Pacific had been abolished and Americans in all Pacific areas were divided into separate local commands. The result probably will be to facilitate disarmament since it can now be handled with local area commanders without working through a Tokyo headquarters.

As late as last night, Allied headquarters had announced that demobilization and disarmament of Japanese troops was proceeding smoothly and would be completed about Oct. 10.

"Many brave and gallant soldiers died under the torment and starvation they were forced senselessly to suffer."

"The tables are now completely turned (but) no humane person could desire that the Japs be forced to endure what many of our men went through."

"Yet I know that Americans will insist that the full meaning of Japan's surrender be brought home to the emperor."

"In the name of all my comrades, who suffered with me, I pray that this nation will never again neglect the strength of its defenses; in all the joy I feel on returning to my own land, there is the memory of the last days of Corregidor and the awful months that followed."

"These memories can never be erased from my mind. I hope the story of what Americans suffered will always be remembered... as a lesson which almost lost for us this land we love."

AS SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES heads for Europe armed with broad powers, some of the European post-war problems which he expects to help settle are indicated on this map. An international commission to govern Europe's inland waterways would be particularly interested in the control of (1) the Kiel canal which separates the North sea from the Baltic; (2) the Rhine river; (3) the Danube, and (4) the Dardanelles, linking the Black sea and the Mediterranean. Then there are the final peace arrangements involving (A) the old Balkan satellites of Hitler and highlighting the troubles of Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Austria. Finland's case (B) will also come up. The matter of Germany's western boundaries had been left unsettled, too, with France planning to take over the Rhineland under Allied authority.

Republicans To Map Indiana Campaign

District Rallies To Be Held This Week

Indianapolis, Sept. 10 — (UP) — Preparations for the 1946 election campaign begin in Indiana this week with district rallies by Hoosier Republicans, at Rochester to day, at Indianapolis Wednesday, and at French Lick Friday.

GOP leaders face the task of defining their postwar policy, and of measuring their probable candidates to see if they are satisfactory in regard to party doctrine and the ability to draw the voter to the polls.

The "man on the spot" is U. S. Sen. Raymond E. Willis, R., Ind. His record will be considered by the organization. Reps. Charles Halleck, Earl Wilson, and Charles La Follette are considered possible candidates for Willis' seat. State Republican chairman William E. Jenner, at first mentioned as a possible successor to Willis, is believed to be more interested in the gubernatorial nomination in 1948. Willis, in an address at Kokomo last week, presented his program for transforming the United States from a military to a peace-time psychology and economy. The senators recommended suspension of the draft for fathers and boys under 21, liberalization of the point system, restoration of voluntary enlistment, and quick decrease of wartime controls in all departments of government.

The senator's main strength seemed to lie in the Indiana Republican editorial association, which will hold its annual convention at French Lick on Sept. 28 and 29. The association generally was credited with securing the first Willis nomination in 1938.

CREDIT POINTS FOR

ed outside the U. S. Overseas credit also will be given to personnel of the naval air transport service on regular to aircraft units on fleet, sea front to aircraft units on regular flights outside the country and to aircraft units on fleet, sea frontier or local defense service.

Forrestal said the overseas credit, applicable to service after Sept. 1, 1939, and effective Sept. 15 of this year, was being granted instead of an immediate reduction in the critical point score. The present score of 44 points for enlisted navy men and 29 for Waves will be reduced, however, "as promptly as conditions permit," he added.

Also effective Sept. 15 the navy announced a critical point score for the discharge of doctors, hospital corpsmen and navy nurses.

Male doctors will need 60 points, female doctors 35, nurses 35. Hospital corps male and female officers, including hospital specialists, will be governed by the same score as other male and female officers, 49 and 35 points respectively.

Pharmacists mates and hospital corpsmen, male and female, will need the same points required by enlisted personnel.

Forrestal also: Said 2,000 new V-12 students will continue in training until July 1, 1946. Their status thereafter has yet to be determined.

Predicted the coast guard will follow the navy's lead in allowing point credit for overseas duty. He said the marines can make no change in their point score until their Pacific commitments are known.

Estimated that within six months one out of every two men now in the navy will be home and within a year the navy will be down "to what we hope will be its peacetime strength." The navy's goal is to cut its present strength of 3,389,000 to 550,000 by next Sept. 1.
