Navy Says Saucers Weather Devices

Philadelphia Store
Offers Big Reward

By UNITED PRESS
Practical jokes continued to have a high time with flying saucers today as the navy advised the more serious minded "eyewitnesses" that what they saw in the sky were only weather observation devices.

It cost the navy $25 to assure itself. Lt. Reil Zelle Moore, naval air station aerology officer, launched a "ray winds" weather device in a $25 "operations saucer" at Atlanta, Ga. As the helium-filled balloon carrying a tin-foil screen soared over Stone mountain, calls poured into Atlanta newspapers reporting "flying disks."

The 4 by 10 foot screen looked like a round aluminum disk at a high altitude.

"People are only just beginning to see these things aloft," said Lt. Comdr. Thomas H. Rentz.

Russell Long, North Hollywood, Cal., construction engineer found a 15-inch metal disk with radio tubes flashing and smoking in his flower garden and excitedly called the fire department. "It looks like someone went to a great deal of trouble for a joke," said battalion chief Wallace E. Newcombe of the Los Angeles fire department.

Andre I. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister and delegate to the United Nations, vetoed suggestions that the flying saucers were of foreign origin.

"Some attribute it to the British for exporting too much of their scotch whiskey to the United States. Some say it is a Russian discus-thrower training for the Olympic games who does not realize his own strength. I do not think these versions are correct," said Gromyko.

A Philadelphia department store raised the total rewards offered for an authentic flying disk to $8,000.

Its newspaper advertisements said it would give $5,000 for a flying disk to add to "the most complete assortment of saucers in Philadelphia."

Previous rewards of $1,000 each offered in Chicago, Los Angeles and Spokane, Wash., had no takers.

Dave Johnson, aviation editor of the Idaho statesman, rushed development of some movie film to find out what he caught on his flying saucer hunt. Yesterday from an airplane, Johnson said he sighted a black object moving at a high rate of speed between Boise and Anderson ranch dam. He shot about "10 feet" of movie film of the object before it disappeared.

Several persons reported seeing disks over Chicago's south side last night but other witnesses said they were just searchlights playing against the clouds.

Disabled Veterans Meet Here July 16

Plans for a meeting of disabled veterans, to be held here Wednesday night, July 16, were announced today by Dwight R. Arnold, county service officer. The meeting will be held in the courtrooms of the courthouse, beginning at 7:30 o'clock that evening.

many questions including that of constitutionality.

Gwynne said the constitution provides that those in line of succession to the presidency must be officers of the government, but the constitution does not say that members of congress are officers of the government.

Gwynne said that in event of a "fend between congress and the President," congress could impeach the President and put in their boy. Except for the courage of a few Senators, this is what would have happened to President Andrew Johnson, he said.

neighbors her story was pieced together.

Mrs. W. P. Robinson, of Madison street, one of those who listened carefully to Mrs. Baker's descriptions, has her own theory of the origin of the phenomenon.

A former school teacher, she believes sincerely that the "discs," or whatever they are, are the result of continued experimenting with the atom bomb -- at Oak Ridge, Tenn. or some other place where the experiments are conducted.

"Why not?", she logically queried, "the government kept the original experiments and even the resultant atom bomb, itself, a deep secret for months. Couldn't the government know now what causes the contract but freedom of employers and unions to sign any contract they please is restricted by the law only in certain special fields," he said.

"That must be the basis of labor relations unless the government is going to run the whole show," Hartley said he understood the miners could have gotten "twice as much if they had asked for it." He said it looked like a "clear case of the big fellows getting together against the little fellows."

Hartley's statement was made to reporters after he said in a house speech that operators who signed the agreement may face fines and jail sentences under the recently-enacted Taft-Hartley labor law.

That would leave most of the soft coal industry open to prosecution since virtually all operators have now agreed to John L. Lewis' demands for a $13.05 basic daily wage and other concessions. Southern operators followed northern and western mine owners into the fold yesterday, foreshadowing an early resumption of full-scale production.

The signing of the southerners left only about 35,000 of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners out on strike. They are in Iowa, Colorado, Washington and New Mexico.
