Young Girl Admits To Killing Parents

17-Year-Old Girl Held For Murders

Eminence, Mo., March 8—(UP)—A 17-year-old blonde was charged with first degree murder today after she confessed that she killed her mother during an argument and then murdered her father so that he would not learn of his wife's death.

Betty Jane Kroeger, attractive and well-groomed, said she shot her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kroeger, 48, through the head with an Italian automatic pistol her brother had brought back from the war.

Then she went to the Variety store operated by her father, Fred Kroeger, 50, and shot him as he lay on a cot where he had been sleeping each night since burglars broke in recently. The store is a half block from the Kroeger home.

Miss Kroeger killed both parents with single shots through their heads.

The girl's sultry dark eyes flashed as she told Capt. J. A. Tandy of the state highway patrol how she and her mother argued Tuesday because Mrs. Kroeger refused to let her go to East St. Louis for a visit.

"We used to live in East St. Louis and only moved here three years ago," Miss Kroeger said. "I wanted to go there to see some friends but mother wouldn't let me."

"We argued about it and at last I got my brother's gun and shot mother. I dragged her body behind a divan but then I got to think that my father would find out about it soon anyway. So I decided to shoot him too."

Miss Kroeger said she went to the store, let herself in and shot her father as he slept in the rear room of the store. She hid his body under a couch.

Then she took the family car and drove to East St. Louis, 120 miles northeast of here, where she stayed all of Wednesday. She became worried that the bodies had been discovered so she returned

Current Report In Dredge Case Filed

Current Report Is Matter Of Routine

The current report of the commissioner, Homer Teeter, has been filed in Adams circuit court in the widely known Wabash dredge case—and the report approved by special judge Henry Kister.

The report is little more than routine and hardly informative since it lists action already known in the "sidelight suit," an action to mandate the commissioners to issue more than $30,000 in bonds for the dredging.

Teeter's report cites the fact that "a motion for a new trial was overruled" in the mandamus action before Judge Earl B. Adams, sitting as special jurist in this case, and that "an appeal to the state supreme court was granted."

It declares that "the commissioners can do nothing toward constructing the drain" pending the appeal action.

Roscoe D. Wheat, Portland attorney, filed the report for the commissioner.

Judge Kister's entries on the docket card denote that he traveled from Princeton to Decatur in the proceedings, approved the entry and returned to Princeton from this city.

In another court action, Myles F. Parrish entered an appearance for the defendant in the divorce action of Alvina against Fred King.

Chicago Woman Wins

Radio Show Contest

68-Year-Old Widow Hits $22,500 Prize

Chicago, March 8—(UP)—Mrs. Florence Hubbard, 68, said today she thought she would sell the boat, plane and trailer she won in the $22,500 jackpot for naming Jack Benny as the "walking man" in a radio show contest.

But she is planning to use the two-weeks, expenses-paid vacation trip to Sun Valley, Ida. She is also planning to accept the invitations to appear on Benny's radio program and on Truth or Consequences, the show which provided the prizes.

She wasn't sure she could get time off from her job for all the traveling. Then she got a call that thrilled her almost as much as the prize-winning call. It was from her top boss, whom she had never met.

Mrs. Hubbard is a $30-a-week saleslady in Corson, Pirie Scott & Company, and John T. Pirie, president of the store called.

"Congratulations," he said. "Take as much time off as you want."

She was so excited about winning the contest that she said she'd been shaking ever since.

"I'd have no use for an airplane," she said, "but the new Cadillac sedan will be nice."

She also plans to take the interior decorating job and the new tile bathroom if it is agreeable with her landlord. She lives alone in a four-room apartment on Chicago's west side. Her husband, Dr. Charles F. Hubbard, an optician, died 13 years ago.

Other prizes included a diamond ring, furniture, household articles, and a $1,000 fur coat.

Flat Dive In Pool Blamed For Death

Terre Haute, Ind., March 8—(UP)—A flat dive into an indoor swimming pool was blamed for the death of a 14-year-old Indianapolis girl. A coroner's verdict of accidental death by asphyxiation was returned in the death of Charlotte Ann Bruns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bruns, Indianapolis.

Swimmers at the St. Mary-of-the-Woods college swimming pool said the girl, a student in the high school attached to the college, made a flat dive into the water, apparently knocking the breath out of her. Coroner J. V. Richart said the blow had temporarily paralyzed her breathing muscles. She died shortly after climbing unaided from the pool.

banquet at Indianapolis. It snowballed into a full-fledged boom at that time and president Marion Ayers of the I. D. E. A. said he was pressured into calling a special meeting of the association to adopt a resolution demanding that Schricker run.

But Schricker removed the last hope of his supporters before the meeting started. He gave his final answer on the day that his wife, first lady of Indiana from 1941 to 1945, was taken home from a hospital after a minor operation.

The editors then adopted a resolution praising Schricker for his party record and saying that he was the best man for the job.

Somebody at the meeting suggested former U. S. Sen. Samuel D. Jackson of Fort Wayne for the editors' endorsement. But the suggestion went no further than that, a spokesman said.

who smashed in and found Lockridge sprawled in the front seat. His legs hung over the running board.

City firemen attempted to revive him but gave up after an hour.

Friends doubted that a suicide episode in his book had anything to do with his own death. In the book, a woman character named "Susanna Drake" throws herself into a river after burning down a house.

The book was a semi-historical novel of a typical Indiana county. Lockridge had returned only recently from Hollywood where he had adapted it for a forthcoming movie.

It was the only book Lockridge had written. Into it he poured an almost-passionate love for the countryside and people of Indiana. He had supported his family by teaching English at Indiana University and other schools during the seven years in which he wrote the lengthy novel.

Lockridge was educated at Indiana University where he was a member of the varsity track team and received the B. A. and M. A. degrees. He became an instructor at the school here after graduating, and then taught at Simmons College, Boston, where he started work on his book.

The novel ranked second among best-selling fiction books two weeks ago and was third last week.

Besides his wife and their four children, Ernest, Jean, Larry and Ross III, Lockridge is survived by his father, Ross Lockridge, Sr., a historian and lecturer who is now retired from the Indiana University faculty.
