MRS. FLORENCE WASSON takes the oath before testifying at inquest into suicide death of screen star Carole Landis that a man in the Landis home handed her a note left by Miss Landis, but that she handed it back and couldn't remember who he was. "The only salient feature I remember in it was to take the cat to a veterinarian," she told the investigation. (International Soundphoto)

Springer Still In Republican Saddle

State Republican Candidates Meet

Indianapolis, July 12—(UP)—All was harmony, at least on the surface, in the state Republican party today as GOP chairman H. Clark Springer survived what had been darkly rumored as the first effort to unseat him.

Republican candidates for state offices got together yesterday at Lake Tippecanoe to discuss their campaign strategy. After electing Lt. Gov. Rue J. Alexander as their candidate campaign manager, the nominees went into a secret session, excluding Springer.

The secret session still was a secret today, but significantly, Springer still held the party's No. 1 organizational post this morning. GOP gubernatorial candidate Hobart Creighton calmed down rumors of a party rift with a statement after the meeting.

Said Creighton "if any changes are desired we'll try to work them out peacefully."

Creighton said so far as he knew, no one was scheduled to "get the axe."

The Warsaw poultryman who won the GOP gubernatorial nomination in a bitter convention fight that still showed party scars said there was some discussion of the leadership question during the secret session.

But, he said, there would be no fight among the party members on the eve of the election campaign. It had been reported earlier that Creighton and the faction that backed him for governor wanted to oust Springer because they felt he leaned toward Sen. William E.

Jenner in the convention gubernatorial battle. There was one rumor that Springer would be asked flatly to resign yesterday.

But Springer still ruled the roost and the only way to oust him was to call a special session of the state central committee. That required a petition with 11 signatures, half of the 22 members.

It was indicated that Springer planned to stick to his plan to retire from politics early next year. But plainly he hoped to remain in power and leave at his own whim.

The candidates also named a special committee to work out detailed plans for the campaign and name chairmen to other committees. Members were Morrison Rockhill, Warsaw attorney and Creighton's pre-convention campaign manager; Alexander, Creighton, and Springer.

Rockhill was considered as a possible successor to Springer should the move to oust him materialize.

Annual Singfest Is Planned July 25

Announcement has been made of the third annual Victory Prayer Band singfest, to be held Sunday afternoon, July 25, at Hiers park in Huntington at 2 o'clock. The Rev. James Meadows, of this city, founder of the Victory Prayer Band will preside.

Besides the group singing of old-time religious songs under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Lucas, Taylor university student, the Rev. A. J. Bathauer of Anderson will deliver a sermon.

Rev. Bathauer, a Russian Christian, and long time favorite in northern Indiana, is returning to the singfest by popular demand. Singers and musicians from a dozen towns and cities will attend the singfest. The public is invited.

Decatur Radio Fans Have Chance At Big 'Giveaway' Programs

Despite prevalent rumors to the contrary, Decatur radio fans actually stand a ghost of a chance to here their telephones ring some lucky night with a call from one of the network giveaway programs.

That's the word from chief operator Laura Stanley of the Citizen's Telephone company, Miss Stanley says that Decatur's independent phone company is linked with the national Bell system, so that any radio show from New York or Hollywood can ring up a local resident.

Incidentally, the Democrat has learned from unimpeachable sources that the mystery tune is "World Events." But who wants a new car, refrigerator, home, airplane, $600,000 and all the territory west of the Rockies?

top of $39.25, only 25 cents short of the all-time high for Chicago. Light weights were selling 50 cents higher at the St. Louis market and strong to 25 cents higher at Indianapolis.

Hog receipts at the 12 midwest markets were estimated at 65,600 head. Other receipts were: 74,200 cattle; 10,200 calves and 31,300 sheep and lamb.

Conway, market analyst for the National Association of Livestock Producers, said the supply problem will remain "acute" throughout the summer.

"Considering population growth in the past decade and prevailing full employment, the current prospective meat supply is very inadequate," Conway said in an article in the National Livestock Producer.

His estimate of the supply followed a report by the U. S. department of agriculture, which said that livestock and wholesale meat prices last week soared to the highest levels in history.

Conway blamed the short supply on the poor corn crop last year and on the effects of the strike this spring by packinghouse workers. He said the lack of corn forced cattle feeders to curtail beef production and slowed up hog feeding.

Conway said high prices for livestock would continue through the summer, and that meat would be short for at least a year.

The agriculture department has estimated the current corn crop as the biggest on record, but experts said it would take "some time" for the increased corn supply to be reflected in greater meat production.

IT'S GOING TO BE CATASTROPHIC if Larry, the lenshoun, White, the cat, to "watch for the birdie." A glance at this cat who happens to be one of the pets at the Monmouth Park course, and it becomes obvious that she's on the track of some moment she is positive something is going to happen. (Hag)
