Attend Conference On Electricity Use

Miss Anna K. Williams, home agent, and L. E. Archbold, county agent, attended a two-day conference in Huntington last week on the use of electricity on the farm. In the early days of rural electrification the problem was too sell the farmers and their wives on the economy of a greater use of electric current, now the big problem is getting the electrical circuits arranged to carry the big loads placed on them. The supply of current are anxious to have extension service help explain how farmers and others are over loading present circuits and how the problem can be over come. Revamping the electric circuits will give greater satisfaction to the users of current and — just as important, greater economy of operation.
