Two Sentenced To Death For Gandhi Murder

Assassin, Brains Behind Conspiracy, Sentenced To Death

New Delhi, Feb. 10 — (UP) — Nathuram Vinayak Godse, 36, the assassin who shot Mohandas K. Gandhi, and Narayan Dattarya Apte, 35, a school teacher described as the brains behind the conspiracy, were sentenced to death by hanging today.

Five of seven other defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment. One was acquitted and one was granted a king's pardon because he turned state's evidence and testified against the others.

Gandhi, the spiritual leader of Hindu India, was killed by three bullets fired into his frail body on the terrace of Birla house here during an evening prayer meeting on Jan. 30, 1948.

Godse admitted the shooting in a 30,000-word statement during the long trial of the nine defendants. He said he held Gandhi's code of non-violence responsible for the suffering and death of thousands of Hindus after the partition of India. He invited the court to impose the death sentence.

The death sentences were imposed under the Bombay public security measures act and are not subject to confirmation by the high court, as they would be under ordinary law. However, they may be appealed to the East Punjab high court.

Freed under the king's pardon was Digamber Ramchandra Badge, 35, operator of a small arms shop in Poona, who was the prosecution's star witness.

Acquitted was Vinayak Damodar Savarkar, 65, for many years president of the All-India Hindu Mahasabha, an extremist organization charged with responsibility in Gandhi's death.

Those sentenced to life imprisonment: Vishnu Ramchander Karkare, 35, owner of a restaurant at Ahmednagar.

Madan Lal, 23, a refugee from the Punjab in Pakistan, who threw a bomb at Gandhi in an unsuccessful assassination attempt 10 days before the Mahatma was killed by Godse.

Shankar Kistaya, 32, a servant of Badge.

Gopal Vinayak Godse, 32, a brother of the assassin.

Dr. D. S. Parchure, a medical practitioner from Gwalior, 130 miles from New Delhi.

Judge Atma Charan indicated the life sentence imposed on Kistaya may be commuted to seven years of "rigorous imprisonment."

Winds Drift Snow Back On West Roads

New Major Storm Forms In Aleutians

By United Press

Parts of the west were whipped today by "quickie" windstorms and snow squalls that pushed new piles of snow over roads as fast as bulldozers cleared them.

A new major storm area was spawned in the Aleutians and was moving southeastward toward the continental coastline.

Nightlong rains melted snowdrifts in eastern Washington, creating flood conditions. Water poured into Dayton, Wash., and crept over Walla Walla sidewalks. Residents of the two towns turned out to erect sandbag barricades. Highways became muddy, swirling streams.

But eastern states enjoyed mild, springlike weather that sent temperatures soaring yesterday to 59 at New York and 68 at Washington to set new records for Feb. 9.

Snowplow crews gave up hope of restoring transportation lines today into Rawlins, Wyo., as 35 and 45 mile an hour winds whistled over the area.

Perishable foods were running low in the city, the last major community still snowbound as result of storms that struck earlier this week. The Challenger airlines said that if weather permitted it would begin a shuttle service for 650 westbound railroad passengers stranded there.

Snowplow crews measured a drift that was 50 feet high near Rawlins.

The Union Pacific and other railroads gradually were moving snowbound trains in other parts of Wyoming by re-routing them to Utah and Denver to be dispatched over the Santa Fe and Denver and Rio Grande rights of way.

About 1,000 motorists still were stuck in Rock Springs, Green River and Rawlins.

Windstorms in North and South Dakota kicked up the old snow and cut visibility to one or two miles. The wind brought with it cold weather that sent thermometers plunging in the Dakotas and Minnesota.

Remote ranch houses in Wyoming were reported running short of food and the Red Cross announced that army planes would fly food to them from Lowry field. Meat, milk and baked goods were dropped to small towns jammed with stranded travelers.
