

Russian Jet Planes Too Fast To View

Annual Soviet Air Show Held Sunday

Moscow, July 18. — (UP) — Foreign observers said today that new types of Russian jet fighters displayed in the Soviet air show swept across their field of vision at such high speeds they couldn't tell what they looked like.

Western military attaches who viewed the annual Soviet air show yesterday said they could not describe the appearance or character of the new jets because of their high speed.

The planes flashed across Tushino airfield at an altitude of less than 1,000 feet. They came into view and disappeared, beyond the horizon before the announcer managed to finish his statement that they were there.

A number of the new types were shown in the annual display of Soviet air power as well as improved models of three jet fighters displayed in previous shows.

The jets appeared in such large numbers that foreign air observers said Russia now apparently has them in mass production.

The air show was under the direction of Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, commandant of air forces in the Moscow military area and son of premier Josef Stalin.

Premier Stalin, tanned by the sun, watched the exhibition from a special box in company with other members of the Politburo.

Accessories Stolen From Bicycle Found

Bicycle accessories worth about $15 were returned to two Decatur boys Saturday night by sheriff Herman Bowman after they were stolen Friday. The boys, Don Strickler and Roger Coodson, left their bikes parked at Worthman field while they watched a baseball game. When they returned, their bicycles had been stripped. Sheriff Bowman questioned a 13-year-old suspect, and severely reprimanded him. He returned all of the stolen equipment to the sheriff immediately.

Two cars sideswiped on highway 23 one mile west of Willshire early Sunday morning, badly damaging both vehicles. An automobile belonging to Luther Case, Willshire, O., suffered $175 damages. The left front and rear fenders were torn and rolled, and the left side of the car's body was badly dented. No one in either car was hurt.

The other auto, driven by George R. Ault, Ansonia, O., sustained $150 damages. The front bumper, left hub caps, and left front and rear fenders were badly crumpled by the accident. Sheriff Herman Bowman, who investigated the accident, said that the wreck happened on a curve. Neither of the drivers involved realized that they were in danger, he stated. Although the vehicles were badly damaged, children sleeping on the rear seat of the Ault car were not disturbed.

called five percenters.

The Michigan congressman praised army secretary Gordon Gray for suspending Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt and Herman Feldman for apparent implication in the "five percent" racket. The army inspector general is working closely with Hoyt's subcommittee on the case.

Gray said Saturday that the two generals were suspended on the basis of evidence uncovered by William P. Rogers, chief counsel of the subcommittee and his aides. Waitt is chief of the chemical corps, and Feldman is quartermaster general.

The army secretary said evidence presented to date indicates that Feldman supplied procurement information to a contractor's representative "under circumstances which appear irregular." Waitt was accused of "improperly" furnishing personnel data to an unauthorized individual.

Neither general would comment on the accusations.

Price Reductions By Lever Brothers

Cambridge, Mass., July 18. — (UP) — Lever Brothers company announced today a reduction of approximately four to nine percent on the wholesale price of its soap products and two percent per pound on its shortening products. Company officials said the reduction was made possible by a decline in the cost of raw materials.

Jehovah Witnesses Meeting Broken Up

Blame Hecklers For Oklahoma Fracas

Duncan, Okla., July 18 — (UP) — A fight with Jehovah witnesses was blamed today on "hecklers" in the audience at a meeting of the cult.

The fight was broken up by fire chief Ernest Ray and another fireman who sprayed cold water from a 300-gallon tank on the fistswinging battlers.

The fracas started during a talk by M. M. Downie of Brooklyn, N. Y., sent by the watch tower society to address the three-day meeting.

Witnesses said that hecklers in the audience had harassed Downie during the hot afternoon in the packed auditorium.

Suddenly two groups of men marched down an auditorium aisle, each waving an American flag. Several were identified as members of the local American Legion.

They mounted onto the stage and apparently tried to take over the rostrum.

Someone turned in a fire alarm during the squabble. Two trucks sped to the auditorium.

Ray said that when he reached the hall, about two dozen men were milling around on the stage, trading punches. Four or five had bloody faces.

"Buck Lawson and I took the small hose and pushed our way inside when we saw fighting," Ray said. "I turned the hose on them and in less than two minutes it was all over."

The local American Legion post denied any knowledge of the brawl. One man, carrying a driver's license issued to W. A. Clark of Choctaw, Okla., was put under protective custody. He said his present address was Oklahoma City.

City manager John Bender ordered police to file charges against all persons involved.

Resentment against the religious sect, which refuses to salute the flags of any nation on grounds they are "graven images," flared up Saturday night.

A witness' camera was broken when a Duncan citizen objected to anyone taking a picture of a downtown building.

"A bunch of people in town didn't like the people and what they were saying," a policeman said. "They said it was UnAmerican and if they didn't like this country, they ought to go to Russia."

Careful Eating In Hot Weather Urged

Indianapolis, July 18. — (UP) — Keep cool by eating right, the state board of health suggested today.

"Eating the right foods in summer time may help overcome fatigue that is so generally accepted as an unavoidable part of hot weather," said chief nutritionist Miss Lella Ogle. She recommended regular meals, plenty of sleep, and lots of water, with a pinch of salt now and then to beat the heat.

Putting red paint on handles of small garden tools and thus outlining them against ground grass, or foliage helps to prevent their loss.

Ernie Pyle Will Be Buried In Honolulu

Pay Final Honor To War Correspondent

Honolulu, T. H., July 18 — (UP) — Ernie Pyle, Scripps-Haward war correspondent killed April 18, 1945, during the invasion of Ie Shima, will be buried in Punchbowl National cemetery tomorrow alongside the foot soldiers whose world war diary he kept.

A simple soldier's service for Pyle and four other Pacific victims, including the Pacific area's unknown soldier, will be followed by a salute from his fellow journalists.

His pallbearers will be seven men. Chaplains of three faiths will offer prayer, a firing squad will fire three volleys, and a bugler will sound taps as the body of the man who earned the nation's affection will be lowered to its final resting place.

The civilian ceremony will consist of floral tributes. The Honolulu press club, representing the nation's press, will present a wreath in shape of a quill.

Club president Buck Buchwach will speak briefly. Honorary pallbearers are four wartime Pacific correspondents: Dan McGuire and Joe James Custer, former United Press staff correspondents; Wesley Edwards, former Columbia broadcasting system reporter, and Lief Erickson of the Associated Press.

Rolloff K. Thomas will place a wreath in the form of a fraternity emblem of the Sigma Delta Chi. Pyle once was president of the Indiana chapter.

Thomas also will place a wreath in behalf of Indiana University. Tomorrow's ceremony will signify the public opening of the burial place in Punchbowl crater overlooking Honolulu and the ocean. Pyle's remains will rest with those of 12,000 veterans of World War II. The remaining half of the cemetery will be available to future military dead and former war veterans.

Pyle was killed by a Japanese machine gun burst while talking with an officer in a command post on Ie Shima.

Quaker Group Says War Not Inevitable

Urge Atom Weapons Under UN's Seal

Philadelphia, July 18 — (UP) — The American Friends service committee, winner of the Nobel peace prize in 1947, said today that war is not inevitable and urged the United States to put its atomic weapons "under United Nations seal" to ease world tension.

The Quaker group also asked the government to halt manufacture of fissionable material pending UN certification of "legitimate uses" of such material. The group's recommendations were contained in a report on Russian-American relations drawn up after a year of study.

The survey was conducted by a committee headed by Gilbert F. White, president of Haverford College, Haverford, Pa. White said state department officials and leading Russian diplomats including deputy foreign ministers Andrei A. Gromyko and Jacob A. Malik were among those interviewed by the group.

"The United States must indicate willingness to accept limitations over national control over armaments as well as over atomic energy if and when world agencies with governmental powers are developed for those areas, the report said.

Best Policy

Washington, July 18 — (UP) — Members of the joint congressional atomic energy committee said today they thought the United States is pursuing the best policy on control of atomic energy.

Rep. Melvin Price, D. Ill., said the U. S. has advocated United Nations control of atomic energy, "but it has not been accepted by Russia and her satellite nations." His comment was made on the proposal of the American Friends Service committee that the United States put its atomic weapons "under United Nations seal" to ease world tension.

Price's sentiments were about echoed by Rep. W. Sterling Cole, R. N. Y., another member of the atomic energy committee. He thought the original U. S. policy was the best one.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R. Ia., ranking Republican member on the committee, said there can be no international control "until we have reliable assurances atomic weapons will not be used for war purposes."

A Democratic member of the committee, Sen. Richard B. Russell, Ga., said:

"I don't want to see any modification of the Baruch plan for international control, and I thought that went too far."
