Seed Quality Oats Supply Is Sought

The county extension office would like to know who has a supply of Clinton 59 or Benton oats of seed quality. County agent L. E. Archbold states he would like to have farmers write or phone this information to him as soon as a germination test has been run by the owner. He further states that the extension office is not interested in lots of Nemaha, Ajax, Beaver, Laramie, or Exeter. Repeated field trials in Indiana have shown that they are unadapted. Clinton 59 and Benton oats have consistently out yielded them with a higher test weight.

Germination test are easy to make by placing 100 grains of oats between blotting paper, then place the paper in a dish and keep wet. Keep germination sample at a good growing temperature.
