

SOCIETY

PEASANT MILLS W. S. C. S. IN MEETING TUESDAY

The Pleasant Mills Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service, met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Lee Custer. The session opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. Harlen Jones and Mrs. Lee Custer and Mrs. Harley Shady.

Miss Wanda Mann gave the lesson on "Let the earth be glad." During the business meeting, the flower and sick committee were named and are the same as last year. The group was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Shady.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lee Custer, Mrs. Glen Mann and Mrs. Drucilla Suman during the social hour.

BETHANY CHURCH GROUP MEET THURSDAY

Unit 3 of the Women's Society of World Service of the Bethany Evangelical United Brethren church met Thursday evening with Mrs. Jesteen Cole for a regular meeting. "Christ Calls the Church" was the general theme of the evening.

Mrs. Robert Garard was chairman of the program and Mrs. Raymond Eichenauer read the scripture, after which several prayers were given. A round table discussion followed on the topic, "Church and Our Country's Needs."

Mrs. John Spahr, the spiritual life secretary, gave out leaflets for each member and they chose their prayer partner for the coming year. The Lord's prayer, repeated in unison, dismissed the group.

FILM left Monday will be ready at 3:00 o'clock Tuesday. Office Hours: 8:30 to 5:00
EDWARDS STUDIO

KUM-JOIN-US CLASS IN REGULAR MEETING

A regular meeting of the Kum-Join-Us class of the Bethany church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doyt Miller. Devotions and prayer by Mrs. Glen Mauler opened the meeting.

During the session, it was decided to serve a supper to the public on September 13. A treasure hunt in the yard was the main feature of the social hour.

The host and hostess were assisted in serving refreshments by Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Jackson to the twenty-two members and nine children present.

WOMEN'S GUILD HOLDS ALL DAY MEETING

An all day meeting was held by the Women's Guild of the St. Luke Evangelical Reformed church of Honduras recently in the church basement. A pot-luck dinner was enjoyed at noon by the members and the invited guests, members of the Bluffton, Magley and neighboring churches. Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Boyd Stepler and Mrs. Ida Stepler.

The afternoon session got underway with a piano prelude by Mrs. Earl Harmon. Mrs. Hilda Klickman read the scripture and prayer was offered by Mrs. Dorphus Schlickman. A duet was presented by Maclia and Marion Zimmerman, followed with an interesting book review given on "The Monk Who Lived Again" by Lucille Beavers.

Another solo was given by Sandra Stepler and the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Elmer Beer. Twenty-two members and seven children and a number of guests were present for the day.

Members of the Sunny Circle home economics club will meet Tuesday at the Preble recreation center at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Hayes P. Yeager

Nancy Heemstra Bride Today In Church Ceremony

NANCY HEEMSTRA

At three thirty o'clock this afternoon in the Indiana Presbytery church in Columbus, Ohio, Miss Nancy Jane Heemstra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Simon of this city, became the bride of Hayes P. Yeager, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hayes Yeager of Columbus.

Dr. Frederick Christian, pastor, and the Rev. Peter Heemstra, of Lafayette, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony. A setting of summer greens and an arrangement of King daisies filled the altar table and the pew ends in the bridal aisle were marked with bouffant rosettes of cotton maline and organdy bows.

A half hour musical preceded the wedding and opened with chimes of the organ by Mrs. Betty Lang. A program in the theme of the Romeo and Juliet Overture and an interlude of Bach was presented. Miss Jo Call of Circleville, Ohio, as vocalist sang "Thine Alone," "I Love Thee" and "Tri Delta Wedding Hymn." As the couple exchanged vows, "The Lord's Prayer" was sung.

In marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. John McCormick, Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. Jack Hunter, Columbus, Ohio, and Miss Suzanne Sturgis of Bluffton, wore gowns similar to that of the honor attendant. They carried ballerina bouquets like the bride's, of Majestic and Marguerite daisies. The honor attendant's flowers were distinguished by center of Golden Rapture roses.

The flower girl, Jennie Lee Goodnight, cousin of the bride, of Indianapolis, wore a miniature gown of the others and carried a daisy bouquet.

The groom's father, W. Hayes Yeager, attended his son as best man. Guests were seated by John McCormick, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Jack Hunter and Robert Keene, both of Columbus.

Both mothers were seated during an organ presentation of the Prelude to Act III of Lohengrin. Mrs. Heemstra chose for her daughter's wedding, an orchid dress of mettlesse crepe, styled with an Empire bodice with rows of shirring and a softly gathered skirt. Her French knotted felt profile hat and gloves of blush pink and an over-the-shoulder corsage of miniature asters completed her attire. Mrs. Yeager selected a Rob in eggs blue dress of nylon and acetate mesh with an open neckline and a scalloped pleated skirt. She accented her ensemble with a white feather hat and bracelet length gloves. Her corsage was a necklace corsage of asters.

Mrs. Harry Heemstra of Monroe, South Dakota, grandmother of the bride, wore a sunset pink sheer crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of flitter pink shattered carnations.

The reception was held at the Faculty club of Ohio State University. The bride's table was covered with a yellow organdy cloth, flounced with tiers of gathered organ-

Coming Events

Phone 3-2121
Kathleen Terveer
Society items for day's publication must be phoned in by 11 a. m. (Saturday 9:30 a. m.)

SUNDAY
Heidelberg class, Zion E. R. church, at church, 12:30 p.m.
Pleasant Mills Methodist church, classes 7-8, basket dinner at noon, Berne park.

MONDAY
Our Lady of Victory discussion club, Mrs. John Schuriger, 8 p.m.
Ladies auxiliary, post and fathers, V. F. W. hall, 8 p.m.
Music section, Woman's club, closed meeting, Mrs. Clyde Butler, 7:30 p.m.

TUESDAY
Sunny Circle Home Ec. club, Preble Twp. recreation center, 8 p.m.
Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F. hall, 7:30 p.m. Three Link club after lodge.

Root Twp. Home Demonstration club, Mrs. John Brite, 1:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY
Ruth and Naomi circles, Zion E. R. church, pot-luck dinner, Mrs. Ed Borne, 12 p.m.

THURSDAY
Women of Moose, Moose home, officers, 7 p.m., members, 7:30 p.m.

FRIDAY
dy and set with the traditional tiered wedding cake topped with a cluster of daisies and surrounded by daisies blossoms.

Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. James L. Yeager, sister-in-law of the groom, Miss Carolyn Heemstra, cousin of the bride of the Romeo, an Juliet Overture and an interlude of Bach was presented. Miss Jo Call of Circleville, Ohio, as vocalist sang "Thine Alone," "I Love Thee" and "Tri Delta Wedding Hymn." As the couple exchanged vows, "The Lord's Prayer" was sung.

In marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug sleeveless bodice featured a scoop neckline with double collars edged in embroidered rickrack. Above the loosely pleated flared skirt showed a yellow linen comberband. Her headpiece consisted of an organdy clip with a cluster of flowers from her bouquet and a nose veil.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of sheer imported French organdy, fashioned with a snug fitting strapless bodice covered with a short sleeved jacket. The very bouffant skirt featured hand embroidered medallions worn over a full slip of Gros de Londre taffeta and a hand embroidered nylon braid crinoline. With the gown, she wore belt length mitts of organdy. Her veil of sheer imported French illusion fell in soft folds from a halo of pleated organdy with matching medallions of the skirt across the back. Her bouquet was of all white Easter Reed daisies surrounded by sprays of valley lilies and the medallions cut from the material of her gown.

Shower streamers fell from the bouquet handle tied in lover's knots and miniature daisy blossoms.

Mrs. Theodore H. Heemstra, sister-in-law of the bride, of Boston, Mass., was matron of honor and wore a waltz length gown of imported white Swiss organdy. The snug