Polio Injections To Queen Elizabeth

Take Precautions On Visit To Australia

WASHINGTON UP — Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said today a new polio vaccine will be tested on upwards of one million children this summer and its effectiveness should be known by 1955.

Riper said the new vaccine, developed by polio scientist Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh, is scheduled to be tried out on two groups of children in the first, second and third grades in 200 areas across the nation. The "field trials" will be under the auspices of state health departments.

In a copyrighted interview with U. S. News & World Report, Riper said the question on the "safety" of the new vaccine should "have been answered to everybody's satisfaction." He said each lot will be given independent safety tests by the manufacturer, Dr. Salks laboratory and the public health service.

"What can be safer than safe?" he said.

He said the results of the forthcoming field trials—due to start next month—should reveal the effectiveness of the new vaccine by 1955. But he warned that if it does turn out to be a preventative for the crippling disease, enough will not be available by then to give it to all who may want it.

"In other words, the potential market right now in the most susceptible age group is probably 45 million children, and that's a lot of vaccine," Riper said.

Stevenson Urges Government Career

Stevenson Speaks To College Seniors

PRINCETON, N. J., UP—Adlai Stevenson Monday night urged students to consider careers in government service even though they might be rewarded with "in-gratitude and investigation."

He told a senior class meeting at Princeton University that congressional investigating tactics were discouraging many good men from government careers.

"Thoughtful men do not enjoy living in an atmosphere of constant guerrilla warfare," he said. But he warned that educated men and women must still shoulder the responsibility for good government.

Without mentioning names, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate made reference to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's investigation of the army.

"It is true," he said, "that there are at every level of our government able, patient, patriotic, devoted public servants—yes, and army officers, too—but all too often their reward is ingratitude and investigation."

Public servants today must run the risk of "being branded as subversives, undesirables and security risks," Stevenson said.

In a question-and-answer period after his speech, the former Illinois governor advised a student to go into the U.S. foreign service even though "it is unsatisfactory at the present time" because freedom of expression is inhibited.

He said it was the "duty" of every educated man in America to work actively to put good men in office and to defend them against "abuse and the ugly inclination we have to believe the worst."

Singer Dick Haymes Ordered Deported

Orders Return To Native Argentina

WASHINGTON UP — Singer Dick Haymes today was ordered deported to his native Argentina.

The order was based on charges Haymes was ineligible to re-enter the continental United States after making a trip to Hawaii last June to see his present wife, Rita Hayworth.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr.

said the deportation order was issued by special inquiry officer Joseph A. Dummel of the immigration service after Haymes was given a hearing.

The justice department said Haymes is ineligible to enter this country because in World War II, he asked to be excused from military service on grounds he was a subject of a neutral nation. Because of this request, it said, Haymes is forever barred from obtaining U. S. citizenship and as such is excludable from this country.

Haymes has 10 days in which to appeal Dummel's decision to the board of immigration appeals.
