May Prosecute Violators In FHA Scandals

Disclosures Made At Hearings Lead To Prosecutions

INDIANAPOLIS (INS) — Federal authorities indicated today that there will be criminal prosecution of law violators disclosed in the hearings of the senate banking committee in Indianapolis that ended late Tuesday.

Intelligence agents of the internal revenue service, who listened to all of the evidence digested the testimony to determine whether income tax evasions had occurred. Several witnesses have admitted non-payment of taxes on irregular profits.

Also, U. S. district attorney Jack C. Brown said a special session of the federal grand jury may be called, if his aides decide that the numerous "windfall" profits obtained by builders under the federal housing administration's guarantee of housing mortgages are law violations.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (R. Ind.), committee chairman, likewise issued a stern warning after hearing evidence of collusion between many reliable banks of Indiana and home siding and improvement concerns. He said:

"I say this to the bankers and to the leaders—you had better clean up your practices."

Capehart and committee investigators were in Detroit today laying the ground for additional public hearings there Thursday and Friday. They will hold forth in New York the following week and then will return for hearings in Washington during the first week in October.

Ten Indiana home owners testified concerning high-bidding practices and irregularities in financing of improvements to their homes through fast-talking salesmen for builders, financed by some of the best known banks in the state and guaranteed by the federal housing administration.

Capehart commented that the Indiana pattern was the same as that of the remainder of the nation. Salesmen approach a home owner, saying his house had been selected as a model for the neighborhood and offering to pay $50 for each improvement sold to another homeowner.

Then the peddlers would move in for the kill and persuade the home owner to sign contracts for high-priced siding and other house improvements or repairs. The siding often would drop off in a few days.

A number of the salesmen would drive up to the houses of their victims in Cadillacs, according to the evidence testimony. Thomas J. O'Brien vice-president of the Meadowbrook Corporation, which operates the huge Meadowbrook Apartment not far from the Indiana state fairgrounds in Indianapolis, testified in another aspect of the inquiry.

He admitted that he and his associates now own 62 1/2 per cent of the Meadowbrook and have practically no cash investment. Capehart agreed there had been no windfall profit here, but added: "When you got through, the investors had little or nothing invested and the government was holding a big mortgage."

Accuses Capehart Of Intimidation

Accusation Made By Lawrence Man

INDIANAPOLIS (INS) — Sen. Homer E. Capehart (D. Ind.), is accused in a letter to U.S. attorney general Herbert Brownell of intimidating a would-be FHA witness.

William J. McGhee, a member of the Lawrence planning board in suburban Indianapolis, has been campaigning against what he terms unnecessary federal aid at Lawrence.

McGhee asked Brownell for constitutional protection and said Capehart intimidated him during an executive session Sunday. The self-employed photographer charged:

Capehart's language was unbecoming that of a senator of the United States; he took the name of our good Lord in vain, and he threatened me with reprisals and reviled me.

McGhee said if his charges are not acted upon free men will be afraid to speak out and another of the freedoms of our forefathers will have failed and we then will be further on the road to more big government by little people. The senator could not be reached for comment. He was believed enroute to Detroit where his senate banking committee will resume hearings in FHA windfall profits it concluded in Indianapolis Tuesday.

Pakistani Premier Enroute To States

KARACHI (INS) — Pakistani Premier Mohammed Ali left Karachi today for an official visit to the United States, where he will hold talks relating to the military and economic aid which Pakistan is receiving from the United States. Agence France Presse reported that Ali, who is due to arrive in Washington Oct. 12, would stop en route in London where he would go to Cannes to visit the ailing Aga Khan.

Delays Buying Of New Storage Bins

Result Of Lowering Of Grain Harvests

WASHINGTON (INS) — The agriculture department said today it is delaying plans for the purchase of additional storage bins as a result of drought-caused reductions in this year's grain harvest.

Earlier this year, the department purchased new storage bins having a capacity of about 200 million bushels and was planning to buy an extra 60 million bushels of capacity when the drought began to cut into crop prospects.

About six million bushels of additional capacity were purchased under the latest program but agriculture secretary Ezra Taft Benson said new purchases are being "held in abeyance" pending the final crop reports.

The cabinet officer said he felt that the storage situation has eased "just a little" over the past several months and this is said to be a vast improvement over the very serious situation that loomed earlier in the year.

Meanwhile, the agriculture department reported that meat production for the week ending Sept. 18 totaled 881 million pounds, a 20 percent increase over the 313 million pounds under federal inspection during the previous week.

The production increase was due largely to reduced output over the Labor Day holiday but officials noted that the amount of meat inspected by the government was still two percent higher than the same week a year ago.

The department said that cattle slaughter was only slightly below the peak volume of the summer, calf kill was the largest of the year, while slaughter of hogs and lambs was the largest since January. The hog total exceeded one million head for the first time since early in the year.

Dulles To Propose German Rearming

Nine-Power Parley Slated Next Week

LONDON (INS) — British attention turned toward Washington and Moscow today for possible new proposals which might have an important impact on next week's nine-power London conference on German sovereignty and rearmament.

Reports from Washington that U.S. secretary of state John Foster Dulles would bring "positive proposals for the rearmament of a sovereign West Germany" excited considerable attention. They indicated that the secretary would not take a passive role as a mere listener to the British and French plans.

The nature of Dulles' purported proposals was awaited eagerly in view of further Washington reports that Dulles does not believe France's plan provides an acceptable compromise to the French - scuttled European defense community.

At the same time there was growing comment in diplomatic quarters at the Kremlin's official silence, and some belief that Moscow might try to steal the limelight from the conference with some resounding call for a new east-west conference on world problems, including atomic energy.

SUDS 'CROP' IN SOFT WATER TEST

Esther Williams tries out swimming pool filled with soap suds in giant test by Culligan Soft Water Institute to demonstrate sudsing power of completely soft water and soap. Miss Williams wears costume from her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, "Jupiter's Darling." There are enough suds in the pool to do the family wash for about 15 years if soft water is used.
