

Stressing Denomination
One Sunday when the minister was visiting a Christian home, a little three-year-old joined in the conversation, saying, "My mother is not a Christian." This horrified the mother, and wondering why the little boy had said this, she asked him why he should talk like that. The boy's answer was, "My mother is a Methodist."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Creamed comments on the Sunday school lesson, God's Answer to Job's Perplexities, Job 38:1-7; 42:1-6, for Sunday, October 10.

A curtain between Job and God was a test of Job's faithfulness when he endured great losses and endured indescribable sufferings while friends insisted that because of losses and sufferings he was a wicked man. In this lesson the curtain is lifted and Job forgets about his misgivings; that God's face shines for him again is enough.

V.1. "Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said: "God hid himself in a cloud; his voice would be heard for it is most important that God be heard."

V.2. "Who is this that darkens counsel by words without knowledge? Man's mind is limited so there can be no complete understanding of God and his will. Lifting up to the light one has sufficient. It is no more necessary for the Christian to know everything in order to be happy than it is for him to have everything to be happy."

V.3. "Gird up now thy loins like a man; for I will demand of thee and answer thou me." Job having wished to meet God to secure reasons is now challenged to hear God.

V.4. "Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? declare if thou hast understanding." Eternity can not be matched by a few years. No man was present in creation, hence no man could speak with knowledge.

V.5. "Who hath laid the measure thereof, if thou knowest? Or who hath stretched the line upon it? Man's plan of building calls for a foundation and definite processes in its construction. Not so with the creation of the earth, for it exists in space; how explain that? Here is a fact with man's reason furnishing explanations.

V.6. "Whereupon are the foundations thereof? Or who laid the cornerstone thereof? The architecture of God is beyond the measure-

Billy Graham preaches that the individual should put his soul before his body, and that a nation should put God's laws before political expediency or fear of war. He sees in Communism a manifestation of anti-Christ, and is, therefore, convinced that opposition to it has divine sanction. He says that God will have the final word and that man should not compromise, nor does he need to compromise with what God has declared he will destroy. He distinctly preaches that there will be divine intervention in world affairs. To him, compromise with atheism is wrong, and sinful, and therefore, not only unnecessary, but far more dangerous than the H-bomb. Once accepted, this conviction naturally alters a man's whole outlook on foreign policy, just as Billy Graham's preaching alters a man's whole outlook on social relations whether in the factory or in the home.

To help someone more fortunate than we think we are gives us a new attitude of generosity.

ments of man. As God must be taken for granted, so his creation must be taken for granted. Great truths rest on axioms.

V.7. "When the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted together for joy!" The stars are poetically described as singing together upon witnessing the marvel of earth's creation. The sons of God are angelic beings.

V.8. "Then Job answered the Lord and said: "Job was humbled and spoke as a penitent."

V.9. "I know that thou canst do everything, and no thought can be withholding from thee." Job agrees with God that he is all powerful. In man's weakness, God's strength is manifest. Man is too weak to save himself but in Christ all may be saved.

V.10. "Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge? therefore have I uttered what I understood not; things too wonderful for me, I know not." Here is a confession in that Job presumed to know and understand God's dealings with him. Here is man's possibility when severely tried—just to wait on God and murmur not.

V.11. "Hear I beseech thee, and I will speak; I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me." This verse is a repetition of the divine challenge made to Job in 38:2. Job was greatly impressed by these words.

V.12. "I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now my eyes see thee." Much of Job's former knowledge was mere hearsay. Now he hears God speak.

V.13. "Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes." Job was not a sinner and yet he repented, for he had failed in judgment and he was guilty of an innocent error. Being imperfect in memory, judgment and reason, all men, even the righteous, are sorry for innocent misdoings and may well pray, "Forgive us our trespasses."

V.14. "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends." Job's afflictions were removed and his prosperity restored.

Book Review

Encyclopedia of Games, by Doris Anderson, is designed to show Christians how to have a good time with a treasure chest of games for every age group, including those for both indoor and outdoor, for summer and winter. The author has included written, mental and musical games, as well as stunts.

Our Preacher Says:

There are two things in life one can not get away from—himself and his memories. He can run away from home, from business, from the community, or from responsibility; in fact, he can escape from nearly everything but himself and memory. A store of good memories is a rich treasure; bad memories make a hell. The joy of visiting with old friends as couched in the words "Do you remember?" recalls happy experiences of the past and brings a sense of joy and thanksgiving, provided the deeds were good.

A loose tongue often gets its owner into a tight place.

A good many houses ought to be remodeled into homes.

Time spent in pitying oneself is worse than wasted.

Communism was frustrated by the power of Christianity in East Germany when the Soviet rule there was unable to forbid the Summer Congress of the Evangelical church held in Leipzig recently to consider the theme, "Let us talk together, East and West, and try to understand each other." The climax was the largest church service in German history — an estimated half million people gathered in a meadow to worship and reaffirm their Christian testimony. Consequently, we may well conclude that church attendance all over the world will produce such spiritual force that Communism will fall. Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?
