Congressman Amazed At Russian Exhibit

(Editor's note: How strong is Russia in the atomic field? What progress are the Soviets making compared with our own? As a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, the author of the following dispatch has followed these questions closely. He has now been able to draw some conclusions after witnessing the Soviet exhibit at the first international "atoms for peace" conference in Geneva. He is a well qualified observer of international developments, having been a decorated navy hero of both world wars, a member of congress for 15 years and now holding a captain's commission in the naval reserve. He represents Pennsylvania's 20th district and lives in Altoona, Pa., where he was born 56 years ago.)

praised for bringing about the conference.

United States government is leaving no stone unturned to actually put into operation its proposal for using atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

In looking over the Soviet and American technical exhibits I found ours to be superior because it is more technical and designed more to appeal to scientific minds. That, of course, is the real idea of this conference.

The Russian exhibit seemed more aimed at the man in the street instead of at the world's leading scientists.

It is my view that on the whole, the next 10 years will show the real results of this international conference.

GENEVA (INS) — I was amazed at the Soviet exhibit at this atomic conference when I visited it today. I found that they have made progress in fields where we thought they were far behind us.

For example, I was particularly impressed with the Russian progress in the production of electrical power from atomic energy.

I think they have made strides which we have not known about before.

But they are still behind us. That much is certain.

In the field of biology, they appear to have made greater progress than in electrical production from the atom.

But this is not surprising, since it is easier to move ahead in biology than in producing electrical power.

The Russians are also striding ahead in the manufacture of radionuclides, and apparently are now in position to supply their satellites with these.

They seem to have an abundance of raw materials for nuclear energy, but this is not surprising since we always have been of the opinion that they had the sources. The only problem there is that they are hard to locate.

The Soviet display here leads us to believe they have deposits which give them an adequate supply for the needs of raw materials for atomic energy.

I was tremendously impressed today by the enthusiasm—even the hunger—shown by these leading scientists from all countries of the world for more firsthand information on atomic energy.

This conference is going to generate a wave of enthusiasm throughout the world for using atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

The production of electricity from atomic energy seems to be the principle point all these scientists are asking questions about. They seem to be giving it the majority of their attention.

The standing of President Eisenhower in the world has been raised by this conference.

At the opening ceremonies, he was given credit for initiating the atoms for peace program and for this worldwide conference.

It was quite a thrill as an American for me to sit in that great hall filled with the world's top scientists and hear our President tative of the country marching by his flag. Leslie M. Frost, prime minister of Ontario, will bring greetings to the convention after which Edgar G. Burton to Toronto, president of the convention, will deliver the address. A choir of 600 voices will provide the choral music, and will be under the direction of Ernest Lawrence of Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Texas.

The work of the convention, aside from hearing reports on the progress shown by the various departments of the church will be that of laying new groundwork for an enlarged program of evangelism and Christian education throughout the world. Special group meetings at the local church level will be held each day. Twelve study group breakfasts will be held on Wednesday and Thursday in the Royal York Hotel. These groups will study six subjects bearing on the doctrine of the church. Dr. L. Shelton, dean of Butler university, will be in charge of the meetings. The convention will come to a close Sunday afternoon when more than 8,000 delegates will gather in a communion service. Over 400 elders and deacons will serve at the communion table.

First Christian church of this city will be represented by the Rev. and Mrs. Traverse Chandler, Mrs. Edward Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Daniels.

World Conclave Of Churches Of Christ

To Meet In Toronto
August 16 To 21

The fifth world convention of the Churches of Christ will convene in Toronto, Canada, August 16-21. This will mark a quarter century of cooperative work between the Christian Churches of the United States and Canada with the Churches of Christ in the British Empire.

The convention will bring together the leaders of the churches in each of the countries as well as the laymen who have assumed leadership among the congregations. Interest in the convention has been heightened since the churches have chosen to work together in a united effort rather than as national groups where their spheres of influence have met.

The convention will open Tuesday at the Maple Leaf Gardens.

This is the largest auditorium in Canada and will serve as convention headquarters. The session will open with a pageant of flags symbolizing the work of the churches in the many countries around the world. At the head of the pageant will march two young people carrying the open Bible and the Christian flag. Following these people will come 32 flags carried

by boys and girls with a represen-
