Gov. Craig Defends Mental Health Head

Resignations Not Dr. Morgan Fault

INDIANAPOLIS (INS) — Governor George N. Craig has come to the defense of his state mental health commissioner, Dr. Margaret Morgan.

He said that recent resignations of psychiatrists at Large Carter hospital were not the fault of Dr. Morgan but were due to the lack of a chairman at Indiana University's psychiatry department.

The governor said that the shortage of psychiatrists is nation wide and that as a result Indiana will use general medical practitioners in the state mental hospitals.

Craig said Indiana's mental hospitals need 50 to 60 more psychiatrists, but added:

"We're not going to be stymied because we don't have enough. We're going to take the next best."
