

Urge Fair Visitors Visit Purdue Show Colorful Displays At Purdue Building

Visitors to the 1955 Indiana state fair, August 31 through September 9, should make a special effort to see the Purdue University exhibits.

Twenty colorful displays based on the theme "Better Farming and Better Living" will greet Hoosiers who stop at the Purdue Building. Purdue short course and exhibit specialists who planned and constructed the displays say there is something of an educational interest for everyone.

Illustrated work of county agents who have directed the new better farming and better living program in Indiana will be featured in a special display.

Visitors may participate in a question and answer program which has been arranged by agricultural economists. At a third stop, live sheep will show the contrast in a good and poor ram. Two pens of four lambs each will be shown. A highlight of the entire show will be the use of a Geiger counter by bio-chemists to determine radioactive tracers in chickens. The agricultural chemist will be at work at a special laboratory to show how they arrive at scientific conclusions.

A rural health exhibit will be seen as will the farm safety exhibit, "Harvest of Hands". Photographs will show Hoosier farmers who have lost fingers or hands as a result of corn picker accidents. Three phases of pond construction, ground prior to construction, construction work, and the water-filled pond will be viewed. Agricultural engineers have also constructed a half-scale horizontal pole-type silo. Displays on outdoor runways for heifer calves, brucellosis eradication, entomology, 4-H work, botany and plant pathology, and agronomy are among other exhibits which are expected to attract considerable interest in the Purdue Building.

taxes already deducted - to give them funds to restore their property.

Attorney general George Fingold warned residents of flood areas to beware of fly by night salesmen and contractors who promised speedy repairs, claiming the government would finance the cost out of a special insurance fund. He promised to prosecute those who prey on flood victims.

CIVIL CITY LEVIES (Continued From Page One)

The resolution passed by the councilmen Monday night was to permit the transfer of $6,000 from the parking meter fund to the general fund for the purpose of payment of two patrolmen. This was done in order that the patrolmen receive pension benefits on the salaries.
