Say Navy Crucifies Characters Of Many Security Program Misuse Is Charged

WASHINGTON (INS) — Senators accused the navy today of needlessly using its security program to fire a Providence, R.I., sheet metal worker it could have dismissed anyway.

Sen. Olin Johnston (D-S.C.) charged that the case of Joseph H. Summers, Jr., a 26-year-old navy veteran, is an example of how the program has been used to "crucify the characters of many people."

Johnston is chairman of a senate civil service subcommittee investigating the federal employees' security program.

Summers said he was told he was fired because his parents allegedly had belonged to subversive organizations. He said he didn't know of any such groups.

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) agreed the "navy made a mistake" in classifying Summers as a "security risk" to fire him. He said Summers was a probationary employee and the navy could have fired him without giving any reason.

Red Collaboration Charged Sergeant Charges Are Filed Against Sergeant

FORT MEADE, Md. (INS) — An army sergeant was charged today with collaborating with the enemy by participating in anti-American theatricals while a prisoner of the Communists in North Korea.

The charges were filed against Sgt. William E. Banghart, 27, of Muncy, Pa., and second army headquarters ordered a pre-trial investigation to determine whether the infantryman should be court-martialed.

Banghart was accused of playing a leading role in a Red propaganda movie filmed by his captors, and by acting in a stage play based on the "germ warfare" theme and depicting the U.S. as a barbarous nation.

The soldier also was charged with making a radio broadcast in which he allegedly ridiculed his country.

Banghart, now stationed at Fort Meade, was assigned defense counsel. Army officials said he is not under confinement.

The sergeant was captured while serving with the 25th infantry division on Dec. 8, 1950, and was released in "operation big switch" on Aug. 23, 1953.

Query Several In Gangland Slaying Names Found In Victim's Notebook

WAYLAND, Mass. (INS) — Four women and several men were questioned today by state police in the gangland slaying of Arthur S. Burns, 35, Boston hoodlum.

Names of three Boston women and one from Somerville and the men were found in a notebook on the body of Burns.

His ruthless killing, authorities believe, may be entangled in the recapture of New York assassin Elmer "Trigger" Burke in South Carolina, the $1 million 219 thousand Brink's robbery in 1950, the $681 thousand Danvers armored car theft in 1952, jalled Joseph "Specs" O'Keefe and missing John Henry Carlson.

The murder of Burns, part time seaman, part time dishwasher and part time thief, in the words of state police captain Joseph Crescio is "probably definitely linked at least with the Burke case."

Burns, a half smoked cigaret in his hand, was shot three times in the back and twice in the chest less than 24 hours after Burke was snared by the FBI at Folly Beach, S. C.
