Response to the Thursday high school news columns appearing in the Daily Democrat has been most encouraging. We wish to welcome our new readers, who are being added each day to our mailing list. High school news of Pleasant Mills, Monmouth, Adams Central, Decatur and Decatur Catholic appears each Thursday in the Daily Democrat.

October is a good month to do a little lawn doctoring. Grass, planted this month, still will take root and grow and the new grass will be much more weed and disease repellent if it is started this fall rather than next spring. Many shrubs and hedges also do better with fall trimming. Your county agricultural agent has pamphlets pertaining to this "home dress up work."

The annual membership drive for 1956 of Adams Post, American Legion, will start next Saturday, according to membership chairman Fred Bieberich. Each year the local post is among the first in Indiana to attain its quota of members for the new year. Adams post is regarded as one of the outstanding groups in Indiana and indications are that its membership for 1956 will reach a new high.

It's coming the time of year when all types of organizations will send out urgent requests for financial aid. We believe this community is most favorable to the annual Community Fund drive, which is presently underway. By giving to that fund drive, you actually contribute to eight worthy local organizations. The Daily Democrat has been reluctant to recommend other drives for funds, except in dire emergencies. All people of the community are urged to give careful consideration to any requests for financial aid. Many of these groups spend a large percentage of the money received for administrative purposes and very little of your contribution goes to the cause which you intended.

New U. S. highways 33 and 27 from Decatur to Fort Wayne will soon be opened to the public. Many of the dangerous hills and curves have been removed and this Highway is regarded by experts to be the latest in highway transportation. With the new highway comes the constant worry of more speed and the possibility of more accidents. If motorists use the highway with sense and caution, it will be an asset to the community.

This is national Fire Prevention week. Principal purpose of the week is to remind property owners of the hazards of fire and urge complete inspection of their properties. Decatur has been fortunate the last few years in not having experienced a serious fire. Our fire department has an excellent record and because our citizens cooperate with fire insurance companies on keeping properties as near fireproof as possible, this city has one of the lowest insurance rates of any city in northern Indiana.

The Decatur Casting Co. had operated in this city for thirty-five years without a serious labor problem. Recently, employees decided to stop work until a new contract was signed. Naturally everyone in Decatur is concerned over the situation because everyone in a strike area is affected, either directly or indirectly. Let's hope that this week will bring a permanent settlement of the differences, so that men employed there may again earn a livelihood for their families.

Governor Craig, whose latest Florida vacation was interrupted because of the seriousness of the Perfect Circle strike at New Castle in the vicinity of all four of the strikebound Perfect Circle plants. A big majority of the people of Indiana believe in the orderly adjustment of differences whether they be in labor circles, economical problems or political situations. We admire the Governor's courage and time will tell if his action was a wise one.

Modern Etiquette

Q. If a young woman is traveling alone on a train and meets a strange man who offers to pay for her meal, should she accept?
A. It is better for her to decline. However, there is nothing wrong with their dining together at the same table if she is favorably impressed with him.
Q. What should a young man do when at a party or other function, and he finds himself next to a girl to whom he has not been introduced?
A. He can say, "I am Ralph Jackson. I do not believe I have met you."
Q. Whose privilege is it to decide upon the outfit to be worn by the bridesmaids at a wedding?
A. This is the bride's privilege. But it is considerate for her to consult her bridesmaids in the matter.

MARRIAGE for THREE
By: ELIZABETH SEIFERT

CHAPTER THIRTY
ADAM took Ann, of course, to see Pinky's house as she had asked, and as usual with Adam, he became interested in the house he was building. He described the walled garden at the back of the house, and the "plant space" before the front windows. That wall was to be lower—the garage was to have windows to match the house—a two-car garage.
"Why two?" asked Ann in surprise. "Pinky doesn't have even one car, though I've often wondered why. If she has the money to build a house..."
"I hope she does have it," growled Adam. He had a hammer in his hand, and with it he gave a sharp lick to a form board. He glanced up at Ann from under the brim of his hat. "This house is costing too much," he said in a worried tone.
"It will be a bigger house than ours," said Ann, who had been walking about, "in all ways, won't it?"
"Yeah—our living room is sixteen by twenty-four—this one is eighteen by thirty." He sighed heavily. He knew very well why Pinky was building this house. He even suspected why, in every instance, it must better the house he'd built and which Ann had claimed.
He cracked a small stone with his hammer. It was a pleasure to see the loose-wristed fashion with which he held a hammer, and used it. Ann guessed at what he had meant to say. He wished he had not got into this house matter with Pinky.
She followed him, said something about liking the kitchen tucked in behind the garage—that would leave the entire garden space for the bedroom and living room windows.
"I did it," growled Adam, "to put the bathroom plumbing and the kitchen pipes all in the same wall."
"Oh, you would!" said Ann, laughing.
"Well, gee, Ann, it's going to cost a mint. I mean, even if Pinky has the money, she'll equal at the full amount—and she'll be right, using. This will keep the skin soft and pliable.

Cutting Fur
When cutting fur, never use the scissors. An old razor blade or a very sharp knife should be used to cut the skin at the back.

Producers Of Steel
Study Price Boost
May Boost Prices
To Expand Plants

NEW YORK (INS) — The magazine Iron Age reported today that steel producers are worrying about where they will get the money to finance much-needed expansion.
It said some producers are thinking in terms of higher prices to bolster earnings and attract more money from investors.
According to the publication, the problem is a tough one to solve. It noted that expansion already is under way or in the planning stage, but some of this was predicted on continuation of the fast tax write-off program, which has been terminated by the government.
Iron Age recalled that in recent years, steel price rises have been tied in with higher wages for steel labor, but it pointed out that there was no reason why prices could not move at any time, depending on the need for a better return on investment.
The publication quoted some steel leaders and industrial economists as holding the view that the present economic picture would support higher prices.

Meanwhile, Iron Age reported that steel procurement continues to be a serious problem for most consumers, with allocations being cut to the bone in an effort to bring deliveries into line with promises.
However, the publication noted that the outlook for the balance of the year promises a continuing scramble for tonnages necessary to keep production lines rolling. As a result, prospects for any inventory build-up were said to be out of the question.

She was taken to the Adams county memorial hospital for observation and treatment of bruises on her head and stomach. The accident occurred after she lost control of her car on loose stones.
The car swerved into a ditch and turned over. Sheriff Merle Afford and deputy sheriff Charles Arnold, who investigated estimated damage to the car at $500.

Gives Procedure
Of Using GuardsCol. Howard Wilcox
Inspects Guardsmen

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (INS) — Col. Howard S. Wilcox, commanding officer of the Indiana national guard troops assigned to New Castle, Richmond and Hagerstown, today explained the procedure whereby "civilian soldiers" suddenly quit being the former and start being the latter.
Col. Wilcox was in New Castle for a checkup of guardsmen assigned to the Perfect Circle Corporation plant where a bullet-punctuated battle occurred a week ago between non-strikers and strikers and sympathizers.
He explained:
"We have been called upon before on an armed basis, but it was merely to police and prevent looting in disaster areas. Never have we been summoned as interceptors for two-way gunfire within the boundaries of the United States."
"However, the organization functioned perfectly. We were completely ready for orders on every basis from uniforms, arms, ammunition and transportation to the point of life and property protection from pre-determined key points."
Here is how the guard went into action after Gov. George N. Craig ordered the men into the area:
When the limited martial law was declared in New Castle after eight employees were wounded by rifle and shotgun shells, Col. Wilcox called all his battalion commanders in Indiana to put staff and enlisted men on a four-hour alert.
This is done by what Wilcox described as a telephonic chain letter. The battalion executive officer calls his junior officers who alert their senior non-coms. In turn they choose five corporals each to contact five enlisted men each, until the company complement is complete or accounted for.
With Wilcox in charge of the Henry county and New Castle operations, the only other field troop commanders summoned are:
Lieut. Col. Walter B. Fries, Indianapolis headquarters company, assigned to Hagerstown.
On detached duty from the Gary unit is Lt. Col. Don K. Stimson of the 113th engineering battalion, and Lt. Col. William Cook, also on special duty commanding the military police patrol.
Side-arm ammunition has been issued only to officers and senior non-commissioned officers. However, tear gas projectors, fire hose contacts, instructions and equipment are blue-printed for the regular enlisted men to prevent unauthorized crowd massing.
The state guard is working on a staggered hourly basis, pre-determined by units, of four hours on and four off, six on the three-day and straight eight-hour shifts.
High school seniors and guard enlistees now in college have been either deferred or excused according to the local financial, distance involved or family situations by the unit commander, Wilcox said.
All on active duty, however, are on a one-week rotation basis. Each will be paid for time spent at month's end.
Two Sherman tanks were sent into New Castle and a pair of half-tracks are parked near the Hagerstown plant.
The troops are using armories, state highway garage areas and, in some cases, schools as their billeting. Field packs provide the bedding in most cases.
Chicago — Railroads of the U.S. in 1954 had a net income of about $673,600,000, representing the smallest net income for any year since fiscal 1949.
Duluth — The Great Lakes have natural deep water except in the connecting waterways.

MOBSTER Mickey Cohen hunches into his coat as he hurries from launch which brought him to the mainland from McNeil Island, Wash., prison, where he did a stretch for income tax evasion. Along with him is an off-duty guard. Cohen was Los Angeles' gambling kingpin before conviction. (International)
