ARROWS and heavy line border mark the 500-mile area between Putao and Kunlong where Red China troops reportedly have "invaded" Burma to depth reaching 60 miles. Red units were reported ranging in size from 40 to 150 men.

Burmese Premier Ba Swe (lower) called a cabinet meeting to discuss "this flagrant violation of Burma's frontier." The area invaded has been in constant rebellion since Burma declared independence in 1948.

Government Ends
Control Of Vaccine

Federal Allocation
Of Vaccine Ended

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government today ended federal allocation of Salk polio vaccine. It said commercial channels can do a better job of distribution.

Ending the voluntary method of controlling distribution does not affect the federal program for providing funds to states to buy the vaccine and to administer public vaccination programs for children under 20 and expectant mothers.

Marion B. Polson, secretary of health and education, and welfare, who made the announcement said he acted on the recommendation of Dr. Leonard A. Scheele. The recommendation was made before Scheele quit Tuesday to take a job in private industry.

The allocation had been on a state-by-state basis.

Scheele reported that demand is much stronger in some areas than others. Vaccine also is more plentiful now.

The public health service will continue to notify states of new batches of vaccine it approves. It also will continue to receive geographical distribution reports from manufacturers and advise them of any imbalance between supply and demand.

Scheele said he urged continuation of these functions "because we know there is still some distance to go before all children under 20 and expectant mothers in the United States have been given three injections."

He pointed out the government allocation system can be reinstated if circumstances change.

Continued Use
Of Suez Canal
Vital To U.S.

Eisenhower Says
Efficient Use Is Vital To America

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that continued efficient use of the Suez Canal, seized by Egypt, is vital to America.

Mr. Eisenhower said justice must be used in dealing with the Suez crisis. But he said the rights of the world must be preserved.

Mr. Eisenhower told reporters at a news conference that many nations of the world are faced with a great issue as a result of Egypt's action. He said it is important to every country with a sea coast and perhaps to others.

Right now, the President said, the great problem is to make certain continued efficient use of the Suez waterway. He called this vital for the economy and welfare of America.

A reporter noted that some nations are pressing for international operation of the canal. The reporter asked whether this might not induce other nations to call for internationalization of the Panama Canal.

Mr. Eisenhower said conditions affecting the two canals are not the same. He noted that an 1888 convention recognized the Suez Canal company's control of the waterway until 1968.

That same agreement, the President said, also recognized that the Suez should always be an international waterway open to ship of all nations in war and peace.

Other foreign policy developments at the news conference included:

Troops: Mr. Eisenhower hopes the United States can move in a direction which will place more emphasis on power, speed, and flexibility instead of just men. He said, however, that he has never heard of a proposal reported to have been made by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to reduce U. S. manpower by about 800,000 men in the next few years. The President noted, however, that there has been some feeling recently throughout the world to stress new weapons. He said the Soviet Union has followed this thought but not with any idea of cutting its overall striking power.

Panama: The President said his recent visit to Panama, where he attended an American chiefs of state conference, was of tremendous profit to him. He said he thought the meeting was the kind at reasonable periods. But he noted that could produce benefits. He held that it is always a little awkward to arrange a heads of state meeting of that sort.

Disarmament: He said the presidential disarmament adviser, Harold E. Stassen, has done a very splendid job in his disarmament task. He said few people would have the patience or courage to do what Stassen is trying to do.
