Indiana's 10 Best Men Are Announced

Retail Men's Wear Association Names

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Ten Indiana cities were represented today as the Indiana Retail Men's Wear Association selected the best dressed men in Indiana in 1956.

The top 10 included: C.W. Anderson, Ft. Wayne, works manager of the International Harvester plant in Ft. Wayne. Ralph McCarty, LaPorte, an automobile dealer. John E. Early, Evansville, an attorney. Howard W. Sams, Indianapolis, president of the Waldmar Press Co.

Frank Sullivan, South Bend, president of the Leahy-Sullivan Insurance Co. Elmo P. Gilliat, Bloomington, owner of the Tournier Hotel. Robert J. Poorman, Muncie, an advertising executive.

Francis S. Yenowine, Terre Haute, associated with Merchants Freight System of Terre Haute. Dr. W. Keith Sloan, Madison, a physician.

Ed Norris, Wabash, plant manager of the General Tire & Rubber Co., of Wabash.

Announcement of the selections was made by Conn Holloway, LaPorte, president of the association. He said the 10 were selected from 100 candidates throughout the state.

Frank McMahon To Central Soya Here

The transfer of Frank McMahon from the order and credit department of Central Soya Company, Inc., at Gibson, Ill., to the Decatur plant, was recently announced by A. J. Powell, assistant general credit manager for the company.

In his new position, McMahon will assume the duties of assistant in charge of the feed order and credit work at Decatur. He joined Central Soya in 1953, and is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Miss McDonald Says Kidnaping Attempts

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Marie McDonald revealed today her 24-hour disappearance last Friday during which she said she was held for $80,000 ransom wasn't the first time a kidnap attempt had been made on "The Body."

The beautiful blonde with green eyes and an attraction for headlines was the intended victim, she says, of kidnapers seven years ago when she was wed to Harry Karl.

"Shortly after we moved out of our Westwood home, two men broke in, robbed the place and tied up the housekeeper," she related as she rested at her Encino home.

"They said they were after 'the body' and my jewelry. Then they found out where we had moved to and tried to break into that house. I can't remember, but I think they were caught."

The actress made this disclosure as she chatted with reporters after she re-enacted the alleged kidnaping.

Police decided to film her actions in an attempt to solve Hollywood's most baffling mystery in many years. They said her narration of the film was "substantially" the same as the story she first told police after she was found hysterical on the desert, but "many details are different."

Eleven police officials and two dozen reporters and photographers convened at Marie's home Monday, a production staff worthy of a super colossal Hollywood epic. So many people jammed the "set"—her living room and bedroom—that police had to broadcast a play-by-play description of the action to reporters outside.

Her unofficial director for this movie was famed criminal attorney Jerry Giesler, who was on hand "to watch for anything out of line."

Garrett Man Treated For Gash In Throat

A man identified as John T. Andrews, of Garrett, was treated at the Adams county memorial hospital early this morning for a gash in his throat.

He was taken to the hospital after he and two companions were stopped by local police following a tip by a local service station attendant. The men had pulled into the station to inquire about getting a doctor for the wounded man.

A check by local police revealed that none of the three men was wanted so they were released after the wounded man was treated. It was believed that the wound was inflicted by a member of the party but since no charges were filed they could not be held.
