Tempest Is Stirred By Montreal Tailor

Only Barrier On Frontier Now Down

RICHFORD, Vt. (AP)—Paul di Paulo's one-man "iron curtain," the only barrier in 3,968 miles of U.S.-Canadian frontier, was down today. But Di Paulo wasn't out.

The Montreal tailor, who stirred an international tempest when he hoisted a 200-yard barbed wire fence at his farm here, planned to enlist the aid of high Canadian officials in his feud.

Di Paulo, who lives summers at the farm in Glen Sutton, Que., removed the barrier Tuesday night. The barricade, first erected briefly Saturday and re-erected Monday, blocked a rural road which loops into Quebec—and Di Paulo's farm—for a short distance.

He used it Tuesday to keep out market-bound milk farmers and other motorists, but allowed school buses and emergency vehicles to pass.

Di Paulo was disturbed because the road splits his 170-acre farm here. He tried to sell the town of Richford gravel on the road, which extends about 500 feet into Canadian territory, but his selling price of $10,000 drew top bid of $500.

The town claimed the gravel does not meet Vermont highway standards.

Di Paulo hoped to see the Canadian minister of external affairs in Montreal. He said he will erect another barricade if he wins official support.

Reports U.S.-Korea Relations Strained

New 'Girard' Case Reported Building

EDITORS NOTE: Charles R. Smith, who has just been named United Press chief correspondent and manager for Korea, arrived to find abuilding a new storm that threatens U.S.-Korean relations. In the following dispatch he discusses this potentially dangerous new "Girard case," what's behind it, and what it might lead to.

By CHARLES R. SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL (UP)—Korean government and U.S. military authorities worked behind the scenes today to prevent what could easily blow up into a new "Girard case" here in Korea.

The storm has been building up for months. But the thunder became intense only recently when two teenage Korean girls were shot by U.S. guards at the Kunsan Air Base some 100 miles south of here. Both the Korean government and top-level U.S. military authorities are carrying out intensive investigations into the incident.

The Korean press has used the incident to splash its sharpest criticism of U.S. troops in some time. And one top Korean official accused the U.S. troops of harboring "racial contempt" for the Koreans—this coming at a time when the Little Rock integration riots were top-head news here.

A series of so-called "minor" incidents at the air base have added fuel to the fire, incidents involving attacks by Air Force sentry dogs on Korean villages. Reports indicate none of the incidents resulted in serious injury and probably would not be significant if taken alone. However, tied in with the shooting of the two girls and several previous incidents in other areas, they become increasingly important.

The basic reason for the press criticism is the steadily growing pressure for a status of forces agreement between the U.S. and Korea.

The incident that kicked off the controversy and started the first sharp criticism occurred last May, but the case involving the two girls occurred Sunday, Sept. 15. The girls, Kim Yong Yi, 18, and Kang Kum Sun, 17, were struck by bullets fired by two Air Force guards on duty at a bomb dump area at the base.

Military spokesmen said the girls were part of a group of some seven or eight persons in the area who fled when the guards attempted to apprehend them for questioning. When the girls failed to halt, the guards fired into the group, one of the bullets striking Miss Kim in the temple and another striking Miss Yang in the arm.

Miss Kim has been listed in "critical" condition.

Korean press reports said the girls were cutting weeds outside the fenced-in area when the guards yelled at them causing them to flee.

Say Relations Good Both Korean and U.S. authorities say relations between the villagers and troops at Kunsan and in every other area are good.

They point out that the Korean people are now beginning to assert their independence for the first time since the end of hostilities.

The enmity between Japan and Korea is one of the basic reasons for a status of forces agreement, according to one highly informed source.

The source said the U.S. has a status of forces agreement with Japan, while Korea, as well as Formosa and the Philippines, are treated as "country cousins."

Official feeling among both American and Korean officials is that the situation as it now stands is not likely to get out of hand and develop into a critical situation.

But, they say, any new incident in the near future could seriously impair the present good ROK-U.S. relations.

Continue Probe Of Shooting By Youth

Uncertain Why Boy Killed His Father

TERRE HAUTE (AP)—Prosecutor John R. Jett said Tuesday that further questioning and investigation of 12-year-old Jerry Fulk, held for shooting his father to death "shows the unnatural workings of the boy's mind."

A letter hidden in Jerry's Vigo County Jail cell told of events in the boy's life before the slaying of Clifford W. Fulk on Sept. 22 and his plans and reactions to the killing.

"The wording of the writing, abnormal thinking contained therein and the language used make the contents such that they cannot be publicly divulged," Jett said. He added, however, that "they were appalling to all of us."

Authorities said they still were uncertain why Jerry killed his father, because of conflicting stories and facts. But they indicated the latest questioning showed he did it to get the family automobile so he could go on a store robbing spree.

A grand jury will meet Friday to investigate the case.

Charges Are Filed In Juvenile Court

Charges were filed in juvenile court Tuesday against an 18-year-old boy for contributing to the delinquency of a minor and juvenile procedures were also begun against a 14-year-old Decatur girl.

The two were apprehended Monday evening by local authorities, who had been searching for them since last Friday. The search began when the parents of the girl reported to the city police that she had run away to get married. The youngsters were found after they returned to Decatur.

U.S. Citizen Beaten To Death In Haiti

Relations Brought To State Of Crisis

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Official American charges that a U.S. citizen was beaten to death while in police custody brought relations between Washington and Haiti's ruling military junta to a state of crisis today.

The American, Shibley Talamas, was picked up Saturday night for violating the curfew while out seeking a doctor for his wife. She gave birth the next morning while Talamas was in prison.

A three-man U.S. medical team examined the body of Talamas, and said the chubby, 30-year-old American was beaten to death despite statements by the Haitian military government he had died of a "heart attack."

U.S. Ambassador Gerald Drew filed a vigorous protest with Foreign Minister Col. Louis Roumain and demanded a full explanation of the incident. But Gen. Antonio Kerebau, head of the ruling junta, refused to see him personally.
