Today's Sport Parade

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE (Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.) By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer MILWAUKEE (UP)—The World Series, all square at two games each, promises to get rougher today as an embittered band of New York Yankees who were beaten by their own patented medicine—the home run—go up against cocky and confident Lew Burdette.

They charged by insinuation that the big right-handed pitcher of the Milwaukee Braves was throwing a "spitter" when he won the second game of the classic at Yankee Stadium. It was a rough game of constant "brush back" pitches which at one stage approached the "duster" state and the Yankees have memories which would shame an elephant.

"They scare me," Burdette said, holding out a hand which was as steady as steel. "I'm not saying I'll beat them, but I'm not going to let them lose."

Hank Bauer, the guy the Yankees call "scrap iron," made most of the "spitter" insinuations against Burdette, several times asking the plate umpire to inspect the ball. But Burdette has heard and laughed at these charges often before.

Burdette Cleared

"Let 'em think I'm going to throw a spitter," he chuckles mirthlessly. "I don't, but if they think I do, it gives me another pitch."

By official decree of no less an authority than National League President Warren Giles, Burdette was cleared last April of throwing a spitball. The Cincinnati Reds yelled the loudest and Giles silenced even the raucous Redlegs with his official edict.

Beating the Yankees again would be particularly sweet to the 30-year-old Floridian because he once was a Yankee farmhand. Lew had a brief look, or what the ballplayers call a "cup of coffee," by going up with the Yanks at the end of 1950. But he appeared in only two games and they were both minute inspections.

Then, in 1951, the Yankees sent Burdette to the Braves as part of the deal in which they acquired Johnny Sain. It helped them to win the pennant and the subsequent World Series—but Lew would like it to cost them this one.

Has Another Reason

There's another reason, in addition to the money and fame which would accrue, why he'd like to win this one and help the Braves wrap up their first world championship. Last winter, after Milwaukee had lost the 1956 National League pennant to the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jackie Robinson charged that it was because the Braves were "a bunch of playboys." Burdette was identified as being among the bright light losers.

"That game Sunday, when Eddie Mathews hit a home run in the 10th to win for us, could have been the turning point of the Series for us," Burdette said. "It would have been disastrous had we lost and been down, three games to one, instead of being even. But this gave us a great lift and I think we'll be tough from here on in."

The Yankees know he'll be rugged. He was in beating them, 4 to 2, in the second game of the classic. And then there's always that "spitter," whether you choose to believe it or not. The Yankees have their own ideas.

Burdette does, too. And, win or lose, he's ready to let 'em guess.

Major League Vets Named Outstanding

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Stan Musial, Ted Williams, Warren Spahn and Billy Pierce today were picked by the Sporting News for this year's outstanding player and pitcher awards in the major leagues.

Calling it the "season of old pros," the national baseball weekly noted that all four of the players were over 30 years of age and three of them were closer to 40.

Season Is Closed By Women Golfers

The women's golf association closed its 1957 season Sunday afternoon with a two-ball Scotch foursome. A potluck dinner was held that evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bauman. First place went to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith with a 46. Tied at 47 were Mr. and Mrs. Don Gage and Mrs. Don MacLean, playing with Fred Striker.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holthouse, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, and Mrs. MacLean and Fred Striker tied for low putts, with 16 each. Plans for the 1958 season were formulated with the appointment of a rules committee which consists of Mrs. Clifford Saylor, Mrs. J. F. Sanmann, Mrs. Don Gage, and Mrs. John Bauman. Mrs. John Margerum will serve as treasurer for next season.

Ben Gerke To Head Dairy Association

Ben Gerke, Union township rally farmer, was elected president of the Adams county dairy herd improvement association Friday night at the annual election meeting, held at the Co-op Building in Monroe.

Gerke took office following a term by Franklin Steury, of Monroe township. Other officers elected Friday night were vice president, Roy Price; secretary-treasurer, Chris Stahley; directors, Paul Liechty and Roanoke Liechty. The election followed a basket supper, Rollin Dunsden, of the agricultural economics department of Purdue university, spoke on dairy marketing, and the future of dairying, including present trends.
