Say Cooperation Ideal Farm Role

Senators Speak At Illinois Meeting

CHICAGO (UP) — Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) defined the ideal government role in farm programs as one of cooperation rather than domination Wednesday night.

Such tools as will help farmers improve their methods, markets and standards of living should be provided by government, Aiken told the 43rd annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Assn.

The farmers also heard the views of Sen. James Eastland (D-Miss.) who said the government has means to alleviate the surpluses of farm commodities which pile up annually.

On the other hand, he said, farmers should be "instinctively suspicious of any proposal that leads in the direction of more comprehensive government direction of and responsibility for the business of producing and marketing farm products."

Eastland's address was read by his administrative assistant, Sam Thompson, when illness prevented the senator from appearing.

Government maintenance of minimum price supports is necessary, Aiken said, until such time as surpluses can be brought within "reasonable bounds."

He said previous government programs have resulted in distorting a normal supply and demand situation. Restoration of the functions of basic economic laws require patience and caution, he said.

Aiken said, however, there are several things which are not the responsibility of government to agriculture. The government "does not owe the farmer a satisfactory income regardless of whether a person is qualified to farm or whether the farm is an economic producing unit," and the government should be responsible only to farm programs which benefit the nation as a whole.

Eastland said one of the government's responsibilities is keeping open "the channels of international trade for the disposition of farm products."

Without the expansion in farm exports in recent years, he said, the agricultural situation at present would be "immeasurably more critical."

A handbell choir has been formed by Highlands Methodist Church in Birmingham, Ala. The choir is made up of 12 to 15 high school students and each plays two bells.

Kelso Wessel Heads Indiana Rural Youth

Annual Convention Is Held Wednesday

Kelso Wessel, of Jackson county, was elected state president of the Indiana rural youth Wednesday night during the 20th annual convention at the Murat Temple in Indianapolis.

Wessel, a former IFYE student in South America, spoke in Adams county recently at the junior leaders appreciation banquet at Monroe.

Wessel, who was nominated by Gloria Koenenman, district four president, was elected on the second ballot, after one of the four candidates had been eliminated.

Meridith Speicher, of Wabash, a former district four president, was elected first vice president; other officers are Bill Beard, Wayne county, second vice president; Ann Cord, Shelby county, secretary; Jean Crouse, Tippecanoe county, treasurer.

The appointment of Gloria Koenenman as national committee-woman for the rural youth, was approved by the convention delegates. The nomination must now be approved by the Indiana and American Farm Bureau.

Alice Kukulhan, of Adams county, represented district four in the talk fest, on the topic "The role of farm organizations in American agriculture." Miss Kukulhan was one of four speakers in the eastern division in the afternoon, and represented the district very well. The finalists from each division spoke in the evening session before the entire Farm Bureau assembly.

Jerry Sprunger and Sally McCullough, were the voting delegates from Adams county, which was also represented by Miss Koenenman, Miss Kukulhan, Kathleen Berger, and Barbara Lewton. Miss Lois Folk, county home agent, attended the evening session.

Adams county also was awarded $10 and a certificate for completing the "Add 11 in '57" contest for members. The county organization was also recognized as one of 11 counties in the state having more than 100 members.

During the evening session Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President, spoke on "The United Nations, and its importance to the individual citizen in the United States." Mrs. Roosevelt thrilled the rural youth and Farm Bureau members with her personal account of talks with world leaders.

Girl Scouts

Brownie troop 30 met at the Lincoln school Wednesday. The Brownie promise was repeated and dues were collected. We made place cards for Thanksgiving, that were made by each Brownie. A treat was furnished by Sheryl Teeple. We closed with Good Night Brownies.

Brownie troops 26 and 28 met Tuesday after school. The Brownie promise was repeated and dues were collected. Roll call was answered. Then we worked on our Thanksgiving favors for the county home. We also made some place mats for our Thanksgiving party to be held next week. Carol Frisinger treated us with candy bars for her birthday. We then closed our meeting.

Girl Scout troop 23 met Tuesday at St. Joseph school. We opened our meeting with the Girl Scout promise. We had roll call and dues were collected. We went outside and Teresa Heiman served us a treat. We played dodgeball, "dusty blue bird," "Bow, bow, Belinda," and "drop the hankie." After that, we sang "taps" to close our meeting.

Scribe: Teresa Heimann.

Troop 14. We collected the dues first. Then we asked if there were any bills to be paid. Next week, Patty Railing is to bring the treat. The treat at this meeting was furnished by Sandy Harner.

Atlantic herring is strictly a sea fish, for unlike the other herrings, the shad and alewife, it does not enter fresh water.

Asserts UN Best Future Peace Hope

Convention Hears Eleanor Roosevelt

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late president, Wednesday night told delegates attending the 39th annual Indiana Farm Bureau convention the United Nations should have control of all scientific efforts to penetrate the universe.

The 73-year-old former delegate to the UN urged Americans to adopt a new and enlightened attitude toward the Soviet Union and other peoples of the world.

She said the UN is the "best hope" for the prospect of our children living in a world of peace.

Mrs. Roosevelt urged support of the U.N., greater efforts at understanding the Russians and communism and relaxation of travel restrictions on visitors from the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who visited with Nikita Khrushchev while traveling in Russia recently, quoted the Russian dictator as claiming that his country has not turned down a single visa for an American tourist.

"It is the United States that has an iron curtain," he told her.

Mrs. Roosevelt said "there is a good deal of truth in his words." She called for further "understanding of the Soviets."

"You cannot win a battle unless you know your adversary," she said. "And this is a battle."

Mrs. Roosevelt said that most Russians she came in contact with believe the U.S. wants to destroy their country "because Americans hate communism."

"They think we are warmongers," she said. "And they believe whatever they are told by their controlled press."

The number of college and university students in the United States increased from 50,000 in 1870 to more than three million this year.
