Hurricane Lashes At Bahama Islands

Uncounted Damage
Done By Hurricane

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Janice, lashed the Bahama Islands with 75-mile-an-hour winds before churning into the open sea and leaving at least one dead and uncounted damage in its wake. An unidentified sailboat skipper was believed to have drowned in Nassau Harbor when waves swamped his 15-foot dinghy. Witnesses saw the man, estimated to be in his late 50's, swimming in the swirling waters before he disappeared.

From other parts of the city, a favorite for honeymooners and tourists, there were reports of power lines down, unmanned boats destroyed and houses and cars damaged.

Moving Northeastward

The center of the storm passed about 30 to 40 miles west of Nassau shortly after noon Monday. At 11 p.m., it was located at latitude 26.5 north, longitude 76.1 west, or some 250 miles east of Palm Beach, Fla.

Miami weather forecasters said no U. S. coastal areas were in immediate danger.

Order Gale Warnings

Gale warnings were ordered up along the southeast coast from Cape Hatteras, N. C., southward to Vero Beach, Fla., for northeasterly winds 20 to 35 miles per hour near shore and up to 50 miles an hour further out. Small craft from Vero Beach southward to Miami and in the northern Bahamas were advised to remain in port.

The Weather Bureau said a high pressure area to the north, centered over the New England states, was partly responsible for the strong winds along with tropical disturbance. They said as the high pressure moved out, the hurricane probably would follow and continue to move away from land areas.

Seawolf's Crewmen In Excellent Shape

Physical Condition
Reported Excellent

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI) — The men of the atomic submarine Seawolf went through 60 days of isolation from the earth's atmosphere with little or no harm to their health, the sub's medical officer said today.

Lt. Cmdr. John H. Ebersold said the 11 officers, 94 enlisted men and one civilian who made the record underwater cruise that ended Monday were in excellent physical shape.

He said there had been a few colds and other minor ailments during the long voyage, but no major illnesses.

No great psychological problems arose from the men's isolation, either, Ebersold said, and so far as he could tell, the only tensions felt by any of the men had to do with worry over the welfare of their families.

The Seawolf pulled into its home base here late Monday. It left here Aug. 7 on a cruise that took it more than 15,700 nautical miles submerged.

Rickover Greets Ship
Rear Adm. Hyman C. Rickover, known as "the father of the atomic submarines," said in welcoming ceremonies as the Seawolf docked that the sub's historic cruise, along with the voyages under the North Pole icecap of the Nautilus and Skate, had "opened a whole area of the world to exploitation."

Rickover added that "sober reflection should be given to the fact that this area is open to potential aggressors also."

The Seawolf's skipper, Richard B. Laning, was promoted from commander to captain at just about the time the sub surfaced Monday off Block Island, R. I., at 11:45 a.m. e.d.t.

Test Of Strain
He said at a press conference in New London Monday night that the Seawolf actually could have stayed undersea up to twice as long as the record it set.

Trial For Alleged Killer Is Delayed

Routine Motion To Quash Indictment

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mrs. Connie Nicholas, 42, went to court in "mourning black" Monday for her second appearance in the slaying of wealthy drug executive Forrest Teel.

But she refused to say whether the black which predominated her suit, hat, veil, shoes and the sling on her ailing arm was inspired by fashion or out of respect for Teel, her lover for 15 years before he was shot to death in his white Cadillac after a night out with a younger woman.

Mrs. Nicholas had been scheduled to plead innocent to a first-degree murder indictment at her arraignment. But her attorneys came up with a routine motion to quash the indictment on technical grounds.

Judge Saul Rabb set Oct. 14 for oral arguments on the motion, which has to be decided before Mrs. Nicholas makes her plea.

Arm Sling Black

Even the sling on her injured arm was black when Mrs. Nicholas made her second appearance in court in the slaying of Teel, 54, executive vice president of Eli Lilly & Co., one of the nation's largest drug houses.

Mrs. Nicholas wore a black silk and wool suit, a black velvet hat with a black veil and black patent pumps with a white blouse.

The black sling held her right arm which she claimed her hand-some ex-lover injured in a scuffle before the shooting.

She used a handkerchief to wipe away tears when the indictment was read.

But after the hearing, Mrs. Nicholas managed a smile for reporters.

"Are you really 42?" a newsman asked the petite and attractive career woman.

"I always subtract a year when I have a birthday 'anywhere,'" she said.

"Are you still in love with Forrest Teel?"

"I can't answer that."

A police escort returned Mrs. Nicholas to the detention ward at General Hospital after the hearing. She has been there under 24-hour guard since she was found near death nearly 20 hours after the shooting.

Takes An Overdose

Police said she had taken an overdose of barbiturates.

Mrs. Nicholas' right eye was bruised and cut when reporters talked with her for the first time three days after the shooting and only hours after she came out of a coma. It still was red Monday and appeared not to have healed.

There was a small splint on one finger of her left hand.

Defense attorney Frank Symmes Sr. filed the motion to quash on grounds facts cited in the indictment were not a public offense and the indictment did not state the charge with sufficient certainty. It was a common technical basis for a quash motion.

Symmes said he would try to delay a trial until doctors said Deputy Prosecutor William Sharp said he was ready to handle the state's case when the judge set a date.

Mrs. Nicholas said she wanted an early trial.

Eisenhower Takes Over Campaign Lead

Takes Leadership
Of Party Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower appeared today to have assumed leadership of a reinvigorated Republican vote-getting campaign based on a Nixon-inspired "give 'em hell" technique.

Outlines of the all-out GOP drive to recapture control of Congress were written large at the conclusion of Monday's White House conference of the President, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Republican congressional and party leaders.

In a statement endorsed by Eisenhower and bearing signs of Nixon's trademark, the conferees charged that reelection of a Democratic Congress would mean higher taxes, bigger spending, nationalization of industry and eventual socialism for America.

Only election of a Republican Congress, it declared, could maintain a "free economy vigorously at work."

The Democratic National Committee withheld immediate comment. But Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), confidently forecasting a Democratic landslide next month, scoffingly called the White House conclave a "wake" even before delivery of the "political corpse."

Details of the new GOP onslaught remained to be spelled out in campaign speeches by leading Republicans including the Chief Executive who plans to expand even further his already large role in the 1958 political wars.

As a prelude, the President scheduled an early morning conference today with Dr. Malcolm Moos, Johns Hopkins University professor who is his newly-appointed administrative assistant and speech-writer.

It was his second conference with Moos in two days. The White House, as if to call attention to the president's new political emphasis, specifically announced both conferences involved "political speeches."
