Supreme Court Will Review Gas Rulings

Hopeful Of Lowered Prices To Consumers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for the nation's large cities said today he hopes a forthcoming Supreme Court decision on natural gas regulation will mean lower consumer prices.

The high court agreed Monday to look into a phase of Federal Power Commission (FPC) procedures which city interested claim is adding millions of dollars to fuel bills.

The National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, which claims to represent more than 1,100 cities, supported the Oklahoma Natural Gas Co. in bringing the case to the court.

The issue ... vitally affects every municipality in the United States which purchases natural gas for its own consumption, or whose residents are consumers of natural gas," the institute said.

The test case arose when Natural Gas Pipeline Co., which serves Chicago, sought to expand its service by extending its pipeline farther into Texas and buying additional gas from three producers there. The FPC approved the project although the producers were charging Natural Gas Pipeline Co. more than the prevailing rate in the area.

The Oklahoma company contended the commission should be compelled to determine whether the new rate—and all new rates—was "reasonable" within the framework of the Federal Power Act. Such a finding is now made only when old rates are revised.

The court will set a date for arguments on the issue later this term and follow them with a written ruling.

Italians Have Low Rate Of Alcoholism

Heavy Consumers But Alcoholics Are Few

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here are the main reasons why Italians are among the world's heaviest consumers of alcohol but at the same time have one of the lowest rates for alcoholism in the world. They drink wine and they drink it for health, in their opinion, and rarely for stimulation. To them wine-drinking is taken for granted—it causes no comment and needs no defense. And they eat when they drink.

This is from the final report of a years-long comparative study of the drinking and eating of 247 representative Italians and 251 representative descendants of Italian emigrants to the United States.

These Americans do not handle alcohol nearly as well as their racial brethren in Italy, the study showed. They consume less alcohol but have a much higher rate of alcoholism.

They drink whisky and beer in the main rather than wine and they drink not for health but to be "sociable" and for kicks. They separate drinking and eating, and they find it necessary to defend even moderate drinking. In these and other particulars they conform to the common American "pattern."

The detailed, scientific study was under the auspices of the Yale (University) Center of Alcoholic Studies. The chief American investigator was Dr. Giorgio Lolli, former medical director of the Yale Plan (Alcoholic) Clinic in New Haven, Conn., now in private practice in New York. His Italian opposite number was Dr. Emidio Serianni, director of the Instituto di Alimentazione e Dietetica of Rome.

The purpose of the study was stated succinctly by Mark Keller, editor of the complete report published today by Yale: "That drinking must precede alcoholism is obvious," he said, "equally obvious but not always sufficiently considered is the fact that drinking is not necessarily followed by alcoholism." The latter is impressive by a fact in Italy but in the U.S. It has a high rate of exceptions.

Taller and Fatter

The Americans of Italian descent were both taller and fatter than the Italians; they had had more education and had a higher standard of living. They were "heavy eaters" by and large while the Italians were "moderate eaters" and also monotonous.

eaters. The Americans were "irregular, sporadic" eaters.

The report found that the "drinking behavior" of Italians provides a variety of protections against some dangerous effects of alcoholic beverage. But when Italians become Americans these protections are lost. The study traced increasing degrees of loss in first, second, and third generation Italo-Americans.

It gave emphasis to the psychological side of American drinking. In Italy, this side is minor, since wine is a food, like any food. But in America, "the custom of using alcoholic beverages separately from other food items—notably at the cocktail hour—is linked with a search for the psychological effects of alcohol." And this "cannot fail to favor those conditions which are conducive to intoxication and the excessive use of alcohol."

Carpenters Union Plans Public Drive

Counter-Offensive On Labor's Enemies

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has disclosed plans for a multi-pronged campaign to gain the good graces of the public.

Maurice A. Hutcheson, general president of the largest craft union in the world, said Monday the union will launch a "counter-offensive" against labor's enemies, those who have applied such terms as "socialism" and "un-Americanism" to labor.

Hutcheson told 2,000 delegates attending the opening session of the union's 28th general convention that the union plans to fight actively "in the competition for the minds of men."

A New York firm, Communications Counselors Inc., has been engaged to demonstrate that the union members are good citizens he said.

He also said he would answerfully charges of alleged corruption in the carpenters union made before the AFL-CIO Executive Council and the McClellan committee.

"The union's national headquarters will be moved from Indianapolis to Washington, D.C., to establish close liaison with government officials on labor relations matters," Hutcheson said. "And construction of a new two-million-dollar building will begin next spring and should be finished within two years."

The union's headquarters have been in Indianapolis since 1903.

Reds Threaten Resumption Of Daily Attacks

Deepens Confusion On Red Intentions In Formosa Strait

TAIPEI (UPI) — A local Communist threat to resume daily bombardment of Nationalist China's Quemoy outpost islands deepened confusion today about Red Intentions in the Formosa Strait. Nationalist monitors in the Quemoy said the Communist threat was broadcast by a loudspeaker near the southern tip of red-held Amoy island, but not by other speakers in the chain opposite the outpost islands or by the Peiping Radio.

Communist guns were thundering when the announcement was made, but the bombardment followed this month's pattern of steadily diminishing volume. Up to noon, 232 shells had fallen on the Quemoy—114 fewer than at the same hour Monday.

The Chinese Nationalist Defense Ministry said loudspeakers in red-held Amoy repeated the announcement several times between 6 and 8 a.m. however, the warning was not immediately broadcast by the Communist radio.

"We attach absolutely no importance to this propaganda statement," a ministry spokesman said.

Today's bombardment had been expected as part of the Red policy of shelling the outpost islands on odd-numbered days of the month. It will be impossible until Wednesday to judge the effect of the latest shift in Communist policy.

Meanwhile, a U.S. aid official returning from the Quemoy said Nationalist authorities there are taking precautions to protect soldiers and civilians against gas attack.

He said gas masks have been issued to all Nationalist troops in the Quemoy. Civilian residents have been instructed to cover their faces with wet towels in case of gas attack and to move up wind or uphill in search of fresh air.

Teen-Age Boys In Trouble In Thefts

35 Evansville Boys Among Implicated

United Press International

Teen-age boys were in trouble today at Evansville, Delphi and Indianapolis on charges of stealing cars for joyrides, drag-racing and robberies.

At Evansville, Juvenile Court probation officer Glenn Meeker said that 33 boys from Evansville Memorial High School have been implicated in a series of joyrides, auto theft. Twenty of the boys have been referred to Juvenile Court and 15 more will be hailed before authorities for questioning.

Some of the boys are only 14 years old and few of the group had a driving license, Meeker said.

Some of the Evansville boys are sons of prominent attorneys, physicians, business and professional men.

Meeker said all the cars — about 20 of them — were recovered.

At Delphi, Carroll County authorities held three Indianapolis boys, two of them 16 years old, on suspicion of auto theft and robbery. Deputy Sheriff John Miller said the boys were arrested after a 100-miles-an-hour chase over country roads in a car they said they stole at Indianapolis.

They were questioned about an armed robbery of a Kokomo gas station Friday night.

At Indianapolis, State Police held four of a group of seven Indianapolis teen-agers arrested in a week-long rash of auto thefts. Six cars and a license plate were stolen in five days and three of the cars were wrecked.

A 16-year-old boy who was on federal probation for transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines was cited by authorities as the ring leader. Five of the boys are 17, the other 15.
