Local delegates were among those attracted from the tri-state area.

"Not by means of godless Communism's so-called paradise, but by the hands of men but by means of God's established Kingdom will it come," he said. "This kingdom is not a spiritual state of goodness in one's heart; it is not just a high standard of morality; it cannot be legislated by the laws of men. It is a real government from heaven with a king Christ Jesus as ruler, says Isaiah chapter 9," he said.

Hearing Continued Until Next Friday

In the case of Mel Liechty, plaintiff, vs. William H. and Frieda Stavenig, the hearing will be continued Friday, June 12, at the Adams county circuit court. The trial was re-set from an earlier date to Friday, June 5, at 9:30 a.m. Testimony was heard, but a hassle over a point of law lasted until after 3 p.m., forcing the continuance to the June 12 date.

The defense objected to the plaintiff's testimony that he was a licensed realtor. They contended that the evidence must be introduced in the form of a registered document. The plaintiff is suing for $1,000 and lawyers fees on the charge that the defendants owe him a commission for a house sold in August, 1955.
