About Dogs

We noticed in the Winchester newspaper that the police of that city are waging an anti-noise campaign against both hot-rods and against stray dogs.

Stray dogs present a big problem to any city, bigger than most residents realize.

First comes noise and damage to property. Many people complain about this. A stray dog is both difficult to catch, and can also be dangerous.

Second is the spread of filth and disease to pet dogs. Stray dogs run into yards and bother pets which are kept in their owner's yards.

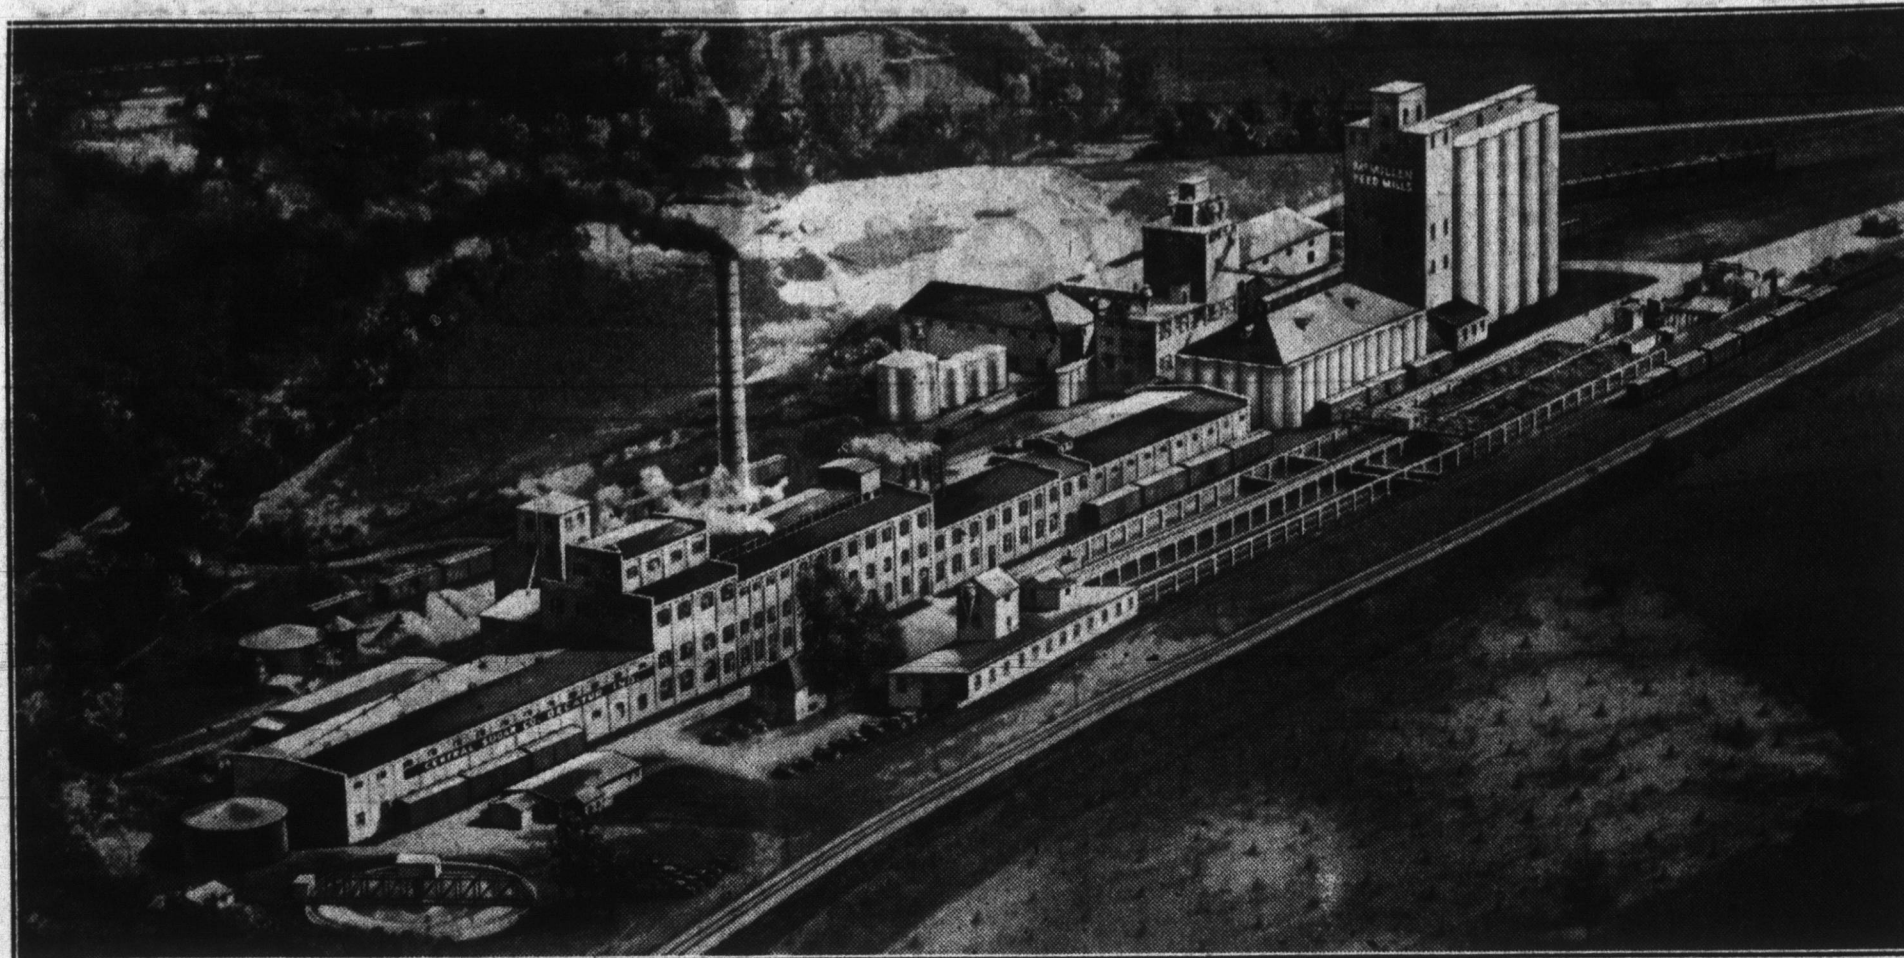

Third is the humane problem. While few people would think of abandoning a baby, many have "extra" dogs and cats from a litter, and rather than destroying them in a humane fashion, they let them loose in the city or country. One of our farm friends recently complained about this—farmers have enough pets already without taking in all the strays. Yet no one likes to see a starving animal.

The humane society is very interested in the problem. They suggest passing a law which increases substantially the cost of licensing a female dog that is not spayed to prevent its being a mother. That means that only people sincerely interested in breeding dogs could have a female dog that would breed. It would mean the end of stray dogs and "extra" litters that are dumped in the river or let loose to bother others.

A number of people who have given careful thought to the problem believe that this is the only humane answer. Some dog owners would undoubtedly object. Especially those who let their dogs range on other people's property, and don't take care of them, using the excuse that they don't believe in penning up dogs. Yet they would take better care of their own children—they wouldn't let their children range in other people's yards, doing damage, eating out of garbage cans, and creating noise at all hours of the day and night. Dogs, which are certainly not as smart as children, should not be given as much freedom as children—they cannot use it.

Many people keep dogs in decent pens with good run-about space, and take them out for a walk or romp daily. Many enjoy hunting with dogs, or training dogs. These are fine reasons for keeping dogs, and sincere dog lovers should be encouraged. But those who take the name of dog lover as an excuse for not caring for a pet should learn that in a civilized city dogs must be carefully regulated for the public good.

1936 Picture Shows Growth of Soya

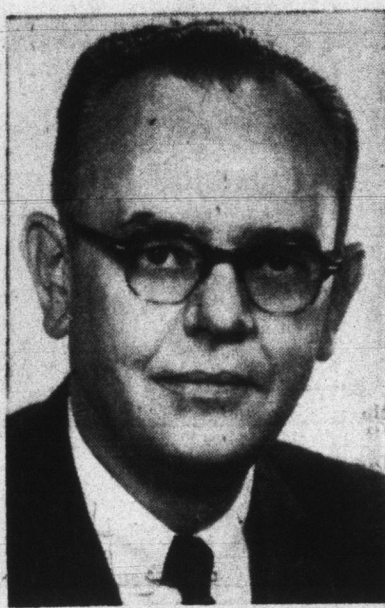

IN 1936 the first ten big silos had already been added to the feed mill and small silos. Still, the Central Soya Company, or McMillen Feed Mills, was only a small part of the Central Sugar Company, which it grew to swallow up during the Second World War. When the McMillen Feed Mills were established in 1934, only the small silos were built. Periodically since then, more silos have been added. The new silos are the largest used in the United States. Today, Central Soya silos store many other feed grains in addition to soybeans. During the peak of the soybean harvest, thousands of bushels are stored under canvas temporarily; the huge canvas area is located between the rows of silos, and is visible during the bean harvest from Second street extended. The Central Soya Company is Decatur's second largest industry, and supplies jobs for a work force of 500.

Bultemeier Contractor

A total of 11 sub-contractors took part in the building of the new plant office building for the Decatur Central Soya plant, Tom H. Allwein, plant manager, pointed out.

Bultemeier Construction Company, the general contractor for the building, which completed one wing built a year ago by the company to house the Central Soya engineering and technical staffs.

11 Subcontractors

Subcontractors include Graves & Hagermann, Inc., of Fort Wayne, flooring contractor; McKay Electric Co., Fort Wayne, electrical contractor; C. L. Schust Co., roofing contractor; Cupp, Inc., also of Fort Wayne, heating and air conditioning contractor; Haugk Heating and Appliances, of Decatur, plumbing contractors; Habegger Furniture, Inc., of Berne, interior decoration; Vance Decorating Co., of Fort Wayne, painting contractor.

tor; Meshberger Bros. Stone Co., Linn Grove, drives and parking lot; Allen L. Fleming, of route 3, yards and lawn; O'Reilly Office Supply Co., Fort Wayne, office furniture and fixtures; and Dicker, Inc., of Fort Wayne, ceiling contractor.

The building was started this spring, and completed early in June, when the office force moved. The open house was planned for this fall after all the furniture and equipment was installed, and the building and lawn were completely ready for public presentation.

Indiana May Be Political Battlefield

By EUGENE J. CADOU

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Indiana soon will become a Democratic presidential battlefield following the announcement that Sen. Vance Hartke will not run as a favorite-son candidate.

Also, National Chairman Paul M. Butler has predicted that there will be no attempt to tie up the Hoosier delegation to the national convention via the haikneyed native-son route.

Sen. W. Stuart Symington of Missouri, as the major speaker at the two chief Democratic gatherings in six months—the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Indianapolis and the banquet of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association at French Lick last Saturday—and through the active sponsorship of former National Chairman Frank E. McKinney, now is the front runner for Hoosier delegates.

Other invaders coming soon will try to overtake his lead.

"We're trying to have them all come to Indiana before the national convention," said state chairman Charles E. Skillen.

New Jersey Gov. Robert Meyner will be the first presidential invader on Sept. 18. He is scheduled to call in South Bend in the morning, address a luncheon meeting in Indianapolis and speak at a 7th District fund-raising dinner in Bloomington at night.

Dynamic and youthful Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts will make a much longer tour next month, which, according to all indications, will pave the way for his entrance into the Indiana presidential preferential primary next May, despite the fact that it is still binds the Indiana delegates for the first convention ballot only.

Siff Schedule for Kennedy
Sen. Kennedy will address a dinner meeting in Indianapolis Oct. 2, and will go to Fort Wayne Oct. 3, to Huntington Oct. 5 and to Lake County, the Hoosier party citadel, on Oct. 5.

Other presidential possibilities have enthusiastic Indiana supporters, including Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the idol of Hartke; Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota; and Adlai E. Stevenson, Aides of Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams likewise have contacted a number of Hoosier Democratic chiefs.

Although Vice-President Richard M. Nixon is the favorite of Governor Handley and the GOP state organization for president, there is some activity for New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in this state.

Capehart for Rockefeller
Sen. Homer E. Capehart and a number of leaders battling the Handley Republican faction are in the Rockefeller camp.

The next big GOP gathering will be held in French Lick, Sept. 15-17. It will be a joint meeting of the board of directors of the National Federation of Republican Women and the Indiana Federation of Women's Republican Clubs.

National chairman Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, Handley and Rep. Charles A. Halleck will speak.

Indiana Democratic women will gather in Indianapolis for a session Oct. 11-12. Butler is expected to be present.

For one man who can stand prosperity there are a hundred that will stand adversity. — Carlyle.
