

DECATUR DAILY DEMOCRAT

Published Every Evening Except Sunday By
THE DECATUR DEMOCRAT CO., INC.
Entered at the Decatur, Ind., Post Office as Second Class Matter
Dick D. Heller, Jr. President
John G. Heller Vice-President
Chas. Holthouse Secretary-Treasurer
Subscriptions: One year, $3.00;
Six months, $1.25; 3 months, $0.50.
By Mail, beyond Adams and Adjoining Counties: One year, $3.00;
6 months, $1.25; 3 months, $0.50.
By Carrier, 30¢ cents per week. Single copies, 6 cents.

Juvenile Delinquent?

Most everyone realizes that a person that commits a serious crime and who is under 18 years of age is a "delinquent child." But few realize that an act went into effect last March 12 that carefully defines just what a "delinquent child" in Indiana is.

Here are some of the things that will make your child delinquent, and you responsible (numbers are from the sub-paragraphs of Section 1, Chapter 237, of the acts of 1959):

(11) Wanders about the streets of any city, or on or about any highway or public place between the hours of 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. without being on any lawful business or occupation.

(3) Is incorrigible, ungovernable, or habitually disobedient and beyond the control of his parents, guardian, or other custodian.

(4) Is habitually truant (Have any of the girls been skipping school yet this year?)

(5) Without just cause and without the consent of his parent, guardian, or other custodian, repeatedly deserts home or place of abode.

(14) Uses vile, obscene, vulgar, or indecent language.

(17) Is guilty of indecent or immoral conduct.

(18) Deports himself so as to willfully injure or endanger the morals or health of himself or others. (Smoking is against the law for minors.)

(19) Deports himself so as to willfully injure or endanger the person or property of himself or others. (Watch out for halloween damage—or painting of signs and public property.)

There are several other sections of this law—especially the one which makes it an offense to associate with immoral or vicious persons.

These are for all young people under the age of 18. They apply to boys or girls. Every parent has the right to require of his children strict compliance with this law. If the parents do not, and do not complain to the juvenile court themselves, then they are guilty of contributing to the delinquency of their own children.

This means that parents are responsible for their children until they reach 18 years of age; it means that any act by the child implies the permission of the parents.

Young people out for a good time should reflect seriously—will your conduct bring shame on yourself and your parents? Will your conduct ruin your reputation, spoil your school fun for the next few years? Don't blame the police, the newspapers, the court, later on—just remember, it is your own action and deportment that bring you either pleasure and enjoyment or shame, punishment, and misery. It is your choice.

PROGRAMS

Central Daylight Time

9:00—Ding Dong School
9:30—Treasure Hunt
10:00—Pint Size Is Right
10:30—Concentration
11:00—Tie Tac Dough
11:30—It Could Be You
12:00—News and Weather
12:15—Farms and Farming
12:30—Yesterday's Newsreel
12:45—Faith To Live By
1:00—Queen For A Day
1:15—Blondie
1:30—Young Dr. Malone
1:45—These Roots
2:00—Truth or Consequences
2:30—County Fair
2:45—Bingo and Allen
3:00—NBC News

Evening

9:00—Gateway to Sports
9:30—Jack Gray
10:00—CBS News
10:30—Captain Kangaroo
11:00—The Price Is Right
11:30—Top Dollar

Afternoon

12:00—Love of Life
12:30—Search for Tomorrow
12:45—Guiding Light
1:00—The Jack Paar Show

1:30—News

1:45—The World Turns
2:00—Woman
2:15—Big Pay-Off
2:30—Verdict Is Yours
3:00—Brighton Day
3:15—Sports Story
4:00—Edge of Night
4:15—Dance Date

Evening

5:00—The Price Is Right
5:15—Tom Calenborn News
5:30—Highway Patrol
5:45—Eye Witness to History
6:00—Nancy Derringer
6:15—Zane Grey Theatre
6:30—Playhouse 90
6:45—The Real World
7:00—Commandos Strike at Dawn

WKJG-TV

Channel 33

WEDNESDAY

6:00—Gateway to Sports
6:15—News Jack, Gray
6:30—The Weatherman
6:45—The Price Is Right
6:45—Kraft Music Hall
6:50—Beat Mastership
6:55—This Is Your Life
7:00—The Real McCoy
7:30—Border Patrol
7:30—News and Weather
7:45—Sports Today
7:55—The Jack Paar Show

7:55—Morning News

THURSDAY

6:00—Gateway to Sports
6:15—News Jack, Gray
6:30—The Weatherman
6:45—The Price Is Right
6:45—Kraft Music Hall
6:50—Beat Mastership
6:55—This Is Your Life
7:00—The Real McCoy
7:30—Border Patrol
7:30—News and Weather
7:45—Sports Today
7:55—The Jack Paar Show

Morning

7:00—Today

Urge Nation Double Funds For Missiles

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Two of the nation's top missile experts were in agreement today that the United States should be spending double its present amounts to keep this country from falling further behind in the space race.

Dr. Werner von Braun, German-born space scientist, said Tuesday he was convinced that if Russia halted its space project now, it would still take up one to three years to catch up.

Von Braun, director of development for the Army Ballistic Missile Center at Redstone Arsenal here, blamed the lag on complacency. Washington red tape and lack of funds.

"We have the brains, the resources, and the capability," Von Braun said, "but we should be spending twice as much as we now are for space projects."

Von Braun was seconded in this evaluation by Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army missile agency at Huntsville. He noted that although Congress has appropriated every cent the administration has asked for, "we could use twice as much money as we now have."

Von Braun said the United States may be on a par with Russia in the development of war missiles, particularly the intercontinental ballistic missile, but that he has been "alarmed all along" by their space capabilities and was not in the least surprised when they succeeded in hitting the moon.

He said it may be three years before the first Saturn rocket, which will be capable of delivering a 25-ton payload to the moon, is launched. By that time he said, the Russians possibly will have advanced beyond the Saturn capabilities.

"At the present time," he said, "we do not have the carrier payload capability ... We have the guidance system necessary, but the important thing is match the size and magnitude of the present Russian lunar rocket."

Otherwise, he said, "when our young scientists blast off into space they will meet Russian customs officer."

A NEW MYSTERY COUNT of 9 by A. A. FAIR [Erle Stanley Gardner]

CHAPTER 32
AS WE REACHED the side-walk after the radio prowl officers had taken charge of Mortimer Jasper, I said to Sergeant Frank Sellers in a low voice. "I suppose you'll want me along to help you when you question Sylvia Hadley?"

"To help me what?" Sellers asked.

"Question Sylvia Hadley," I whispered.

He threw back his head and laughed. "Listen, Pint Size, don't get exaggerated ideas! Your partner, Bertha Cool, claims you're brainy. That's highly questionable, but don't let your publicity go to your head."

"You mean you don't want me any more?"

"I don't want any part of you, Lam. Get lost. Go home."

With that, Frank Sellers walked over to Sylvia and Inspector Giddings. He was in great good humor. "All right, sister," he said to Sylvia, "we're on our way."

They climbed in the squad car. Giddings took the wheel. Sellers slammed the door. "Get lost, Pint Size," he said to Sylvia.

I had seen a service station three blocks down the street. I walked down to it. It was pretty painful going. I got the service-station attendant to stake me to some dimes on the agency's credit card and called Bertha.

"Where the devil are you?" Bertha demanded.

"I'm at a service station in the 5800 block on Carrollton Drive. I'm in trouble."

"You're always in trouble. What is it this time?"

"A couple of goons stole the agency car."

"What would anybody want with that heap?"

"They didn't want the car," I said. "They wanted to put me in a stink. I need an automobile. I've got to have transportation. I've been beaten up pretty bad."

"Again."

"Again."

"Where did you say you were?"

"At 58th and Carrollton Drive."

"All right," Bertha said. "I'll get out there."

"I've been bloodied up a bit," I said. "I keep a suitcase packed at the office. If you could pick up that suitcase, I'd have a clean shirt and I could change."

"All right," Bertha groaned. "I'll do it. If there's anything in the theory of reincarnation, you must have been a football in your past life."

"Or a punching bag," I said, and hung up.

I called Phyllis Crockett. "Officers are going to see you to ask you to identify a jade Buddha as the missing statue that was taken the other night. Identify it, but don't do any more talk-

Pupils Back To Blasted School

Poultry Research Specialist Named

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Children returned to classes at Edgar A. Poe elementary school today where a madman bomber turned a play period into a nightmare of horror and left six persons dead and 19 others injured.

Authorities scheduled classes to day even though windows in the school were shattered by Tuesday's blast that tossed bits of human flesh on children at play.

The madman was Paul Harold Orgeron, a 49-year-old former convict. He carried his bomb in a big black suitcase and apparently touched it off with a timing device he worked with his foot.

Orgeron killed himself, his own seven-year-old son, Paul, two other seven year old boys, a Negro school custodian and a school teacher.

He might have killed more but for the quick work of teachers who herded some of the charges back into the building when Orgeron, after trying to gather a group of children around him, yelled that he had a bomb.

One of the seven-year-old boys killed was Johnny C. Fitch, the grandson of Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch who was second in command to the late Adm. William Halsey during the Pacific fighting in World War II.

The other victims were Bill Hawes, 7; custodian James A. Montgomery, 56; and the teacher, Mrs. Jeannie A. Koulter, 56.

So shattering was the blast that it was several hours before Orgeron's identity could be established by fingerprints on a severed hand found in the schoolyard.

Montgomery's head was blown off when he tried to rush the former convict.

All of the injured were pupils except Mrs. R. E. Doty, the principal. She lost a leg while answering a summons to investigate a scene caused by Orgeron.

Squeaky Floorboards

You can often silence squeaky floorboards merely by pouring some liquid soap into the cracks between the troublesome boards. The soap acts as a lubricant where the boards rub together, and it should be applied hot to assure penetration into the wood fibers.

Sept. 16, 1939—Work was started today on landscaping the grounds on the new Decatur high school on Jefferson street.

The annual institute for teachers in the Adams county rural schools was held here today, with morning and afternoon sessions.

The Decatur works of the General Electric Co. was awarded first place in the Fort Wayne works area for good housekeeping in August, with a rating of 91.18 for the month.

German troops attacked in force on both the Polish and French fronts.

The Decatur Yellow Jackets lost their home football opener to the Bluffton Tigers, 7-6.

The five-day outlook called for temperatures averaging 5 to 10 degrees below normal highs of 71 to 82 and normal lows of 51 to 63 for the period ending next Monday.

"Little temperature change until warming trend beginning over the weekend," the outlook said, adding that there will be little or no precipitation.

First Forecast Of Frost For Indiana

United Press International
A wave of cold air, accompanied by a drizzle, swept across Indiana today and kept temperatures in the chilly 40s at high noon with frost forecast as a possibility to night.

At Indianapolis, light rain fell in late morning. At noon, the temperature was only 48 degrees, and forecasters abruptly revised downward their predictions of the day's top readings.

The first forecasts of frost were made in the overnight predictions. They were limited to the extreme north portion, and the Weather Bureau didn't flatly predict frost—it said there was a "chance" of frost.

At 11 a.m. the mercury had climbed to 70 in the Louisville area, 65 at Evansville and 63 in the Cincinnati area. But elsewhere it was considerably chillier with Lafayette and Fort Wayne recording 49, Indianapolis 50, Terre Haute and South Bend 54.

The forecast called for temperatures upstate. Nevertheless, frequently the mercury drops a few degrees lower in scattered low spots than the forecast range.

The possibility of frost was enhanced by the prospect for clearing skies by tonight.

Before the mercury skidded, it hit the 80s over the southern half of the state Tuesday afternoon, including 82 at Indianapolis and the Cincinnati area, 83 at Evansville and 86 in the Louisville area. Upstate, however, temperatures were nearly 20 degrees cooler at top points, with South Bend and the Chicago area recording 66 and Fort Wayne 67.

Overnight lows included 44 at South Bend, 47 at Fort Wayne, 50 at Lafayette, 53 at Indianapolis and 56 at Evansville.

Light rain which had been predicted for the central area failed to materialize, and none was expected the rest of this week.

Highs today will range from the upper 50s to 70, and the day may be the coolest since last spring. Lows tonight will be in the low 40s in the central portion and 44 to 50 south. Highs Thursday will range from 57 to the mid 60s.

The five-day outlook called for temperatures averaging 5 to 10 degrees below normal highs of 71 to 82 and normal lows of 51 to 63 for the period ending next Monday.

"Little temperature change until warming trend beginning over the weekend," the outlook said, adding that there will be little or no precipitation.

Six Local Students At International

Six Decatur students resumed studies at the International Business College Monday, taking professional courses in accounting, secretarial and private secretarial.

Janice Badenhop, Ronald K. Bassett, Robert E. Harvey, and Richard C. Lewton, all enrolled in the professional accounting school, while Beverly K. Fuelling enrolled in the executive secretarial school. Judith Ann Lane Ainsworth is enrolled in the private secretarial school at the Fort Wayne College.

I got my car into motion and caught up with the other car about four blocks down the street. It was a late model sedan. License number NFE 789. Two fellows were in the front seat. They were big guys and I felt pretty certain the man at the wheel was the ape who had kicked at my ribs when I had grabbed his foot and pulled him down to the ground.

They turned to the right on 54th Street. I kept right on going to 53rd, then made a U-turn, beat it back to the place where I'd been, and waited.

In about five minutes the same car drove past again. Once more I followed the car. This time they drove down to the service station and stopped. The big man got out from behind the wheel and went into the phone booth.

I parked half a block down the street.

In about two minutes the big man dashed out of the phone booth, jumped in the car and went away from there fast. I tagged along behind, taking a chance, keeping as close as I dared.

They made three right turns around the block, got back to Carrollton Drive, turned left, and