Election News

If you intend to vote in the city election this fall for city officers, or on the power question, you must be registered by October 5, which is only two weeks away.

If you voted in the primary election last spring, or in the general election last fall (when Hartke, Handley, etc., were running) and have not moved since, you are still registered.

If you have moved since you last voted, and believe that you now live outside of the precinct in which you were voting, or if you are not sure, check at the clerk's office immediately. You must be registered before the October 5 deadline.

If you have any question about your registration, contact county clerk Dick Lewton, or one of his deputies, either at the court house, or by calling 3-4303 during regular business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, or 8:30 to 12 noon on Saturday.

Democracy is only effective when all the people are informed, and when they all take part in government. The best answer to Communism is active participation in Democracy. If you dislike the Reds, or hate Khrushchev, show it by practicing Democracy, and by voting for the candidates and issues of your choice this fall. We can't all debate in the United Nations, or represent our government in foreign capitals, but we can all exercise our hard-earned privilege of voting.

Sept. 19, 1939—Adolf Hitler offers choice of peace at his own terms or years of bloodshed. The British aircraft carrier Courageous was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, with a toll of 579 dead or missing. Rev. Homer J. Aspy, who resigned recently as pastor of the First Baptist church here, has accepted a call to the First Baptist church at Auburn.

The Berne Chamber of Commerce has adopted a resolution favoring change of government from a town to a city status.

Modern Etiquette

Q. Just what is the correct way to eat an olive? Does one put the whole olive into the mouth at once, or does one take only small bites out of it while holding it in the fingers?

A. A very small stuffed olive may be put into the mouth whole. A larger stuffed olive should be eaten in two bites. A plain olive is held in the fingers and pieces bitten off around the stone.

Q. Is it considered rude not to look at a person all during the time he or she is talking to you?

A. She is expected to show attention to what he is saying by looking at him—but, of course, this does not have to be a fixed or hypnotic stare.

Q. How does one introduce one's stepfather?

A. Introduce him as "my stepfather," and, of course, mention his name, as, "Mr. Fox."

Q. Does the well-dressed woman always wear a hat?

A. It's a fact now that a great many smart and impeccably dressed women (particularly younger ones) don't own a hat of any kind, except the one they wear to church. Most hats do little to keep you warm, anyway, and uncovered heads of gleaming, well-groomed hair look undeniably attractive. Do what you want about hats—wear them or not as you please.

Q. In an effort to return a luncheon favor, I have invited a friend to a luncheon in my home, but she is unable to accept. Is my obligation to her fulfilled, or am I supposed to invite her again?

A. Your obligation is fulfilled only for the time being. Eventually, you should extend another invitation to her.

Q. What is the origin of the custom of a bridegroom's carrying the bride across the threshold?

A. This custom stems from an idea held by the ancient Romans that it was a bad omen for the bride to stumble over the doorstep as she entered her new home. So, to prevent any such mishap, her husband carried her. And romantic husbands are still doing this today.

"What's wrong?" I asked. They stood to one side so I could see the interior of the apartment.

"Good heavens, somebody has wrecked the place!" I exclaimed. Sellers and Giddings exchanged glances.

I hurried past them over to the desk and surveyed the jumbled look with lugubrious resignation.

"Well, it's gone," I said. Sellers shook his head. "This time you've got to come up with something better than that, Pint Size."

"What do you mean, something better than that?" I blazed. "Here's my place completely ruined and ransacked, and you birds are standing there dead on your feet. Now, suppose you quit kicking me around and find out who ransacked this apartment!"

Sellers looked at Giddings. "The guy's got a point," he said. "Let's get a fingerprint man up here and take a look."

He went to the phone and called headquarters. By the time the fingerprint man arrived, I'd spotted the empty flask on the kitchen sink.

"That's not mine," I said. Sellers turned to the fingerprint man, "Take a look."

The fingerprint man dusted the whiskey bottle. "It's lousy with latents," he said. They took my fingerprints; they dusted the apartment; they didn't find any fingerprints that weren't mine or the housekeeper's except the fingerprints on the whiskey flask.

"It looks like a plant," Giddings said. "Of course it looks like a plant," Sellers told him, "but we aren't overlooking any bets; not in dealing with this guy."

I said, "The guys that picked me were big fellows. I think I could identify one of them from a mug shot."

"Okay, Pint Size, we'll give you all the chance in the world," Sellers said. "Let's go to headquarters."

It was shortly after 1:30 A.M. that I picked out a face in the mug shots.

"That looks like the guy," I told Giddings. Giddings was skeptical. "Okay, Wise Guy," he said, "we'll check the fingerprints."

Ten minutes later there was a very great change in the manner of Inspector Thad Giddings. "What about the prints?" I asked.

Giddings looked at me and shook his head wonderingly. "They check," he said. "The guy's fingerprints are on that flask. You may be on the up and up after all."

I heaved a big sigh. "Well,"

Social Security Quiz
Answers Many Queries

1. Q—I am receiving social security benefits for myself and three children on my deceased husband's account. If I make over $1200 this year will it affect payments to the children?

A—No. As long as each of them does not earn over $1,200 in the year, their payments will not be affected. Only your own payments will be affected.

2. Q—I'm receiving social security benefits and have changed my address. I have reported this to the Post Office. Is it necessary for me to report my new address to the Social Security Administration?

A—Yes. You must report your new address over your signature to the Social Security Administration. This is necessary in order to change the address on your check and will assure prompt delivery of the check to your new address.

3. Q—If a single person dies and is survived by a dependent parent, what is the least he could receive as a social security benefit survivor?

A—The minimum benefits now being paid to a dependent parent is $33 per month.

4. Q—I was 72 years old in February 1958 and started drawing monthly social security payments. I'm still operating my own barber shop. Must I still pay the social security tax on my 1958 income from my business?

A—Yes. Anyone, regardless of age, who has net earnings from self employment of $400 or more in a year from his own trade or business must file a social security tax return and pay the tax whether or not he is drawing benefits.

5. Q—My furniture repair shop is in a small town. My profits have never been over $1,200 a year for the past 8 years. I was 65 last August and I would like to know if I can get social security and still run my shop?

A—Since your net earnings or your profits are not over $1,200 per year, you may draw social security payments every month even though you continue to operate your repair shop. You should visit your nearest Social Security office and apply for your social security as soon as possible, so as to have your payments start with last August when you became 65.

6. Q—My wife and I are both drawing social security benefits on my employment. We receive some rent from property we own and some quarterly dividends from some stock we own. If this income exceeds $1,200 during the year, would it keep us from drawing our monthly payments?

A—No, it will not. Income from rent and dividends from stock are not included in figuring the $1,200. The $1,200 must be income you earn from work you do
