Kennedy, Nixon Will Campaign In This State

By EUGENE J. CADOU
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Two leaders in 1960 presidential nomination polls will campaign in Indiana during the next seven days.

Sen. Jack Kennedy, Massachusetts Democrat, will address a dinner meeting in Indianapolis Friday night, will speak in Fort Wayne Saturday night and will spend the weekend in Huntingburg and other 8th District cities. He had been slated for a Lake County visit Monday, but announced he will go there later.

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon will be the chief speaker at a huge rally in Rochester next Tuesday night in honor of Rep. Charles A. Halleck, Rensselaer. It will be a tribute to his success as Republican floor leader in the recent session of Congress.

Kennedy will try to block a formidable drive in Hoosierdom for Sen. W. Stuart Symington of Missouri. This movement is being directed by former national chairman Frank E. McKinney of Indianapolis.

May Enter Primary

Politicos have predicted that Kennedy will enter the Indiana presidential preference primary. But backers of Symington have said that the Missouri senator will not do so. No other real candidates are expected at this time to contest in the primary.

The Rochester event also will mark the 25th anniversary of Halleck's election to Congress. Accompanying the vice-president to Rochester will be Gen. Wilton B. Persons, assistant to President Eisenhower.

The Nixon visit will strengthen the bid of Halleck for the 1960 vice-presidential nomination.

Although Governor Handley, Lt. Gov. Crawford F. Parker and GOP state chairman Robert W. Matthews are strongly supporting Nixon for president, the Hoosier activity of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has increased in recent days.

Cause For Alarm

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Robert T. Sarach, 29, was freed from the wreckage of his car by firemen who arrived at the scene after his auto struck a pole, setting off the fire signal box attached to it.

ed he is for Rockefeller and former Sen. William E. Jenner was reported by a reliable party leader to have praised the New York governor three times.

Jenner Has Power

If Jenner espouses Rockefeller, he may be able to land delegates for him from the 6th, 7th and 9th Districts, according to a GOP leader. Nixon probably will enter the presidential primary, but Rockefeller will not do so, according to observers.

Capehart has announced he will not campaign for Hoosier delegates for Rockefeller if that activity threatens to cause a party split.

If Capehart becomes active, however, he will have ample ammunition in the form of some 5,500 federal census jobs in this state.

Capehart now apparently is using this juicy patronage to forestall any attempt by the Statehouse machine to purge him as he seeks to return to Washington in 1962.

Neither designer is a musician, although Mrs. Maxwell is a concert buff. The results will be shown next Tuesday, Oct. 6, during the International Music Con-

Chic Costumes For Orchestra Ladies

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Music hath charm, but apparently there are those who feel some of the lady music-makers lack chic.

At any rate, the President's Music Committee of the People to People program, with Mrs. Jouett Shouse of Washington as chairman, has turned to a couple of leading New York designers for assistance.

Their volunteer job: To produce a fashionable, packable and comfortable costume for the lady members of concert orchestras.

The designers are Vera Maxwell, who last year made the costumes for women members of the Juilliard School of Music Orchestra when it went on tour, and Anne Fogarty, famous for her shirtwaist dresses and layers of petticoats under.

Blouse and Skirt

Mrs. Fogarty decided women Orchestra members shouldn't be so invisible. She can see the girl at the viola in nothing less than a red and white, poppy-printed taffeta (not - rustle type), with long set-in sleeves, so the musician can move her arms easily.

ference in New York.

Mrs. Maxwell, a world traveler, turned to wrinkle-resistant nylon jersey and one of her proven designs — the wraparound blouse, which is becoming to most figures; worn with an accordion-pleated skirt.

The blouse has a V-throat and a high, wide collar. It is a three-quarter length sleeve. A spokesman for Mrs. Maxwell said the blouse was collarless "because a lady violinist, for instance, can't have anything in the way at the neckline." But there is a place for a brooch at the center, if she wants to wear some jewelry.

The pleated skirt, she added, "looks good on the stage." Mrs. Maxwell produced both summer and winter costumes. For summer, both the blouse and jersey skirt are an eggshell white and the skirt is street-length. For winter, both the top and skirt are black and the skirt is ankle-length.

And Red Taffeta

Mrs. Fogarty decided women Orchestra members shouldn't be so invisible. She can see the girl at the viola in nothing less than a red and white, poppy-printed taffeta (not - rustle type), with long set-in sleeves, so the musician can move her arms easily.

"I first thought about using white," said Mrs. Fogarty. "Then I figured, why not dramatize the women. The red will look good against the black and white of the men's suits."

She scooped the neck low, by most concert platform standards, and the gathered skirt is full enough "so you won't be able to locate the knees of the lady cellist." Mrs. Fogarty also added some non-rusting petticoats.

The bodice is a skin-tight fit. "You have to give a vocalist more room of course," she said, "but not an instrumentalist."

"To me, if you can breathe in a dress, it's too big."

Holding the Bag

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Clarence H. Barlow was convicted of breaking into a jewelry store, despite his explanation that he found the bag of 36 wedding rings in a trash can. Police pointed it had been raining but the bag was dry.

FOUND HER QUARRY—Liberal candidate Mrs. E. Dangerfield finds her quarry more than 400 feet down near Aberdeen, Scotland, and sits on a big hunk of granite to get her point across to Rubislaw quarry workers. She's standing for the South Aberdeen seat in parliament in Oct. 8 vote.
