Elections Coming Up

The year 1960 is now underway, and it will bring to Adams county another local election.

Up for nomination in May will be the following offices: congress (eight counties); state representative from Adams and Wells; judge of the circuit court; auditor; treasurer; recorder; coroner; surveyor; commissioner from the second and third districts; precinct committeemen, and state convention delegates.

Of the major offices, three are now held by Republicans. E. Ross Adair, completing his fifth term as congressman, has not yet signified if he will run for a sixth term; Byron McCammon, school teacher and state legislator, has already announced for congress on the Democratic ticket. It is quite possible that Von Eichhorn of Uniondale will also announce, making a race in the Democratic primary.

Waldo "Bud" Neal of Geneva, is completing his second term as treasurer, and is not eligible for a third, as the treasurer cannot serve more than four years out of six. Neal is a Republican; there have been no announcements yet from either party for that office.

Third Republican in office is Stanley Arnold, who is presently commissioner from the second district. Arnold is now completing a three-year term. He is eligible to run for re-election. No one has announced for the office, as yet. To be eligible, the person would have to live in Washington township, or the north half of Monroe township; election is at large.

Judge of the circuit court is presently held by Judge Myles F. Parrish, who is completing his 12th year and second term as judge. He is eligible to run for reelection.

County auditor Edward F. Jaberg is completing his first term in that office, and is also eligible to succeed himself.

Mrs. Mable Striker is completing her second term as county recorder, and cannot run again. Miss Rosemary Spangler has announced that she will be a candidate on the Democratic ticket.

State Representative Burl Johnson, of St. Mary's township, has served just one term, and is also eligible to run for a second term.

County coroner Elmer Winteregg, Jr., and county surveyor Herman Moellering are both eligible to run for re-election to those posts. County commissioner Loren Heller, from the third district, is just completing his first term, and can also run again. He has served just one year, and will hold over for one year, regardless.

Precinct committeemen and convention delegates run during the primary election on their own party tickets.

HOW TO PRAY

(Editor's note: Mrs. Maud Mahan of Decatur and Capt. and Mrs. Ivan F. Mahan, formerly of this city, had the privilege of being present at the Spanish-American air base in Torrejon de Ardoz, when President Eisenhower arrived for his visit in Madrid.)

I have had quite a thrilling experience which I will relate in part. If you find anything in it you think would be of interest to your readers and our many friends, change, or omit anyway you see fit.

We watched the big U. S. press plane arrive and know you have all the highlights.

We were fortunate in having seats, where we could see the President's plane land and taxied within a few feet of where we sat. The band played "Hail to the Chief" and the Spanish anthem. Saw the President and Generalissimo Francisco Franco meet and heard the welcome address and the President's reply. These were interpreted. Then as President Eisenhower and Generalissimo Franco, escorted by motor corps, passed slowly in front of the bleachers, hundreds of people waved and cheered. The President was smiling and waving, turning quickly now and then, to speak to his companion.

The day was cloudy, but as the President and Franco were speaking, the sun shone until their departure, from the base. Generalissimo Franco had declared Monday a holiday. All planes were grounded. The people here went all out to make it a gala day.

Hours before the parade was scheduled to pass through the streets of Madrid, crowds were gathering. The city was decorated with U. S. and Spanish flags and evergreen. Some buildings had "Welcome Ike" spelled with lights. Trolleys and buses displayed flags and pictures of Mr. Eisenhower and Franco. The entire route, from the base to the Palace of the Moncloa, residence of the President during his stay, also all streets he would travel, were decorated. Spanish guards were stationed on both sides of the highway, about 200 ft. apart, for the 15 or more miles from the base to the city. Arches and viaducts had large pictures of both men. At the Torrejon base, Spanish and U. S. Air Force units alternated in lining the route.

It was a day to be remembered and makes one proud to be an American.

I had seen Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nixon in San Francisco, just before he became vice-president. I also had the privilege of shaking hands with President Woodrow Wilson, in Indianapolis and saw President Franklin D. Roosevelt, from a distance. So I think I have been very fortunate. I am glad I happened to be in Madrid at this time.

Respectfully,
Maud L. Mahan

P.S.: It is reported about one and a half million people crowded the streets of Madrid, watched from balconies and windows and many had climbed trees, so as to get a better view.

The six Alpine countries of Europe are Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

White wall tires were specified on 55.2 per cent of all new cars purchased in 1958. Among automobile owners who replace their tires, 40.8 per cent specified white walls.

Preparation: When our minds have been filled with trivial things it may be hard to send them suddenly off toward God. Nothing so fine is casually done. Reading from the Bible or a devotional book may put us in the mood for prayer. Something of beauty—a picture or music or the outdoors—may help. We may think through a favorite hymn or read a prayer.

Sometimes nothing puts us in the mood. Even the greatest saints complained of times of spiritual dryness. Jesus taught that at such times "men ought always to pray, and not to faint." We struggle on as best we can until the freshness comes to our prayers again.

We watched the big U. S. press plane arrive and know you have all the highlights.

Attention: Praying easily drifts into wool-gathering because there is nothing external to hold our attention. One remedy is to put the prayer into words, spoken or mentally formed. When this trouble is bad we can even write our prayers for a while. Some people keep a list of subjects for prayer. To follow some such outline as that below helps keep us on the track. Sometimes a fine prayer comes freely—as spontaneously as a song. But often it requires mental discipline and hard effort to get the great reward.

Conditions: The position we take makes no difference to God, but it can make a real difference to us. A physical attitude, such as kneeling or bowing or clasping the hands, helps bring a corresponding mental attitude. It also helps keep our attention fixed. Closed eyes shut out distractions. Jesus used everyday language for his prayers, but it may help us to feel reverent to use "Thee" and "Thou." We can pray anywhere, with open eyes, on a bus or at work; but we should have the conditions as helpful as possible.
