Key To Growth

John T. Moore, assistant professor of marketing at Butler University, has written a very interesting article, called "Electrical Energy: Key to Indiana's Industrial Growth"...

Modern economy is built on energy resources, he points out. Energy resource potential is of primary importance in the modern economic order.

Of the basic energy classes—coal, petroleum, natural gas, and electricity—electricity is the critical element in industrialization. Any sizable economic growth is SEVERELY hindered without an adequate and economical supply.

Indiana, by 1970, will be using between 42 and 54 billion kilowatt hours; electric use nearly doubles each decade. In 1959 Indiana produced 28 billion KWH.

Indiana-Michigan is one of several Hoosier companies which is growing to meet the future demand. It is now preparing to install at Muncie the world's most automated transformer plant...

It is interesting to note that of the five major private electric utility companies in Indiana, Indiana-Michigan ranks as the best in cost of electrical service per kilowatt hour to residential consumers—$2.04 as compared with the national average of $2.53...

Industrial power users in Indiana, the article continues, pay prices slightly above the national average, but quite favorable to that charged by major utilities in other northern states.

Many electrical figures are quite interesting. We have always supposed that a city home used more electricity than a rural home. But we find that in the Decatur area this not true. While Decatur residents have 72% of the electric meters, they use only 56.8% of the electricity going to residential consumers...

This is quite understandable when you realize that farm homes have TV, refrigerators, clothes dryers, electric stoves, etc., just like Decatur homes, but have brooders, cream separators, churners, dairy sterilizers, water heaters, stock waterers, farm shops, milk coolers, silo fillers, etc., that city people do not have.

But unfortunately, at Decatur electric prices, the rural consumer must pay more for the electric current he uses—in fact, a farmer using just 280 KWH a month would pay in one year's time more than $16 more than his city brother for exactly the same amount of "juice."

Feb. 1 Deadline On Price Support

Applications for loans and purchase agreements on wheat, oats, soybeans, rye, barley and grain sorghums must be filed in the county office on or before February 1, according to James Garboden, chairman of the Adams ASC county committee.

Price support rates are: wheat $1.54; oats $1.25; rye-94 cents; soybeans-$1.85; barley-80 cents; and grain sorghums $1.49, per bushel.

Garboden stated that applications for loans should be filed in the county office as soon as possible in order that the loan may be completed by the deadline date.

For further information, producers should contact the county office.

Search Continuing For Two Escapees

Billy James Sturgill, 21, of Pennington Gap, Va., is one of the two escapees still at large after breaking out of the Wells county jail Sunday, and his father said.

The federal bureau of investigation continues its search in the Virginia hill country after two Bluffton boys had apparently been forced to drive the wanted pair to their homes.

Both At Large The other escapee, William Ray Chadwick, 22, of Wallins Creek, Ky., is believed near his home, but Wells county prosecutor Joseph F. Eichhorn said he did not know what cooperation he could expect from Harlan county law officials.

Eichhorn said that little cooperation is usually shown by lawmen in that area.

If Billy-James Sturgill is hiding out in the rugged Cumberland Mountains of southwestern Virginia, even F.B.I. agents may have a tough time retrieving the wandering prisoner.

Billy James and his still-confined brother, Donny, 24, were arrested in connection with a shotgun blast of another Bluffton resident Nov. 4. The man, Howard Vaughn, 26, was only slightly wounded in what is believed to be a case of mistaken identity.

Sheriff Ray Durr said that the Sturgills were "to get" their cousin, but apparently sniped at Vaughn by mistake. Lacet Lewis, another Bluffton resident, is their cousin.

Havana Radio Station Hits U.S. Leaders

HAVANA (UPI) — A radio station here attacked U.S. leaders Wednesday and urged the people of the United States to rise in revolt against their government.

In a broadcast repeated at four-hour intervals all day, radio Mambi insulted President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Christian Herter and his predecessor, the late John Foster Dulles.

A hysterically shouting announcer said: "What the United States needs is a good revolution to put an end once and for all to the imperialists and colonists who dominate the government."

"A popular commotion is needed from coast to coast...to destroy the bad seed of the Monroe Doctrine, paternalism, the Big Stick and the bad seed of anti-communism which is exported from here in great quantities..."

"They are bad seeds sown by the backward mind of Foster Dulles, whom God now has in His realm alongside the soldiers killed in the stupid Korean War."

The announcer said people throughout the Western Hemisphere are hoping for a revolution in the United States. "All the people of (Latin) America desire the U.S. people to rebel against those gentlemen without brains or scruples who are hurting the United States—against Mr. Eisenhower, whom old age has limited to playing golf on the world map...against that cretin

Preble Farm Bureau Meets Monday Night

The children will meet for a pet and hobby club meeting with their leader, Mrs. Della Koene-man.

Refreshments will include a dairy smorgasbord and will be in charge of the officers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Koene-man, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Schuller, Mrs. Della Koene-man and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Worthman.

The officers will present the program outline for the coming year.

All Farm Bureau members and anyone interested are invited and encouraged to attend this Farm Bureau meeting.

Modern Etiquette By ROBERTA LEE

Q. What do you suggest as rules of good taste for a business girl who smokes at her office?

A. Above all, she should be tidy about it. Use an ashtray, and empty it frequently, so it won't look messy and smoulder unpleasantly. Don't work with a cigarette hanging out of your mouth, and never carry one with you when you enter the boss' office to take dictation.

Q. Just what is the correct way to eat peas?

A. With your fork, of course. Correctly, you push the ends of the tines of the fork under the peas and lift a not-too-big mouthful onto the fork.

Q. Should a bride wear gloves at a small home wedding?

A. This is entirely optional. She may, or may not, as she wishes.
