RICHARD LINN SPEAKS AT NORTHWEST P.T.A. MEETING

Richard Linn, director of the Decatur Youth and Community Center, was guest speaker at the Northwest school P.T.A. meeting Thursday evening. "Northwest Sings" was the theme of the meeting, which opened with community singing led by Mrs. Hubert Feasel, accompanied on the piano by Paul Liechty.

The meeting was then called to order by the president, Mrs. Arthur Beeler. The Rev. C. E. Lykins of the Church of the Nazarene was in charge of the devotion in the absence of the Rev. Gerald Gerig. It was announced that the Cub Scouts, and Scouts of the Northwest school will prepare a special founder's day program for the February meeting.

The program was then turned over to Mrs. Robert Christen, who introduced the guest speaker. Linn related how the center grew from the dreams of students in 1948 and 1949 into the fine and functional building it is today. He gave detailed statistics pertaining to the growth of the center and described some of the projects planned for the future. One of the largest and most elaborate exhibits ever to be held in Decatur, he revealed, will be one shown during the Indiana rural letter carriers convention early this summer. Linn concluded his talk by pointing out that the Center belongs to each and every one and urged all to take advantage of its many facilities.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Goodnight Ladies". The hospitality committee served refreshments during the social hour.

Weather Plaguing Northern Indiana

United Press International

The coldest weather of 1960 descended on Indiana today.

Temperatures crawled into the teens above zero in mid-morning as a wave of cold air rolled into the state and threatened to send the mercury near zero tonight.

Just before - noon temperature readings included 16 at Goshen and Chicago, 18 at Lafayette, 19 at Terre Haute, 21 at Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, 24 at South Bend and Evansville, 26 at Louisville and 27 at Cincinnati.

Snow was reported throughout the state most of the morning. But it was mostly in very light flurries, buffeted by gusty winds up to more than 30 miles per hour.

The snow was enough to create scattered highway hazards.

But the situation generally was nothing to compare with snowstorms upstate Indiana normally experiences frequently in the average winter.

Snow to a depth of four or more inches plagued the area, creating road hazards which state highway maintenance officials said were being rapidly eliminated by sanding and chemicals.

Snow still was falling after dawn today, but mostly in light flurries form around the state. Flurries were expected throughout the day, locally heavy in a far-north strip.

Temperatures fell to the low 20s all around the state early this morning, including 20 at Lafayette, 16 at Chicago, 22 at Terre Haute, 25 at Evansville and South Bend, 24 at Indianapolis and Fort Wayne.

There was to be very little rise in temperatures today, with highs ranging from 24 to 30 north to the low 30s south.

Lows tonight will be near 10 north, near 15 central, and 14 to 18 south. Wednesday highs will be in the low 20s, and Thursday will be continued cold, the weatherman said.

Wind gusts added to the wintry setting. Wind velocity ranged from 14 at Evansville to 23 at Lafayette, with gusts up to 35 miles per hour at Fort Wayne.
