Jack Heller Writes Of Experiences In Cuba

Tourists are being treated especially well in Cuba now, John G. Heller, vice-president of the Decatur Daily Democrat, writes from Santa Clara.

Heller, writing Monday, had the following to say in a letter to his family:

"What a wonderful time I had in Havana. Any doubts Americans might have about the friendliness of the Cuban people are false. We have been treated wonderfully — not only at the churches but on the streets all through the city. Friday night I left the group after the meeting at the First church, and walked through Havana with some young people from the church.

"They took me through the fourth district police station. The strong-arm police of Castro turned out to be a group of very efficient clean-cut young men — about 22 years of age average. They were very polite and friendly.

"Sue and Harry Estill's preacher from Springfield, Ill., and his wife, and Frank Heinze, editor of a Presbyterian preacher's magazine, accompanied me on a walk down the Prado, a beautiful tree-lined avenue in Havana. Sunday we left the group and rode a bus 12 miles to the beach and went swimming. Then we had dinner and rode back to the hotel. Those bus rides were wonderful! The drivers make American hot-rodgers seem like baby-buggy pushers. And the streets are narrower than Third street.

"We could speak no Spanish, the people on the buses could speak no English, and we had a magnificent time, laughing and talking back and forth. If you want to know the country, meet the people. "What a wonderful country! The weather is beautiful. Hot in the sun, very nice in the shade, and just cool enough at night.

"We are in Santa Clara now. Arrived about an hour ago. Lovely hotel. My room is on the eighth floor, and since the hotel is the tallest building in the town, I can look over the whole city. The city square and province capital are right across the street from our hotel."

Training Session On Law Enforcement

A law enforcement training session was conducted Thursday night by the Adams county sheriff's department as the first phase of a series of similar programs to educate local enforcement officers in new techniques.

With more than 30 law personnel in attendance, sheriff Merle Affolder instructed at the initial meeting. Three informative films from the federal bureau of investigation library were viewed by local city police, special deputies and members of the county posse.

The first film dealt with the procedures of searching at the scene of a crime, while the second one showed the manner of apprehending and identifying stolen automobiles. The third film illustrated how the police collect, identify, and package evidence. Discussion of the subject of the films followed.

Sheriff Affolder announced that members of the F. B. I. will attend the next sessions and instruct the group in various phases of law enforcement such as proper use of firearms, proper methods of "frisking" a suspect, and other technical procedures.

About 15 members of the sheriff's posse attended the training meeting at the city court room at 7:30 p. m. last night. The instruction lasted about two hours. Sheriff Affolder said the training was instituted to prepare all local law enforcement officials for any impending outbreaks of crime.

Seeks Death Penalty For Finch, Tregoff

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Prosecutor Fred N. Whitchello says he is going to ask the gas chamber for both Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff.

Whitchello told United Press International, after presentation of the bulk of the state's case, that he has not changed his intention of asking the death penalty in the killing of the surgeon's brunette wife.

The law in California is unusual on this score. If the jury reaches a verdict of first degree murder, arguments are opened up for either the death penalty and then they must reach another unanimous verdict on the penalty.

The woman who spent the evening with Mrs. Barbara Finch, 33, before she was shot to death July 18, is scheduled to testify at the murder trial today.

Returns To Jail
Convict John Cody, 29, who "hopes" is a ladies' man and admits he is a liar, swore Thursday that he had not been asked to get counter-evidence for divorce against Mrs. Finch and to sleep with her if necessary.

Cody was returned to jail in Minnesota after testifying Finch and Carole hired him "not to follow Mrs. Finch, to kill her."

"You told Dr. Finch you didn't know any woman you couldn't sleep with within 24 hours," said Cooper.

"That's a lie," said Cody. Another tough witness against the red-haired Carole, 23, now beginning to weep into a handkerchief, and the still very cheerful Dr. Finch, 42, was Donn Mire, a handwriting expert of 20 years experience.

Sees Possible Forgery
Mire testified his studies of the handwriting of Mrs. Finch and the doctor made him positive a check for $3,000 signed by Mrs. Finch to the order of the doctor was not her signature. He said it was his opinion that Finch had forged it by copying or tracing.

Grant Cooper, Finch's suave and able attorney, got out a magnifying glass and peered with intensity at blow-up signatures of the pair as he asked Mire to explain how he reached such a conclusion.

Mire pointed to "tremors" in the handwriting and Cooper said he had trouble spotting such tremors.

Mire on two occasions accidentally referred to the signature as that of "Barbara Graham," and the crowded courtroom laughed at mention of the convicted California murderess about whom the movie, "I Want to Live," was made.

Admits to Mistakes
The check for $3,000 left only $182.70 in Mrs. Finch's personal account. The state charges money—as well as love — was the motive for the killing. Mrs. Finch had legally tied up most of the doctor's fortune, estimated at $750,000.

Cooper in his cross examination brought Mire's "conclusion" that "no person will sign their name exactly the same way twice."

"Do you ever make mistakes," Cooper asked Mire. "I am 37 years old and I have made a lot of mistakes in my life," said Mire. Cooper laughed. "I don't mean that," he said. "Have you ever made a mistake in your profession?"

The expert replied that in no case in which he has testified had he been proved wrong.

Grounding Airliners No Help For Safety

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) has proposed that the government consider grounding all commercial airliners for a thorough safety check "for a few days." The following dispatch discusses the practicality and need for such drastic action.

By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Industry and government aviation officials agree that grounding the nation's 2,000-plane commercial air fleet would do little or nothing to improve safety.

They offer these reasons: —All airlines already undergo daily inspections and necessary overhauls at regular intervals under strict Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) maintenance rules. —Mechanical difficulties constitute only a small proportion of fatal crash causes; inspecting all aircraft would not solve other problems as pilot error, weather, visibility and runway — approach conditions.

—Even thorough inspection would be no guarantee that a vital part would not fail on the very next flight; there is no way to predict some kinds of engine failure.

Complete Inspection
The airlines already are operating under the most rigid maintenance rules in history — both their own strict procedures and new ones recommended by the FAA. The government agency has just completed a 30-day inspection program not only of maintenance but all pilot training and flight operations of every schedule airline.

The airlines conduct what they term "cycle maintenance" — an aircraft in continuous perfect condition. This consists of: —Visual inspection after every landing, with particular attention paid to any complaints by crews on unusual handling or performance.

—After 130 hours of flight time, or more frequently if necessary, opening engine nacelles, changing spark plugs and checking for oil leaks, wiring, tire condition etc.

Pull Out Engines
—After 800 hours (longer for jet powered planes) pulling engines out for overhaul, replacing them with new or completely overhauled engines.

—"Block overhauls" at approximately 3,400 hours, each consisting of major inspection and overhaul of key parts including engines, frame, wings, electrical systems, control cables and instruments; after four block overhauls, an airliner literally is rebuilt from nose to tail.

Civil Aeronautics Board records show that mechanical failure has been dwindling as a major cause of accidents. Of the nine fatal crashes during 1959, seven involved NO engine failures. The remaining two still are under investigation.

Airline officials feel that if Congress had voted the necessary funds for improved traffic control and airport facilities when they were first requested years ago, there would be little or no safety problem now.

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle's office announced today he would visit revolt-ridden Algeria next month, but kept silent on whether he had fired paratroop Gen. Jacques Massu as military-civil leader in Algiers.

Reports, including a front page bannerline in the influential daily Le Monde, insisted that Massu was ousted despite the risk of an uprising by right wing Algerian settlers who idolize him.

De Gaulle, furious at anti-De Gaulle remarks attributed to Massu in an interview with a German newspaper earlier this week, barred him from a major conference today on Algeria. The commanders of the Oran and Constantine districts were present, but Massu did not even have a representative there.

Twin communiqués issued after the half-day meeting between De Gaulle and the other chief military and civil administrators for Algeria made no mention of the Massu affair.

The first communique said De Gaulle "will go to Algeria Feb. 5 for an inspection trip of several days" and "will make contact with the army, the administration and the elected representatives of the population everywhere."

The second communique assured the French settlers that the self-determination policy, which they oppose and which they fear will be changed to the advantage of the Moslems at their expense, will stand as is.

Thus, in effect, De Gaulle told the million French settlers and the army in Algeria that the Paris government is making the policy for France and he intends to make it stick, whether they like it or not.

There's nothing like a new car—and no new car like a Chevrolet. This is the Impala Sport Coupe!

Chevrolet speaks of the Sixties like no other car—with a broad accent on spaciousness, stirring new concepts in styling and strong emphasis on spirit and thrift.

Step inside this superlative '60 and look at the worlds of room around you: head room, hip room, shoulder-squaring room. Note how Chevrolet's engineers have further flattened and narrowed the transmission tunnel to give the middle man more foot room. Chevrolet's greater roominess is inside where you want it—not outside in useless body overhang.

You'll find economy teamed with performance in a new standard V8, engineered to deliver up to 10% more miles for every gallon, or the strapping Hi-Thrill 6.

And riding comfort in the new one is a never-ending treat, thanks to Full Coil spring suspension. There are also thicker, newly designed body mounts that filter noise and vibration to the vanishing point, more rigid frame and many other engineering advances.

But you'll have to drive the Sixty sizzler yourself—that's the clincher. Why not see your Chevrolet dealer now—for a drive and the happy details on Chevy's new lower prices.
