

Adenauer Worries On Advise Queries On Ike Indecisiveness Baby-Sitter Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will counsel President Eisenhower against giving away an inch of West Berlin when he meets the chief executive here next month, it was learned today.

The 84-year-old West German leader is aroused by what he interprets as indecisiveness in Eisenhower's public statements on the Berlin situation.

Adenauer hopes to cement the American position when he calls here next month, en route to California to accept an honorary degree from UCLA, diplomatic sources reported. He plans at least one meeting with Eisenhower.

U.S. officials claim Adenauer's worry is baseless. They said the president has made it clear the United States will not agree to any restriction of its rights in West Berlin, an enclave city of two million persons 100 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

But Adenauer is a sensitive man. He reacts quickly to statements such as the President's remark Wednesday that any Soviet attempt to cut West Berlin's connections with the western world would cause a grave situation.

Adenauer believes the United States, on whose guarantee West Berlin's security depends, should take a more forward position. He fears American leaders spend too much time talking about how they will meet Soviet demands on West Berlin, and too little time demanding concessions from Russia in the form of increased freedom for East Germany's 17 million people.

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A 23-year-old Muncie woman lies near death while health officials try to locate all the families for whom she had worked as a baby-sitter so they could receive tuberculin tests.

Indiana State Board of Health officials said the occurrence is comparatively rare but stressed "it could happen again because of the way in which people select their baby-sitters."

In the Muncie case, the woman apparently had not suspected the nature of her ailment until she went to a physician with a 102-degree fever.

She was found to have advanced pulmonary tuberculosis and also tubercular pneumonia. She was too ill to list all the families for whom she had worked as a baby-sitter and authorities were fearful that a number of children may have become infected through her.

Don't Question Health
Dr. Andrew C. Offutt, commissioner of the Indiana State Board of Health, and president of the Middle States Public Health Association, commented that "many people trust their children to almost anyone with no thought of the health qualifications of the sitter."

"Yet, some of these same people will carefully watch the tires on their auto to be sure they are not endangering the lives of their children," he said.

Possibly as many as 9,000 persons in Indiana either have active tuberculosis or have cases which have been inactive for less than two years. Because TB is a relapsing disease, the Indiana Tuberculosis Association and health officials seek to keep in contact with recovered persons for two years.

Chester D. Kelly, executive secretary of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association, explained that the threat from TB has been going down steadily, thanks in part to such caution. About 250 to 260 persons died in Indiana of tuberculosis in 1959, and about 278 in 1958.

6 Per 100,000
These deaths are at the rate of approximately six per 100,000 population, compared to the rate of 19.4 in 1900, 81.6 in 1925 and 19.9 in 1950.

Kelly said that while TB officials do not try to single out any one group, such as baby-sitters, they do try to concentrate their testing work on all persons who by occupation are potentially dangerous to the public, should they have the disease. These include food handlers, barbers, beauticians and others.

From 200,000 to 250,000 tests were given in Indiana last year, a slight drop from previous years because of the switch from X-ray to tuberculin testing, Kelly explained. Either Mantoux testing (done with a needle) or patch testing is stressed, rather than X-ray, which possibly could add to radiation hazards. However, Kelly said that the association works in cooperation with medical societies and health officials and uses what is preferred locally.

Advise Acceptance Of Damaged Parcels

"Don't be afraid to accept damaged parcel post," says postmaster Leo Kirsch.

Reluctance to accept insured or c.o.d. parcels which arrive in bad condition is based upon a misunderstanding that the right to file for indemnity will thereby be jeopardized. "The reverse of this is actually the case," states the postmaster.

According to the postmaster, acceptance of a damaged parcel speeds adjustment of the claim and avoids unnecessary postage charges which must be paid by the sender if the parcel is refused and returned. The following action is recommended when a damaged insured or c.o.d. parcel is offered for delivery:

1. Accept the parcel and sign the delivery receipt.
2. Open the parcel and determine the extent of damage. (Damaged parcel post packages do not have to be opened in the presence of a postal employee.)
3. Present the damaged items together with the wrapper or carton showing the insured or c.o.d. number at the post office.

Inasmuch as the sender and the addressee must both sign the claim, the addressee's portion may be completed at the address post office immediately upon receipt of the parcel. However, if the addressee prefers that the sender institute the claim, the parcel should be accepted and the sender notified of the damage. In this event, the damaged article should be retained by the addressee until he is notified to bring it to the post office. The preferred method is for the addressee to file the claim.

"Although indemnity is not paid on damage to ordinary parcels, they too should be accepted by the addressee and the sender notified," says Kirsch. "This enables the sender to make replacement or adjustment through commercial insurance or otherwise."

Over Five Million Boy Scouts In U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Boy Scouts of America, whose ardent supporters have run a historical gamut from Theodore Roosevelt to Dwight D. Eisenhower, announced today on the eve of its 50th anniversary that active membership had passed the five million mark.

Next week is "Boy Scout Week" marking the beginning of the golden jubilee year for the movement that has become a national institution. The anniversary day is Monday, Feb. 8. On that date in 1910 the organization was incorporated by the late William D. Boyce.

Boyce, a Chicago publisher, had been impressed with the way a British Boy Scout a year earlier had helped him when he was lost in a London fog.

The announcement of the new high in active membership was made by Dr. Arthur A. Schuch, chief scout executive. He said that as of the end of 1959 there were 5,043,195 boys and adult leaders enrolled. By the end of 1960, it was estimated, more than 53,500,000 persons will have been affiliated with American scouting since 1910.

During the coming year, national events will include the dedication of the Johnston Historical Museum at scout headquarters in New Brunswick, N.J., and the fifth "National Jamboree," in which 50,000 scouts, explorers, and leaders will camp together at Colorado Springs, Colo., July 22-28.

New Requirements On Filing Extension

Sterling M. Dietrich, district director of internal revenue, announced today new requirements relating to extension of time for filing individual income tax returns. The new requirements are contained in treasury decision 6436 and are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1958.

- Individuals requesting an extension of time for filing their income tax returns must furnish the following information:
1. The reasons why more time is needed.
 2. For how long.
 3. Whether they filed and made timely payments on any required declaration of estimated tax for the year involved.
 4. Whether each return for the last three years was filed on time or filed within an approved extension of time.

The service, in fairness to the tens of millions of taxpayers who file their returns on time, must do everything reasonably possible to insure that extensions are granted only where there is a real need for time.
