Senate Committee Reports On Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rackets Committee in its majority report said today a strike against four Perfect Circle Corp. plants in Indiana five years ago showed "that lawlessness begets lawlessness in an ever-widening vicious circle."

The report referred to a four-month United Auto Workers strike against Perfect Circle plants in Hagerstown, Richmond and New Castle, Ind., in 1955.

"The happy ending to this deplorable tale of labor-relations gone askew is the resumption of orderly relations between company and union," the majority report said.

General manager G. Robert Baer of the Perfect Circle Corp. now reports a "very satisfactory" relationship with the union local at New Castle, the scene of stonings and shootings during the strike, the committee said.

UAW regional director Raymond Berndt said "a fragile bridge of understanding" is being erected, according to the report.

"The committee regrets that this understanding did not come sooner," the Democratic senators said.

The report filed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), committee chairman, did not contain the views of the committee's four Republican members. The GOP report was released earlier.

However, an amended and toned down version of the Republican views was filed separately Tuesday.

In their original report, GOP committee members charged that Michigan was under the political domination of UAW president Walter P. Reuther and had become a privileged sanctuary for criminals fleeing prosecution in other areas. Republican members agreed, after a sharp protest by Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), to remove that language.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) denied that the toned-down minority report was politically inspired. He reiterated in the report his charges about the committee's investigation of the UAW strikes against Perfect Circle and the Kohler Corp., Sheboygan, Wis.

Peron Backers Are Arrested In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Argentine police strengthened by a declaration of internal war rounded up suspected Peronist supporters of ousted ex-President Juan D. Peron in raids throughout the country today.

The total number of prisoners taken in raids on Peronist hangouts was not announced, but it was believed to be in the hundreds.

Former Foreign Minister Prominent prisoners were said to include former Foreign Minister Ildefonso Cavagna and Peronist youth leader Hector R. Lagomarsino. Unconfirmed reports said the unidentified "chief of the new terrorist movement" has been captured.

Provincial police, placed under army command Tuesday, synchronized their raids with the roundup of Peronist suspects in the capital.

President Arturo Frondizi's government, under army pressure to take effective action against Peronist supporters, invoked a law devised by Peron himself to declare "internal war" on his followers.

Proclaims Grave Emergency A decree published Tuesday night proclaimed a "grave emergency" throughout Argentina, making the nation subject to the "state of war" law passed while Peron was president.

The decree makes terrorists subject to trial by military courts which could impose the death penalty on those whose bombs have killed one or more persons. The maximum penalty for terrorism in the civil courts is seven years' imprisonment.

Negroes Hail Major Win In Campaign

By United Press International

Negroes hailed a major victory today in their seven-week campaign against Southern racial barriers, even though 600 demonstrators were put behind bars in two Deep South states.

Police at Orangeburg, S.C. broke up a series of anti-segregation parades Tuesday with fire hoses and tear gas and arrested about 400 marchers. The first all-out Negro campaign against lunch counter segregation in Atlanta brought 77 arrests. Seventy Negroes were arrested at Rock Hill, S.C., 10 at Columbia, S.C., and six at St. Augustine, Fla.

But at San Antonio, Texas, the head of the city's Council of Churches announced that one department store and a number of drug and variety stores agreed to integrate their lunch counters rather than face the possibility of Negro sit-down demonstrations.

At Winston-Salem, N.C., half of the 120 faculty members of Wake Forest College signed a petition urging the local F. W. Woolworth store to "serve all customers without reference to race." Store manager Herman Warren signed trespass warrants against 22 demonstrators in his store recently.

Creaking Stairs

If some of your stairs have begun to creak, try driving pairs of two-inch finishing nails through the tread (top of the step) into the riser (vertical board between the steps). Angle the nails in each pair slightly toward each other, "V" shape, so they will be less likely to pull out.
