

Candidates

Sen. John F. Kennedy has written that he will be in Indianapolis next Monday morning to file his candidacy on the Indiana Democratic primary ballot personally.

Secretary of State John R. Walsh opened his headquarters in room 425 of the Claypool hotel in Indianapolis Thursday.

State senator Matthew E. Welsh, the front-runner in the four-way contest for the Democratic nomination for governor, stopped in Decatur at noon Wednesday and visited with county chairman Harry H. Hebble.

Crawford Parker, the Republican one-way choice for governor (while GOP national committee-man Ralph Gates prepares his son, Bob, for the office) has also opened his headquarters in room 325 of the Claypool, directly under the John Walsh room.

The only business transacted at the P.T.A. meeting was the appointment of a nominating committee. Bryce Thomas, principal of the school, Lawrence Anspaugh and Mrs. W. W. Cravens were named to this committee to submit candidates for the offices of the organization.

Young Couple Held For Jumping Bail

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Federal agents swooped down on a young couple in a motel west of here Thursday night and seized them before they could grab any weapons from a small arsenal at their fingertips.

Donald Frederick Smith, 26, and his wife, Jan Shelton Smith, 20, were wanted on a federal charge of jumping bail on narcotics charges at Albuquerque, N. M.

FBI agents found in their possession several loaded hand guns, two loaded rifles, a shotgun, several sticks of dynamite, nitro gelatine, blasting caps, burglary tools and a "substantial quantity" of morphine in powder and tablets.

Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the FBI here, said Smith told them that if he had had the chance, he would have had dynamite at the door as agents came through it. A loaded revolver was at Smith's bedside when he was arrested, Powers said.

Smith had been released on $10,000 bail and his wife on $5,000 bail but they failed to appear in U. S. District Court last Sept. 4 as scheduled, Powers said.

Powers said Smith indicated that if he had been stopped in his car by police he would have killed them.

Lunch Counter Protests From Negroes Spread

United Press International

In seven weeks the lunch counter sitdown protests against segregation by Negroes has spread across the South. New arrests, clashes between groups and with police, and court convictions have increased.

City Judge John A. Rudd of Tallahassee, Fla., sentenced 11 Negro demonstrators to fines of $300 each or 60 days in jail. He ruled that protests against lunch counter segregation in drug, dime and department stores is an attack on the property rights of private businessmen rather than an integration campaign.

Five Negro college students were fined $250 and sentenced to 30 days in jail for a sitdown in Little Rock, Ark., March 10. After sentence was passed, Negro groups staged five more sitdowns and a march on the state capitol building where they sang the national anthem and "God Bless America." Police took no action.

Florida Gov. Leroy Collins said it was possible to hold legal demonstrations, but action of Negroes in giving advance notice in communities where they know "deep resentments will develop" constitutes an illegal act.

South Carolina Atty. Gen. Daniel R. McLeod said the Negro demonstrations raised legal problems that had to be resolved, but he would not say what they are.

Students from South Carolina State College at Orangeburg, S.C., among 400 arrested by fire hoses and tear gas carrying police Tuesday, were roundly criticized by officials of the Negro college.

The chairman of the board of trustees said no further demonstrations would be tolerated, and any students participating in off-campus demonstrations "will be summarily expelled."

A new jury was to be chosen today at Orangeburg to begin trial of the 400 students from South Carolina State and Claflin colleges. Trial was put off Thursday on grounds the jury panel was improperly drawn.

Steinwedel Scores GOP Administration

MOUNT VERNON, Ind. (UPI)—State Auditor Albert Steinwedel charged Thursday night that Governor Handley's administration "has brought discredit for Indiana in the eyes of the entire nation."

The Rev. Hazen Sparks, pastor of the First Methodist church, gave the invocation for the meeting.

Carole Tregoff Is Hopeful Of Release

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Carole Tregoff, in jail since last October, had high hopes today of raising the hard-to-find $25,000 bail money which would free her until her retrial May 23 with Dr. R. Bernard Finch.

"I'll put up everything I own, including my house, if I have to so she can make bail," said one of the red-haired beauty's lawyers, Rexford Eagan.

The 23-year-old Carole had to spend Thursday night in county jail again when her restaurant operator father was unable to raise the $1,125 bail premium necessary for her release.

James Tregoff said he would solicit the help of friends today before taking up Eagan's offer.

A Superior Court judge Thursday ordered Carole released if she could raise the bail, but a similar attempt at gaining her 42-year-old lover's temporary freedom was turned down. Finch has been in county jail since last July.

Judge John Barnes at the same time set the date for retrial of Finch and Carole on conspiracy and murder charges in the slaying of the physician's wife Barbara Jean last July 18.

Steinwedel, a Democratic candidate for governor, said his platform is "simple and direct."

"What is good for Indiana is good for the Democratic party," he said. "Anything that is not good for Indiana is not good for the Democratic party."

Relatives Waited Hour In Miami For Crash News

By RICHARD W. HATCH United Press International

MIAMI (UPI)—"Flight 710. Cancelled."

The neat white letters stood out sharply on a black board at the Northwest Orient passenger desk.

For almost an hour this was the only word 15 relatives and friends of passengers on Northwest Flight 710, which had crashed killing everyone aboard.

Then a tight-lipped 57-year-old man walked through the little crowd.

"The plane is down," he said. The speaker was Andy Frain of Chicago. He had just telephoned a Miami newspaper and learned that Flight 710, bound from Minneapolis to Miami, had crashed at Tell City, Ind.

Frain's wife, Lillian, 49, was aboard.

"I had a feeling all day something was going to happen," he said. "I know my wife is gone. There's no doubt about it."

It was 7:45 p.m. when the airline began calling relatives into a private office to tell them what they already feared.

Mario Gentile, Baltimore, was waiting for his wife, a singer and dancer who used the name Ronnel Lane, 24.

He said the airline told him 710 would be 10 minutes late, then 30, then an hour. Finally, he said, he was told the airplane had turned back because of a storm and the flight was cancelled.

He learned the news from Frain.

"What am I going to do," he moaned.

Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Fleming, Pompano Beach, Fla., were waiting for their daughter, Lois, 19. When Mrs. Fleming heard Frain she put her hands to her head and sobbed.

Daughter, Grandchild Killed. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Misch, Highland Park Ill., learned of the fate of the airliner the same way. Their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wells, 29, of Englewood, Colo., was aboard with their granddaughter, Karen, 5.

"God take care of them," Mrs. Misch cried.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Solomon, Libertyville, Ill., visiting in Homestead, Fla., were waiting for a life-long friend, Marion Dufault of Chicago, Ill.

"Is her name on the list?" she asked a reporter.

The reporter said he did not know.

"I told you there was no hope," said her husband, leading her away.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Prosser, Boca Raton, Fla., were waiting for their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Webster Drummond Sr., Del Rapids, S.D.

Prosser said, "This was only her third trip on an airplane."

"They are dead, they are all dead," his wife said.
