

What's At Stake?

Several people have asked what salaries are paid from public funds for the jobs up for nomination this Spring.

The chief office nominated by primary election is that of Congressman. There are eight counties in the Fourth Congressional district—Adams, Allen, Wells, DeKalb, Whitley, LaGrange, Steuben, and Noble.

There are two candidates on each ticket. Actually, however, there is only one serious candidate on each ticket — E. Ross Adair on the Republican and Byron McCammon on the Democratic ticket. The other candidates have filed, but have no interest in the party on whose ballots they are running.

Each Congressman receives an annual salary of $22,500; if he maintains a home in this district and one in Washington, he is exempt from taxes on the first $3,000 spent for living expenses in Washington.

In addition, each representative gets $26,200 to spend on office personnel. Some use this wisely, others put their relatives on the payroll. He also gets 20 cents a mile round trip once each session, and specific allowances for stationery, office supplies, telephone calls, telegrams, and free mail service.

Next highest office on the ballot is judge of the 26th judicial circuit court. The Republicans have not yet filed a candidate for this office, but the Democrats have two candidates, the incumbent, Judge Myles F. Parrish, who is running for a third six-year term, and Merle A. folder, who has completed one four-year term as sheriff and is serving his second.

The judge of the circuit court receives $12,000 a year, or a total of $72,000 for the next six-year term. It is the highest paid public office in the county government.

Other offices up this year are auditor and treasurer, which receive $6,500 each, and recorder, which pays $6,000 a year. The latter office is traditionally held by a woman, and there are two Democratic candidates, Rosemary Spangler and Mrs. Roy Strickler, and one Republican candidate, Mrs. Dale Death.

Also up for election this year is the surveyor's office, which has the most complicated pay scale left in the county. There is just one candidate on each ticket, Herman Moellering, the Democratic incumbent, and Karl F. Johnson, the Republican candidate.

The salary that Moellering draws is $2,800 a year, plus $1,600 a year, based on $1 for each mile of ditch in the county. A registered engineer, such as Johnson, would draw a salary of $4,200 a year, plus $3,200, or $2 for each mile of ditch. The county council may also raise the salary of a licensed engineer by up to $2,000 a year. So Moellering, or any other surveyor who is not an engineer, draws $4,400 a year, and a licensed engineer would draw $7,400 to $9,400 a year.

The county coroner, for which there is only one candidate at present, Elmer Winteregg, Jr., who is running for reelection on the Democratic ticket, draws a salary of $1,250 a year.

Khrushchev Returns

To Paris From Tour

PARIS (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev returned to Paris today in buoyant spirits and good health for a possible showdown with President Charles de Gaulle on French nuclear plans.

Khrushchev wound up his five-day tour of the provinces with a hurried final sightseeing trip through the Renault automotive plant at Flins. He chatted with a workman and received a sleek convertible as a gift from the nationalized plant.

"You make a good car, but I warn you, you have strong competition in the Soviet automobile industry," he said.

At one point, he complained the tour was going too fast, and said: "Why are we running so fast? Let's stop and talk to somebody."

The French government set the scene for a possible diplomatic explosion between de Gaulle and the Soviet premier when it announced a 12-hour ban on flights around its Sahara atomic test site starting at 5:45 a.m. today.

Two hours after the ban went into effect it was cancelled. The French broadcast several such dry-run warnings before setting off their first atomic blast Feb. 15. The second blast is expected between April 9 and 18.

Khrushchev had a brisk "so what" for a reporter who informed him of the announcement Wednesday night.

But later in the evening Deputy Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin indefinitely postponed a meeting scheduled for Saturday with captains of French industry and commerce.

The surprise cancellation of what France had regarded as vital trade talks gave rise to speculation that it might be a form of Soviet pressure against France's nuclear policies.

Two Trucks Collide At Street Crossing

COURT NEWS

Estate Cases

A minor two-truck collision at Winchester and Elm streets Wednesday shortly after noon resulted in $250 damages to the trucks.

The truck driven by Roger Allen Stevens, 26, of 1215 Patterson street, Decatur, lost control after turning from an alley onto Winchester street, striking the left side of the truck driven by Willard Stetzel, 39, of route 1, Decatur.

The Stetzel truck was southbound on Winchester, while the Stevens vehicle was northbound at the time of impact. City police investigated the accident.
