The reception was held at the Decatur Youth and Community Center following the candlelight ceremony at the East Liberty E. U. B. church in Monroeville March 26.

Larry Stephenson's twin, Jerry, attended his brother as best man and Mrs. Noella May Moore attended her twin sister, the former Joella Faye Lehrman, as matron of honor. The Misses Jean and Jane Wass, lifelong friends of the Lehrman twins, were bridesmaids. Robin Kay and Randy Taylor Barkley, three-year-old twins, were the flower girl and ring bearer. Paul Lehrman, whose twin brother, Harry Lehrman was not present for the picture, gave his daughter in marriage. Helping to serve the 200 guests at the reception were the Misses Carolyn and Marilyn Sorg, twin sisters and friends of the bride. Also among the guests were Mrs. Orville Crouch and Mrs. Hubert Hines, twin aunts of the groom.

The newlyweds will make their home near Rockford, Ohio.

Denver Post's Editorial Backs Gov. Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A western newspaper editorial urging a Nelson A. Rockefeller draft today cheered supporters of the New York governor for Republican presidential candidate.

The 51-year-old chief executive of the nation's most populous state again sidestepped the question of whether he would be receptive to a draft for the nomination. But he has done nothing to discourage talk of a draft.

"I don't think a movement in that direction will develop," Rockefeller told newsmen in Rochester, N.Y., Wednesday. He reiterated that he would not consider the vice presidential nomination.

However, aides said they were pleasantly surprised by an editorial in the Denver Post, largest newspaper in the Rocky Mountain west, Wednesday that rekindled presidential speculation about the personable multi-millionaire.

The independent daily newspaper said Rockefeller would make a stronger Republican presidential candidate than Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

It warned that "Republicans were making a serious mistake which may well catch up with them next November" in making Nixon their choice.

The Post supported President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956. The newspaper said it endorsed Eisenhower because "he had the appeal to lure Democrats in large numbers across party lines and to capture the support of independents."

It said Nixon "simply does not impress people as being of presidential caliber" and added GOP workers should organize a "draft" movement for Rockefeller "who appears to be the most attractive Republican candidate that could be offered to the people" in the presidential sweepstakes.

Brush Fires Plague Southern Indiana

United Press International

A series of Southern Indiana brush fires which plagued conservation officers Wednesday were reported out or under control today. One of them was on the edge of the Camp Atterbury military reservation.

Sparks from a fire which destroyed the Earl Clarkson home just outside the Atterbury area on the south edge of the camp gunney range, setting fire to several hundred acres of brush.

But State Forester Ralph F. Wilcox of the State Conservation Department said the fire was extinguished shortly after dark Wednesday. Security guards from the camp remained on duty all night to be sure the flames did not break out again.

Two other brush fires near Martinsville and Brownstown were reported.

A trash fire burst out of control on the Earl Lewis farm northwest of Martinsville, destroyed an apple orchard and burned over acres of brushlands.

Another blaze about 12 miles south of Brownstown burned over several hundred acres. Both fires were under control.

Wilcox said south portions of the state badly need a good rain. He said it is dry and dusty over wide areas.

Also near Martinsville, Mrs. Hazel Stephenson was burned badly Tuesday afternoon when she tried to beat out a grass fire caused by a spreading trash blaze.

Rural and town grass fires state, and fire departments made one run after another in some areas protecting property from destruction.

Report Geneva Youth In Serious Condition

Robert James Macklin, 16, of Geneva, is reported in serious condition at Parkview memorial hospital in Fort Wayne from a self-inflicted gun shot wound in the stomach. Macklin, who has been living in the Bliss hotel at Bluffton for the past two weeks, shot himself in the back shortly before 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Bluffton police reported. The youth moved to Bluffton after accepting employment in that city.

Macklin fired the shot into the right side of his back, and the bullet punctured the stomach, causing severe internal bleeding. The youth's parents are both deceased.

Woman Robber Faces Court Arraignment

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (UPI)—A young Indianapolis mother of seven children was scheduled for arraignment today in Putnam Circuit Court in connection with a series of burglaries which she and two men allegedly pulled throughout central Indiana.

Mrs. Betty June Frazier, 28, was arrested in the company of her brother-in-law, David Frazier, 31, and Robert Scott Jr., 39, Tuesday night at Indianapolis and immediately transferred to jails at Greencastle and Greensburg.

Scott and Frazier were arraigned in Hancock Circuit Court Wednesday on charges of auto banditry, second-degree burglary and grand larceny. They were jailed in lieu of $10,000 bond each pending trial Sept. 6, in connection with the $2,600 burglary of a Greenfield store in February.

Mrs. Frazier was charged with participating in the looting of a New Mayville hardware store, also in February.

Farmers Union Head Sees Economy Threat

COLUMBUS, Ind. (UPI)—John Raber, president of the Indiana Farmers Union, said Wednesday night at a farm meeting that American economic stability will be destroyed unless a solution is found to the farm problem. Raber said farmers must develop a strong political organization or face insolvency.

Drug Firms' Advertising Methods Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate investigators were told today that some companies use the same advertising techniques to peddle new drugs to physicians that are used to sell new automobiles to the general public.

Dr. Chauncey D. Leake of the Ohio State University Medical School said drug prices could be reduced if manufacturers toned down advertising and promotional campaigns.

He said drug advertisers "seem to think that physicians are simpletons and that they may be persuaded to use new drugs in the same way that people generally are persuaded to buy new clothes and new automobiles."

Leake made his statements in prepared testimony to the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee, headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), which is investigating prices and profits in the drug industry.

Drug companies should provide more "helpful" information, he said, rather than concentrating on what he termed "persuasive, exaggerated advertisements, concealing for commercial reasons what is really essential for physicians to know."

Leake also recommended that every new drug be tested first on healthy adult humans — "preferably by those advocating the new drug" — before it is used on sick people.

Other congressional news:

Influence: Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) urged that House influence investigators recall Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall of the Federal Power Commission to testify under oath about behind-the-scenes talks about FPC members and utility representatives. Moss said he wanted to know if it was customary for commissioners to have outside discussions with industry officials about pending cases.

Mansfield: Asst. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.) said the nation has "suffered a long night of national neglect under President Eisenhower. Mansfield told the Senate in a prepared speech that the next administration will inherit a "monumental accumulation of unfulfilled needs for public action" in domestic and foreign affairs.

Minimum Wage: A House labor subcommittee planned to hear Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell next week on controversial proposals to raise the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 and expand coverage to an additional 7,500,000 workers. Organized labor has backed the proposals. Commerce Secretary Frederick H. Mueller Wednesday opposed the $1.25 figure as "inflationary." Mueller favored only extending coverage.

Delay Scheduled Opening Of Seaway

MASSENA, N.Y. (UPI)—The St. Lawrence Seaway will not open Friday as originally scheduled because of heavy ice in the waterway, it was announced today.

Lewis Castle, administrator of the seaway, said it has been impossible to set out bays along the St. Lawrence River. Ice was reported in the river near Montreal and at Massena and in other areas. Some of it was being flushed through the Eisenhower and Snell locks.

Castle said it would depend on the weather when the seaway is officially opened for traffic. He indicated it may be Monday before ships can pass through.

In Montreal, ships were waiting for the opening of the seaway. The harbor master's office said at least 25 vessels would be on hand for the opening of the St. Lambert locks.

The icebreaker Ernest La Pointe Wednesday plowed a channel through moving, thin ice to Beauharnois, 20 miles west of Montreal.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard hoped to clear a path all the way into Buffalo harbor today for two ships bucking heavy ice formations a few miles out in Lake Erie.

With luck, the freighter James Watt and the car-carrier T.J. McCarthy of the McCarthy Steamship Co. will open the port to navigation before the day is over.

The cutter Tupelo, currently operating out of Erie, Pa., joined the McCarthy Wednesday and was helping to cut a channel for the vessel, which has 499 new cars aboard.

The James Watt has been stuck for three days in the ice field off the north harbor entrance. The cutter Ojibwa was successful in trying to reach the freighter Wednesday.

American automobile exports rose in 1959 to 305,000 units from 304,346 in 1958.

Name Is Incorrectly Printed Wednesday

A number of copies of Wednesday's Decatur Daily Democrat were printed and circulated before a typographical error was discovered in an article concerning graveside services Wednesday for an infant daughter of Eugene and Roberta Ludy-Chronister. The article was incorrectly headed Chronister instead of Chronister.

The daughter died Tuesday at 4:30 p.m., two hours and 40 minutes after birth. The mother has been home economics teacher at Decatur high school for several years; the father is an electrical engineer with International Telephone and Telegraph Co.
