Sen. Symington

(Editor's note: The Decatur Democrat was invited to send a representative to the press conference held in Fort Wayne for Sen. Stuart Symington this morning. The following comes from this press conference.)

Senator Stuart Symington feels that the biggest issues for the Democratic party in the coming election are lack of leadership and poor money management. The Senator, dealing seriously with each question asked him, gave as definite an answer to each question as he felt a man in his position could.

In answer to the question concerning campaign issues this fall, Symington answered that he felt the main issues were the administrations lack of leadership and poor management of money. The senator stated that the present policy seems to be to let events create the need for leadership, instead of sound, progressive leadership forming a program that will anticipate at least some of the events.

He also hit out at the present administration's poor management. Referring to a recent article in a national magazine concerning waste in the Pentagon, Symington said he wondered what the critics of Democrats as wasters of money thought now.

Speaking at length on the declining farm income question, Symington felt that the present program was not answering the needs. He said that 12% of the total population was directly involved in some sort of agriculture, and yet these people were receiving only three per cent of the national income.

Touching on foreign affairs, the senator voiced the need of this country to make as many friends as possible. While he felt that the "man on the street" generally wants the United States to take a humanitarian approach to many of their foreign policies, this was not always the case. Russia, he said, makes no secret of the fact that they are trying to sell the people of the world on the Russian way of life. Symington feels that since Americans have the finest and best standards of living in the history of the world, it should be our foreign policy to promote the acceptance of the standards of Democracy throughout the world.

It was asked whether recent successful satellite launchings would tend to push the space lag into the background as a campaign issue. Symington answered that he did not see how that could make much difference. The total weight of all U.S. successful satellites does not equal the weight of Russia's lunar probe satellite. This, plus the statement by Werner Von Braun that we are still five years behind the Russians in development of our space program, does not tend to push the space lag into the background.

When asked if he was nominated whether he would like Sen. Kennedy as a running mate for vice president, Symington answered very definitely in the affirmative. He refused to name any personal preference as a running-mate, though. The senator quipped that someone wanted him to make one friend happier and many others mad.

Commenting about Adlai Stevenson in regard to a comment by senator Kennedy that any Democrat elected in November would probably give prime consideration to the former Illinois governor as Secretary of State, Symington said that Stevenson was a "fine American, and he has lots of experience in this field."

Answering a query about social security, the senator said there are from 14 to 15 million people in the United States over 65, and each day 3,000 more reach that age. He said that the people who enjoy the things America offers today have "an obligation to these people in the autumn of their lives who have contributed so much to the way of life we have today."

Jackets Lose
First Game Of Season Monday

Decatur's usually tight defense broke, giving Huntington a 4-3 victory Monday afternoon as six errors and two passed balls spelled the first defeat for the Jackets in four spring appearances this season.

Decatur continued inept at the plate, collecting only two hits, but the Vikings garnered only three. Decatur's Johnny Cowan and Viking Bob Alsapch were breezing along in a fine pitchers' duel until the Vikings tied the count at 2-2 in the top of the sixth on a walk, an error, a passed ball and a bleeding single by the Huntington second sacker, Hammel.

Passed Balls Hurt

In the top of the seventh, a similar occurrence took place as another walk, a double, a passed ball and an error added two tallies to the Huntington column. Decatur rallied for one marker in the bottom of the last inning but Alsapch met the challenge striking out the last man with the tying runner on second base, after Bill Conrad sent a sacrifice fly to score Rambo. Decatur had scored one in the third and another in the fourth to take a slight margin in the middle innings. A walk to Dave Clark, and a squeeze bunt by Bob Walters put the Jackets in the score book.

Score On Passes

Coach Bill McColly's team then added another counter in the fourth on two more free tickets to first base, a fielder's choice by Harley Wolfe and Jerry Rambo's run scoring punch to right field. Neither team threatened until the Huntington sixth. Decatur now has tallied 14 hits in four games for a 3.5 per game average. The team's run production has been only slightly higher, getting 15 in four, for a 3.75 per game mark.
